

THEN AND NOW.

A crumbling fort o'crosses the plain,
Where iron hails and leaden rain,
With thunder of artillery,
Cues through war's work of misery!
Yet over me walls musta there,
Such calm was brooding, and the air
From breath of roses was so sweet,
Thought of sword in plowshares best.

King were seen grinning with a fear
Over the sloping are a-aware, nay,
And resting abut the town has come
'Neath oak's tall trees the banner's hoar
Which crimsoned many a trampled clod;
Now dales deck with snow that sod.
While white doves can unharmed with
Rebouts rear'd for the battle's din.

Grim parsons no longer frown
Upon a pant, beleaguered town;
The greater city is the night;
And pride guards the glore conflict's site;
Sweet homes with empy lawn are now
Crowning historic heights serene
In grace and beauty, safe apart
From tumult of the busy mart.

Now is the tame forgotten here
Unto the heart devout more dear
Than grandest mission wealth rears high,
But shrining poor mortality—
While on that day of all the best,
Thrilled strangely once by the boast
To arms, the scene is of release,
Old foes now friends in vows of peace.

In this slow-crumbing fort I see
Type of a frayed waisted bitterer,
Yet whose remembered up of woe
Is yielding to thine that flow;
Though its dead heroes forms sway
Whether in blue, or in the gray,
Claim their due share of victory bloom
Often as doth the Myrtine come.

Saw Death Near.

It often made my heart ache," writes L. G. Overstreet, of Elgin, Tenn., "to hear my wife cough until it seemed her weak and sore lungs would collapse. Good doctors said she was far gone with consumption that no medicine or earthly help could save her, but a friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery and persistent use of this excellent medicine saved her life." It's absolutely guaranteed for coughs and all throat and lung diseases, 50c and $1.00 at Adams & Winnek Co. Trial bottles free.

A. J. Snell wanted to attend a party, but was afraid to do so on account of pains in his stomach, which he feared would grow worse. He says, "I was telling my troubles to a lady friend, who said: 'Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy will put you in condition for the party.' I bought a bottle and take pleasure in stating that two doses cured me and enabled me to have a good time at the party." Mr. Snell is a resident of Summer Hill, N.Y. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

The captain had one hand on the gun swinging it about on its pivot. With the other he was beckoning signals to the engineer to stop, to go forward a little or to go back. Following his eyes, I caught sight of our whale. It looked like a huge, cigar-shaped, mass of smooth, olive-colored fat, rolling regular intervals of that four or five feet of his diameter and 30 feet of his length above the surface in the smooth water. With alternate rising and dipping he was gliding smoothly forward, without apparent exertion, but with tremendous speed and in perfectly straight line. We were surrounding him from behind at no angle, so that his course and ours was the same as V.

The captain on the raised platform in the bow, following with the mouth of his cannon the course of the whale, was the personification of alertness. The crew were propped behind him as eager and expectant as if they had never caught a whale before. One of them touched me on the shoulder and pointed silently a mile away, where a dozen other whales were sporting like columns of vapor. When I turned again to our whale he had risen once more, we were within 30 feet of him. Every person on the ship was in state of tense alertness. Suddenly came the crack of the gun. I saw a blinding red zigzag dash on the broad side of the whale. I heard the rumbling roar of the tempest at the point of the harpoon exploding in the whale's vitals. On deck there was a convulsive nondemonium. The captain, in the delirium of the hunter at the teeth of his quarry, was shrieking shrill staccato orders. The crew were leaping to their posts. Suddenly I felt the bow of the vessel give a jerk beneath me, then tremble a moment, and slowly dip.

The whale had gone straight downward. The rope attached to the harpoon shot over the bow so fast that the eye could not follow; where it touched the wood a curling column of smoke arose. The windless spun round like a boy's top. It hummed and buzzed with the noise of a flying locomotive. Still after coil of rope leaped into nothingness like a magician's flower pot. Gradually the windless ceased to spin. The whale had touched bottom. The

Pullman Ordinary Sleepers.

The tourist travel between the east and the Pacific coast has reached enormous proportions in the last few years, and calls for a special class of equipment. To meet this demand the Pullman Co. has issued from its shops what it technically calls the "Pullman Ordinary Sleeper." These cars appear similar to the regular sleeper, being built on the same plan, but not furnished with the same elegance. They are equipped with mattresses, blankets, sheets, pillows, pillow-cases, towels, combs, brushes, etc., requiring nothing of the kind to be furnished by the passenger. Each car has a stove for making coffee and tea and doing "light housekeeping," and each section can be fitted with an adjustable table. A uniformed porter accompanies each car, his business being to make up berths, keep the car clean, and look after the comforts and wants of the passengers. In each of the trains which are dispatched daily from Portland by the O. R. & N. Co. is to be found one of these "Pullman Ordinary Sleepers." The car is attached to the "Chicago Portland Special," which goes through to Chicago without change, and the one in the "Atlantic Express" runs to Kansas City without change. Passengers in this car for Cheyenne change to a similar car at Granger.

Much of the first class travel is being carried in these cars, the rates being lower, and the service being nearly equal to that in the palace sleepers.

For rates and full information, including orders, write to A. L. Craig, G. P. A., O. R. N. Co., Portland, Ore.
