

Prineville Public School Notes

CHIEF EDITORS.—Clyde Riswell, Charles O. Christians.

ASSISTANTS.—Ira Booth, Fay Hodges, Henry Smith, Roy Canning, Rutha Elkins, Nellie Day, Celesia Nelson and Ruth Taylor.

Gertie Hardin was sick a day or two last week.

Finnie Child's was sick the fore part of last week.

Frank Taylor spent a part of his vacation at his home at Haystack.

Guy Lafollett spent the holidays at his country home.

Ruth Taylor spent Christmas at Haystack.

Ask Nellie Day if she likes to skate.

Elwood Draper has been on the sick list for several days.

Senator and Representatives of Congress are paid $5000 a year.

Roy Foster spent vacation in the country looking after farm matters.

The New Year's term of school began last Monday, January 5, 1903.

At the beginning of school on Monday, January 5, the pupils of the IV grade took up the study of Europe.

Winnie Cline has been sick for several days past, but we hope that she will be able to attend school when the New Year term begins.

A citizen neither gains nor loses a residence while serving in the army or navy. His voting residence is in the place in which he was a voter when he enlisted.

Neither constitution nor statute law limit the number of a President of the United States may serve. But custom, which is quite as strong as written law, has forbidden a third term.

Women miss it when they think that there are not enough men to go round. In most places there are two men to one woman, and in all but a few states there are more men than women.

Maud Dobbs spent a very unpleasant vacation. She took sick one day last week and has been very ill for several days since. We all hope that it will not prove to be serious and that she will soon be able to resume her studies at school.

The first half of the holidays were most good days for skating. Almost all of the pupils who spent their vacation in town enjoyed themselves skating. The ice was frozen too cold for skating and was not too cold to be pleasant while skating.

Miss Ada Taylor, who went to Mitchell to spend the holidays, is reported as being very sick at that place. The news comes that her sickness is of a serious nature and her father and mother started at once for the bedside of their daughter. It being so near the beginning of school she will not be able to resume her place as teacher. We are all in sympathy with her and hope for her recovery.

One of the editors of the school news took a hunt for jack rabbits last Friday, and passed by the site of the proposed High school. It of course is not set with evergreen trees, and has no fine lawn, but when a nice building is erected it will improve the looks of the ground. Later on we can plant trees and sow some advisable seed for the lawn. These grounds will be a good place for military if such a thing could be instituted here. We could use the city as a target and turn loose at it most any old time. Some of the boys who have sweethearts in the south end of the city can always have a long walk home with them. Hurrah for the High School!

To get a husband is what women look forward to from the cradle to the grave, but many of them fail. It is a misfortune and not her fault if she fails to capture a husband. Ever since the creation of Adam and Eve women have been trying to find out what bait to use and how to use it, so as to be able to catch men.

Neither beauty nor riches can do the work. It is a self-evident fact and every one knows it, that the prettiest girl almost always makes the worst match. Money is not what men want when they are looking for a partner for life. A woman of choice is valued higher by a man than all the gold she might possess. A rich young lady adorns her parlor in the richest hue in order to show off when she may have a young man's company, but her cheaper sister generally does her courting for her. It is not the high toned girl that always catches the beau. Some men they work very easy, while others regard them as foolish. Many women make fools of themselves by overdoing the matter. They do everything they can to win the man. Others don't know a good thing when they see it, and never respect a man's company. At either one of these two things men become alarmed and do not often repeat the visit. Some ladies like to have their beaus tell them that they love them about forty-seven times every time they come to see them. This men get tired of and it soon becomes like rusty nails.

When woman thinks that men admire a laughing hyena, she is badly mistaken. Some girls keep up a continuous giggling. This is not because of an overdeveloped sense of humor, but rather like an alarm clock, they are never good for anything but to make noise. They don't know a joke when they see it, and so they giggle all the time on the strength of hitting the right place somewhere. A man has a higher idea of women than these. They are looking for college bred women, for women with good sense and good judgement, and above all a man selects a woman according to his taste.

Any woman might get a husband, but many of them are no account after they get them. Getting a husband is quite easy, but keeping him at home after you get him is what tests the good woman.

My business causes me to travel pretty often between London and Birmingham. One time a clerical looking gentleman got on at Oxford just as the train was starting. He was a pleasant, genial companion and shortened the journey wonderfully.

As we drew up to the station for tickets to be collected, he let his ticket drop down between the train and platform, calling the porter's attention to it.

"All right, sir. I can get it when the train moves on."

Some weeks later I was at a window and saw the same accident(?) happen, but on the return journey to Birmingham. It was the same man; but this time the collector sent a man down to pick it up, and next minute the clerical gentleman was arrested. It was an old trick of his—the tickets being odd ones, purchased for short journeys—and the collectors had all been cautioned.

When I am going a long journey in the train, and wishing a carriage to myself, I always take a woman's shawl in my bag, a red or tartan one as a rule. When I get the carriage empty I put the shawl over my head, down my jaws and under my chin, letting it fall down in front of me. I then put an old pipe in my mouth and screw up my face a bit. Any one pressing takes me for an old woman, and a very miserable companion and leaves me alone. I nearly always succeed in remaining by myself.

A Good Cough Medicine.

From the Gazette, Toowoomba, Australia. I find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an excellent medicine. I have been suffering from a severe cough for the last two months, and it has effected a cure. I have great pleasure in recommending it.—W. C. WOCKNER. Notice to Electric Customers.

Your attention is called to the monthly lighting rates, which will be found in the last part of Section 10, Ordinance 122, which reads as follows:

Evening until 10 p. m., .05 per candle power; evening until midnight, .06 per candle power. All night lights .08 per candle power. Residences, churches and halls special rates. Residences were given a .04 rate for this reason. They are supposed not to burn their lights only when in actual use, and in no case to burn lights all night in unoccupied rooms.

Beginning November 1st, 1902, we will charge an .08 rate on all night lights, unless permission has been granted for same.

We positively will not furnish current to lights not purchased from P. L. & W. Co. Where this fraud is found to exist service will be discontinued without notice.

NOT A RELIEF BUT A CURE

Dr. C. A. Perrin, Helena, Mont.
Dear Sir:—
I have nearly finished the former bottle and am practically well. My case was one most physicians would have pronounced incurable. My appetite is good, have gained 10 pounds in weight and feel like a new lease of life was given me. One of the bottles I send for this time is for a friend and the other for myself as I do not intend to be without it.
Very truly yours,
T. R. HANCOCK
