Last Friday about 25 members of the local Eastern Star lodge pleasantly and completely surprised the household of C. I. Winnek. The occasion was the 15th anniversary of the latter's marriage to his estimable wife and the evening was made merry until a late hour by music games, and refreshments.

Monday afternoon people along Main street near the Journal office witnessed about the most brutal treatment that it has ever been our privilege to gaze upon. A man not a gentleman, whose name we would gladly print could we have learned it, was mercilessly whipping and abusing a horse, and making himself a most fit subject for a humane society officer.

Recent rains in all parts of Interior Oregon the past two weeks have started the fall grass to growing, and winter pasture will, according to reports, be about an average. The rains have been general in all sections, and especially in the vicinity of the outlets from the Cascade ranges. The sheep coming out at this time of the year will find an abundance of fresh grass upon which to feed, although this is likely to be greatly depleted in a short time owing to the vast number which will travel over the same route.

While nothing definite can be learned regarding the entries which will be made for the race meet of the Jockey Club the latter part of this month, it is reported that horses will be entered from Antelope, John Day, and several other points in this and other counties. The stormy weather which has been prevalent during the past two weeks is likely to give way to pleasant days during the races. At least it is to be hoped that the weather will see fit to have a little sunshine on the days in question.

City Council Discusses Sidewalk Proposition Tuesday Night.

Ask any one of the city councilmen to spell sidewalk and he will probably spell it forwards and backwards and then begin in the middle and spell both ways at the same time. That was about the only subject discussed at the council meeting Tuesday evening, and the members of that body became pretty familiar with the use of the word and the way it should be applied to the city of Prineville.

And Alderman Elkins spring a joke, too. He said "The mildeyed cows have a habit of playing ping-pong on the sidewalks during the night which has a tendency to keep them in a bad condition." But the cigar smoke was too thick and the rest of the councilmen failed to see the point. However, they sat down pretty heavy on the condition of some of the city's foot supporters and immediate and gratifying changes will be made.

The sidewalk on the north side of lots 2 and 3, block 18 of M. Hodges plat was condemned without compensation, and the marshal instructed to notify the owners of the property that a new walk be built inside of the next ten days. The same instructions were given for the walks on the south side of lots 1 and 12 in block 2 of Newson's addition. Pretty near every defective walk in the city was given a hearing, and where an indictment of guilty was recorded, the marshal was given the power to order immediate and satisfactory changes.

The Lockey et al. petition for a new walk on the south side of block 12 was laid on the table owing to its irregularity and non conformity with the city ordinances.

Then came the bridges. Mayor Brink suggested that something should be done, especially with the Crooked river bridge on the west side of town, but Alderman Stewart advised that he had been doing a little prospecting in the hills with an auger and had found them perfectly safe, so that practically ended the discussion, and the bridge will probably struggle along for another decade or so. Mayor Brink rallied, however, from the superb influence of evidence from the prospecting expedition, and thought it would be well to have a plaster mold of a few piles across as the driver for the new county bridge came and brace up the bridge as much as possible. The suggestion was well taken and the impromptu aid society for broken-down-civil conditions will no doubt give the bridge a material lift in the near future toward a more upright life than it has been leading in the past.

Long Hollow Ranches Produce Some Remarkably Large Vegetables.

Will Wurzwiler and Ben Jones returned Friday from the Long Hollow ranch on the Deschutes river. This ranch is owned by the Black Butte Land and Livestock Company and that it is a vegetable producing place is testified to by the character of the samples brought in by Mr. Wurzwiler. A radish weighing 5 1/2 pounds a table beet weighing 5 1/2 and a turnip weighing 2 1/2 were among the monstrosities raised on that ranch absolutely without irrigation, showing beyond a doubt that when the "time comes" Crook county will step proudly to the front an agricultural prodigy.

Dr. Dimsted Talks.

Dr. J. B. Dimsted, supreme medical director of the United Artisans, delivered an address at the M. E. church Monday evening to a fair sized and appreciative audience.

The doctor handled his subject in an able manner and proved to many in the audience the need of protection for their dependent ones.

After the lecture the members of the assembly and a few invited guests repaired to the hall where refreshments were served, after which a short season of games and social converse prevailed and all then wended their ways homeward, voting the doctor as great a success as a social entertainer as he is on the lecture platform.
