THURSDAY, AUGUST 24, 1905

Competition always has been and probably always will be, in the majority of cases, the life of trade. Local evidence of this is shown in the O. R. & N. company's reduction of freight rates to compete with the state's portage railroad. While the latter road as yet has demonstrated only a small amount of usefulness, the advantage which it will yield to the upper country of the Columbia will be better shown later on when river boats have begun to ply above the obstruction in the river at The Dalles. The O. R. & N. will then be compelled to lower its present exorbitant rates, the benefit accruing to the producers from the soil—the life and backbone of any community.

It required 87 cars to bring the Barnum and Bailey circus to Portland. There are 26 separate tents on the grounds. There are 1,150 people with the show. There are three rings and two stages and an ocean of "aerial stuff." There are 160,000 square yards of canvas in the various tents. There are 19 nationalities represented among the performers. There are 690 horses in the stables and 81 grooms. Everybody connected with the show has his own dishes in the big dining tent and they are carefully marked. The range which cooks the meals has 31 holes. There are 12 cooks and 40 dishwashers. A blacksmith shop larger than any in this city is kept working all the time. There are only five giraffes in captivity and Barnum & Bailey have four of them, purchased at a cost of $68,000 and valued at twice that sum. There is no parade because the show couldn't be put up in time for an afternoon performance if the old fashion was in vogue. Consequently the livestock is not overworked and every animal is sleek and clean. It is beyond comprehension of the average mind, in fact, how a show of such magnitude can "chase around" the country, moving once in 24 hours.

The Salem Statesman voices the general sentiment of the Oregon press when it says: "Our help is in ourselves. If we have the right proposition for a railway, why wait for Mr. Harriman? There is no community in Oregon that can support a railway today that is not able to build it with its own capital. Once the community shows its confidence in the proposition, lots of Harrimans all over the country stand ready to come in and take up the work. "Let a community start construction on a road and see how deeply it will interest not only Mr. Harriman, but other capitalists looking for investment. That they look, also, for just that sort of communities in which to invest, is well known. They know that if a community will go ahead and build a railroad, it will go ahead and build itself, thus making the railroad to it a valuable property. This is the thing for Oregon communities need in transportation facilities to take up, and to look at. Help yourselves, and the Harrimans can't avoid helping you." These remarks point out the only way, or at least the only sure and speedy way, by which to get needed railroads built. The Harrimans are like the Lord in one respect: They help states and regions that help themselves. They will build fast enough if they see the people moving earnestly to do so and determined at the same time to hold them to the responsibility which they should assume—Journal.

Political warfare at the general elections in Oregon will commence much earlier hereafter than was the case before the direct primary nominations law was passed, for the act provides that there shall be a primary election 45 days before the general election. The next primaries in this state will be held in April of 1906. The campaign will begin much earlier, for the candidates will have to make themselves solid with the people many days before the primaries. Hence it is not at all unlikely that there will be campaigners among the people as early as February while in March the woods will be full of them. In the good old days when the conventions did the work there was nothing to do other than to elect delegates. The candidates were still in the background. The conventions were held about a month before the day of election, and the actual campaign on the part of the candidates did not begin until after the nominations had been made by the conventions. But now these days are of yore and the candidate who hopes to be the nominee of his party by the vote at the primaries must sail forth upon the highways and byways early in the game. Yea, before the last of winter's sable train has melted into the viewless air. There will be fences to build, signatures to get; support to rustle from the great plains of voters. Indeed, he will be a busy man, and if he is successful at the primaries he must do it all over again and convince the populace that the nominee of the opposite political primaries are inferior to him. Wherefore must he battle for office from the break of the cold, bleak months until the torrid rays of advancing summer slant across his fevered brow.—Roseburg Plaindealer.

Additional Locals

Mrs. R. S. Price left yesterday to attend the Portland exposition.

Frank Rodman was in the city the first of the week from Madras with a load of this year's grain.

Thos. Sharp, Jr. returned this morning from Portland where he has been spending a couple of weeks on a visit to the exposition.

C. M. Elkins returned yesterday from a ten days' visit at the Portland exposition. Mrs. Elkins and son remained in Portland and will return later.

