

What the Coal Strike has Done.

Landon Knight, well known as a magazine contributor, has an illustrated article in Conkey's Home Journal for November on "What the Coal Strike Has Done," that brings to light some very interesting details concerning the inner workings of both the operators and the miners. Mr. Knight spent considerable time in the anthracite coal regions as special representative of Conkey's Home Journal and gives a fair and impartial report of his investigations. He says the condition of the miners and their families has been grossly misrepresented to the public and that they are not at all the downtrodden, poverty-stricken class they have been represented by many writers. He claims for them that they are among the best paid workmen in the world; that they have good homes and educated families. On the other hand, Mr. Knight does not spare the operator. He brands as false the statement of the operator that he can not pay a higher price for labor without working his mine at a loss. "The fact of the matter is," says Mr. Knight, "that the combined profits of the anthracite operator for the past year represented sixteen per cent. on the stock of the companies, while private mine owners, who work at greater disadvantage in the matter of freight rates, in no case that I have been able to discover, made less than fifteen per cent. of the investment."

"But," continues Mr. Knight, "from a sociological standpoint, the worst feature of this colossal conflict has been the general dissatisfaction and destruction of confidence that it created. It is perceptible in the miner's home. It is seen in the faces of himself and his family. Thrift, economy, the education of the children, the payments on the homes, all seem to be forgotten, swallowed up in the memory of his grievances. As one walks the streets of Shenandoah, a general air of sullen depression pervades the place. Neighbors of years refuse to speak as they pass; unkept children loiter in the alleys, when they should be in school, and even the house of God is not free from the curse that has fallen over the land."

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes after the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

May Try Experiments.

Harry Witycombe, who spent the summer and fall in the Fish Lake country, as a forest ranger, arrived home about a week ago. He stood the duties of his position splendidly and says he had a splendid outing. The fires left by campers kept him fairly busy, but he was fortunate in experiencing no disastrous fires in his territory. Harry and another ranger on the government reserve were the last two men to be discharged at the close of the season. Next year it is thought that the number of rangers employed by the government will be considerably less than the number in service the past year. It is proposed that during the coming year cabins shall be built on the various mountain peaks of the reserve and an outlook kept by a man stationed there to overlook the surrounding country with the aid of a powerful glass. In case the man on the mountain discovers an alarming amount of smoke in a certain district he will communicate the intelligence to a given place by means of a heliograph. Men will then be sent to investigate the matter. It is thought by some that this will not prove a successful method of coping with the fire, as it is claimed that at certain periods, and in some parts of the reserve, the atmosphere will become so smoky that it will be impossible for the lookout to locate where there is or is not a fire. And should he determine this matter to his own satisfaction he would be unable to flash his message to the desired point. These are some of the points that Mr. Witycombe has heard discussed in connection with this problem. —Corvallis Gazette.

State Bar Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Oregon State Bar Association will be held in the United States court room in Portland, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 18 and 19, on which dates there will also be held in Portland the convention of the Oregon Irrigation Association, on which occasion the railroads will grant very low rates, covering five days, Tuesday, November 18, to Saturday, November 22, inclusive, from all points in Oregon to Portland.

In the hope of arousing a more general interest the executive committee of the Bar Association will limit addresses and papers to be presented to four, two for each day and will offer for discussion certain changes in the code governing the rules of practice, taking up six leading subjects, which have been largely discussed by the members of the bar, and among whom various opinions prevail as to the wisdom of adopting the same.

Hon. R. P. Boise, of Salem, for more than 20 years a member of the Oregon Bar, and almost continuously a member of the Supreme court, will deliver an address on "Fifty Years Recollection of the Bench and Bar of Oregon." The president's address will be delivered by Judge John B. Cleland, the president of the association. Papers will be read by Hon. A. C. Woodcock, of the Eugene bar, and by Hon. Alfred F. Seass, Jr., judge of the circuit court of the Fourth district. Subjects to be announced later.

CODE CHANGES.

The changes in the code proposed for discussion are the following.

First—An amendment permitting the use of the general denial.

Second—An amendment permitting the commencement of an action or suit by the service of summons.

Third—An amendment permitting the services of summons by any person over 21 years of age, not a party to the suit or action.

