We have been reliably informed that Dr. Patterson, who was here a few weeks ago looking over the beef situation, went out to W. W. Brown's Wagonfire ranch with a view to buying Mr. Brown out, and offered him $110,000 for his interests in this and Harney counties, sheep, horses and land.—Lakeview Examiner.

He expects to spend some little time in this city before returning to his Eastern Oregon home.—Albany Herald.

The county court at its session last week in passing favorably upon the petition for the Frank Elkins road also granted that part of the petition which prayed for a vacating of the Jenkins road from a point at the beginning of the Elkins road to the north-end of Fifth street in the town of Palmar. The matter did not appear on record in the commissioner's docket and in consequence was not published by The Journal in its summary of the court proceedings.

The river counties in Eastern Oregon comprising Morrow, Gilliam, Sherman and Wasco, will this year turn out a wheat crop approximately 1,000,000 bushels smaller than that of last year. Unfortunately climatic conditions last winter and spring, and even this summer, were the prime factors in this shrinkage, but an unusually large amount of land in summer fallow contributed to the result. The crop has not been fully harvested yet, and this estimate may be increased.—Dalles Chronicle.

The first case of sheep shooting recorded in Wheeler county this year took place a few days ago on the mountain near the Keeton saw mill, about ten miles above Mitchell, when a band of sheep belonging to Butler Bros. was shot into, and about 200 head killed and wounded. Particulars are not to hand, except that the sheep are reported to have been grazing on government land, and had not passed over the "dead line" established by the settlers of that neighborhood.—Fossil Journal.

W. F. Shanafelt, special staff photographer for the Oregonian, is in the city and is making his headquarters with J. W. Bledsoe at the latter's gallery. He and Mr. Bledsoe will be in Prineville about two months longer, when the latter will move his family to California, Mr. Shanafelt returning to Portland.

Forest fires in the northern division of the Cascade Forest Reserve have made the atmosphere around the city heavy with smoke during the past few days. There are no fires in the southern division of the reserve, according to Supervisor Ireland, who came from that district this week. While there during the last of July and fore part of August, he helped to extinguish 19 different fires which had been started by lightning bolts during the storms. The Albany papers report heavy fires in eastern Lin county, and in Crook county at the eastern base of Mt. Jefferson, several large fires are consuming the timber. Several smaller fires are visible at a point farther south, and the west winds are giving this vicinity the benefit of all the smoke.

Mrs. B. F. Huntington, of The Dalles, who is in the city visiting with her sister, Mrs. Fred Wilson, received word last Saturday that their residence had been destroyed by fire. The blaze originated from a small bonfire in an alley about 11 o'clock in the morning. A heavy wind was blowing and sparks from the fire in the alley are supposed to have been blown under a nearby barn which was soon a mass of flames. The Huntington residence only a short distance away, was next destroyed and burning embers were carried six blocks distant to another residence. The latter was also burned to the ground together with several other barns and small buildings in the vicinity. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

S. C. Bartrum, forest supervisor of the southern division of the Cascade Forest Reserve, who is well known among the stockmen in this vicinity, and who has visited the city several times, nearly lost his life last week in attempting to ford the North Umpqua river. Mr. Bartrum was on a tour of inspection through the reserve and was compelled to cross the stream to get to his destination. Two points in the river where it was safe to ford lay six miles on either side of him, and in order to gain time, he attempted to swim his horse across the river at a point where he had been warned of the danger attending. The animal was swept from under him by the swift water and carried down the falls a short distance below where its life was crushed out by the sharp rocks and boulders. When thrown from the horse's back Mr. Bartrum succeeded in getting to quieter water and swam to shore, although the current came near carrying him to his destruction.

Crook County Well Represented.

Crook county is now well represented in the Agricultural building at the Lewis and Clark fair by a series of landscape views which were placed on exhibition the first of the month by J. W. Bledsoe. The photographs were taken in various parts of the county and include views of the irrigation belt and surrounding country as well as views of many of the fine ranches along the Ochoco. The city of Prineville is shown to good advantage from a point southeast of the city overlooking the race track and fair grounds and there are many other views of interesting sections. The collection of photographs occupy a prominent place in the Crook county booth where they attract the attention of nearly every passerby. In preparing the work Mr. Bledsoe exercised care that the views should show to best advantage the productiveness of the soil and the inroads that development has been making here during the past few years, and his photographs as a result are a great advertiser for this section. Three of the views of the irrigated section in the Daschutes country were reproduced with descriptive matter in last Sunday's Oregonian and another series of views will appear in next Sunday's issue. The work was highly complimented by the officials in charge and Mr. Bledsoe has been commissioned to obtain as many more views as is possible. The latter work to be done not only for an exhibit at the fair, but for the railroad and irrigation officers who saw the photographs.

MARRIED.

On Tuesday evening, August 15, at 8 o'clock there occurred a very pretty home wedding in the parlor of the Hamilton Hotel, when Mr. Jay Saltzman and Miss Ethel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hamilton, were made one. Rev. J. K. Craig, "throwing the Diamond Hitch" which bound them together for weal or woe. As the couple entered the parlor, Miss Vera Howard, a cousin of the bride, sounded the wedding march. The parlors were tastefully decorated with carnations and roses. The bride was attired in white chiffon and carried a bouquet of carnations. Miss Edna Hamilton, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Ben Taylor acted as best man.—Antelope Herald.

Death of Josiah Hinkle

The death of Josiah Hinkle last Sunday morning removed from the county another of its pioneer settlers and one who for many years was engaged in active business here.

Mr. Hinkle was born in Lee county, Iowa, in 1843, and at the time of his death was 62 years of age. When ten years of age, he came across the plains with his grandparents and settled in Oregon, and ten years afterwards his face was a familiar one along the line of settlements from the Idaho line into northern California. In 1870 Mr. Hinkle moved to Corvallis where he filled the office of deputy sheriff until his removal to Crook county in 1877. Soon after coming here he engaged in cattle raising, a business which he followed successfully for 18 years. In 1882 Mr. Hinkle was the democratic candidate for sheriff of Wasco county, of which Crook was then a part.

His death was due to enlargement of the heart, an affliction which caused him intense suffering before he finally passed away. A son, Siebel, and a daughter, Vivian, survive him. The funeral services were conducted at the residence in this city Monday afternoon, interment taking place in the Odd Fellow and Workman cemetery. The Rev. C. P. Bailey, of The Dalles, conducted the services.

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by D. P. Adamson.
