Married.

ALEXANDER-PARSONS—At the residence of the bride's parents four miles southeast of Albany, March 1, George Alexander and Miss Clara Parsons.

The bride is the accomplished daughter of John Parsons, one of Linn county's substantial farmers and is well and desirable known throughout the western part of the state while the groom is one of those fellows known to the general public as an editor—being associate editor and proprietor of the Express-Advocate of Lebanon. It is a well known fact among George's friends that he has been contemplating the fatal step for several years yet when he took it, it came as a shock to the community. May he always be a loving husband, a kind father, a grey-headed grandfather and his "ghost" walk regularly. May he find plenty of "fat takes" throughout this life and when his last lease is off may his "form" be laid to rest on the "dead galley" of an honored life.

J. G. Edwards, of the Baldwin Sheep & Land Co., Hay Creek, Oregon, was married to Elizabeth J. Bell on February 24, at Thorpe Hall, Howden, East Yorkshire, England. Here is many happy days, Jack.—Rural Spirit.

DIED.

In this city on Wednesday March 4, J. W. Wright.

Mr. Wright was born near Huiley, Linn county 43 years ago, where he resided until eighteen months ago when he removed to this place. He had been in ill health for the past four years and hoped to be benefited by a change to a drier climate than that of Western Oregon, but the change was made too late to do any permanent good. He was a man of upright character and highly respected by all who knew him. He left a wife and two small children.

The remains were interred in the city cemetery beside those of his mother and little daughter.

J. W. Wimer Killed.

One of the saddest things that a newspaper has to chronicle is the sudden or violent death in the community of a strong, healthy man. Such however is the lot of all of them at times and the Journal is no exception to the rule.

Last Thursday morning J. W. Wimer, of Newsom creek, together with his son, started to the timber for a load of wood. Arriving at their destination they proceeded to fell a tree. As it started to fall Mr. Wimer remarked that it was going to fall where they had intended it should. They were his last words for a limb that had been broken off by the falling tree sprang back and struck him on the side of the head with such force that it crushed the skull killing him instantly.

Mr. Wimer came to Oregon from Missouri and settled in Coos county from whence he removed to Douglas county where he remained for several years and then came to this county four years ago, engaging in the dairy business. He was an energetic man and was very enthusiastic in whatever he undertook, often too sanguine as to results, but he met his reverses philosophically and at once started to rebuild when he had made a failure. He was rapidly building up a good business on Newsom creek and his dairy products were becoming much sought after in the commercial world.

In him the community has lost a good citizen, the family a kind and loving husband and father.

The remains were interred in the L. O. F. cemetery by the local lodge of Odd Fellows Saturday at 2 o'clock p. m.

The family has the sympathy of the entire community in this sad affliction.