Miss May Horgan, who has been spending several months visiting with relatives in Portland and the Willamette Valley, returned home Wednesday.

The new wing to the public school building is nearly completed, the outside work having been finished this week. The interior will be completed and ready for occupancy by the time the fall term begins next month.

Mrs. N. E. Vaughn and son, J. M. Vaughn, of Mitchell, were in the city this week with a load of canned raspberries and honey, which they disposed of very readily. They will bring over another load next week.

S. E. Hodges and wife and Miss Gertie and Otto Hodges and Orange Hodges and wife and D. E. Hendrickson and wife returned yesterday from a three weeks' trip to the Mohawk, where they went to secure their winter supply of blackberries.

B. Gatewood and Prof. Jerome Harris, representing the National Art company of Portland, arrived in the city yesterday. Messrs. Gatewood and Harris expect to locate in this city and will open a studio. They are making a specialty of water color and pastel work and also enlarge pictures.

Elders C. P. Bailey and J. W. Mount arrived in the city Saturday and have been conducting a series of special meetings in the Union church. They will close the meetings tonight and leave Saturday morning for Culver, where they will hold services Sunday, both morning and evening.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The Journal offers to new subscribers or those who pay up arrears, a year's subscription to both the Town and Country Journal and the American Farmer, all three for $1.50. Both of the latter are live, progressive magazines, full of good reading matter, and each issue is replete with interesting articles on a variety of subjects. This offer is limited for only a short time.

Grain growers in Sherman and Gilliam counties are soon to test the advantage of the states portage road. They will ship this year's production of wheat by that route, if it is available, and thus save a considerable sum in freight alone. The one objection to this method of reaching a market is the difficulty encountered in reaching the terminus on the river at the Big Eddy by the steamboats.

MARRIED.

At the residence of W. R. McFarland in this city Wednesday evening, August 23, Miss Annie Wilburn to Mr. Chas. Shepard, Justice of the Peace, J. L. Luckey performed the ceremony.

Sickening Shivering Fits.

Of Ague and Malaria, can be relieved and cured with Electrical Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine of special benefit in malaria, for it exerts a true curative influence on the disease, driving it entirely out of the system. It is much to be preferred to Quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. E. S. Munday, of Henrietta, Texas, writes: "My brother was very low malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electrical Bitters, which saved his life. At J. H. Templeton and D. P. Adamson's drug stores; price 50c, guaranteed."

Spofford, the Up-to-Date Shoemaker

Has added to his equipment a new machine which renders it possible to replace shoe tips, bellows tongues and elastic gorings in Congress gaiters, and repair ripped seams at a price less than one-half of what has been paid heretofore. Don't throw away any more boots and shoes for want of first class repairs but bring your work to Spofford and save money.

Death of William Heisler

William Heisler, a former resident of this city, died at his home in Dufur last week at the age of 77.

Mr. Heisler was born in Eastern Pennsylvania, in Schuylkill county, April 13, 1828, and was married December 4, 1851, to Martha McConnell, who survives him.

They crossed the plains with other emigrants in 1852, settling in Marion county of this state. Shortly afterward they moved to Lane county, near Eugene, where they remained until 1870, when they moved to Prineville, now in Crook county, but then forming a part of Wasco. Here he engaged in the mercantile business until 1882, when he moved to Dufur, where he resided for the past 23 years.

He leaves nine children, the eldest, Monroe, residing in Dufur. The rest of the children residing in Dufur and vicinity are Susan Vanderpool, Mary Vanderpool, Alex Heisler, J. D. Heisler, Mrs. Kate Howell, Wm. Heisler and Mrs. Anna McAtee and Lou Cary of North Yakima, Washington.

A Grim Tragedy.

is daily enacted, in thousands of homes, as Death claims, in one another victim of Consumption or Pneumonia. But when Coughs and Colds are properly treated, the tragedy is averted. F. G. Huntley, of Oaklandon, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and today she is well and strong." It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. Guaranteed at 50c and $1.00 by J. H. Templeton and D. P. Adamson druggists. Trial bottle free.
