Lewis and Clark Journal.

Senator Mitchell recently addressed a letter to the American philosophical society of Philadelphia, which has in its possession the original journal of Lewis and Clark, kept by them on their journey to the Pacific coast. He said that in view of the coming exposition at Portland, the people of the Pacific northwest are anxious to procure this paper for republication in pamphlet form, and asked if he might not have access to it long enough to have it printed as a senate document. The society replied that they had recently entered into a contract with New York publishers by which they are to reproduce this journal in full in elaborate style, and under their contract they cannot lend the papers for that purpose.

It is expected that copies of this journal will be on sale in Portland during the exposition.
