The heat of the sun was so severe on the tracks of the O. R. & N. Company at a point five miles east of The Dalles yesterday as to cause the rails to expand. They were moved from their fastenings, causing a derailment. The engine and two cars bumped over the ties for a rod or two, but no special injury was occasioned. This caused one section of the train, due here from the East at 4:30, to come in four hours late. About midnight the other section arrived.—Dalles Chronicle.