Fourth—An amendment reforming the attachment law.

Fifth—An amendment making personal service of summons out of the state equivalent to service by publication, and when personal service out of the state can be had, doing away with the necessity of an affidavit for an order of publication.

Sixth—An amendment permitting a majority of the jury to return a verdict.

These subjects will be introduced by leading members of the bar.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Portland Will Entertain

Railroads Make low Rates on Occasion of Oregon Irrigation Association Convention

The Oregon Irrigation Association convention of over 400 delegates will assemble in Portland Tuesday and Wednesday, November 18 and 19; also the Oregon Bar Association meets here on the same days, on which occasion the railroads have made reduced rates, tickets good for six days on all lines from points in Oregon to Portland.

Portland proposes to entertain all visitors over the railroads on the occasion with a ball or concert, free theaters, with visits to wheat ships, public library, Oregon Historical Society rooms, the $500,000 City Hall and the $1,000,000 Federal custom house, a steamboat ride on the Willamette and Columbia Rivers, and in other ways as will best show Portland's enterprise, hospitality and desire to become better acquainted with the people of the whole state and they with it.

It is expected several thousand people from all over Oregon will take advantage of the cheap excursion rates announced by the O. R. & N., Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific to visit Portland Irrigation week, and it is the intention of the business men of Portland to give these a royal welcome and free entertainment regardless of whether they come as regular appointed delegates or simply as visitors.

Burns Items. (From the News)

James Toney, who is now in town from the P ranch, where he has been employed recently, reports that he will shortly return to his former home at Mitchell.

Judge W. A. Booth, of Crook county, who is here to attend the Circuit Court, reports that business is very good and everyone prospering in and around Prineville.

Mrs. M. Shields, of Mitchell, a sister of Robert Toney, deceased, arrived in Burns last Saturday to be in attendance at the trial of Jerry Daly. Mrs. Shields departed for home this morning in company with Judge W. A. Booth and G. M. Cornett.

Rev. and Mrs. Gowan expect to leave here next Monday on their return to their home in Boise. Rev. Gowan, who is selling agent for a Bible Society, reports that he is quite pleased with the success he met with here.

While in the city this week G. M. Cornett informed the News that there will soon be a new mail route established between Fife and Prineville, by way of the head of Crooked river, Price and Crook postoffices. This line was petitioned for some time ago, and now the department has asked the interested postmasters to recommend a schedule upon which to advertise for bids.

Edward S. Tull, who with his son is engaged in the cattle business in Long valley, was in Lakeview this week on land business. Mr. Tull says the stockmen of his section turn off about five hundred head of beef each year. Those who did not sell too early this season are well satisfied with the prices secured. Tull & Son turned off about 75 head and received $33 all round—two-year-old steers and old cows.—Lakeview Examiner.

Oregon Mining Bureau.

Oregon proposes this winter to establish a state mining bureau. It is a good idea. Every mining commonwealth should have such a state department. Every dollar so spent would be the means of inducing inquiry and development. This is an age of advertising, and no matter how good the wares of the merchant or how valuable the mineral resource of a state, both need proper publicity among buyers. Washington, Idaho, California, Colorado and Montana find it profitable to maintain such an institution, and Oregon could well profit by their example. That state is the possessor of great mineral wealth. Rightly run, an Oregon state mining bureau could induce investment, disseminate accurate information and be of great aid in a variety of ways to Oregon mining men. The Oregon legislature could well appropriate, say $25,000 annually for the maintenance of a state mining bureau. Its good effects would be manifest and would be immediately noticeable. It is indirectly as much of an advantage to the farmer or lumberman or stockraiser or merchant as it is to the miner to have such an institution. Mining is the great basic industry of the nation. The miner is a consumer of all products, a customer of all manufacturers, and a competitor of none.—Mining and Scientific Press.

A very pretty idea for the celebration of Halloween originated in the minds of a society of little girls known as the D. Y. T's, who, after ascertaining the number of patients at the hospital and several others who are ill in the city, carried a beautiful bouquet to each one. In striking contrast to the deprecations committed in former years was this sweet remembrance, which we hope will be continued in the years to come.—Dallas Chronicle.
