Frank Glass was a business visitor Saturday from Forest where he is selling D. I. & P. Co's land for E. S. Cook. Mr. Glass said since he began selling there this spring over 15,000 acres had been disposed of, and that indications pointed to a clean up of all the company's segregation in that vicinity before winter set in. There is a steady influx of settlers and land buyers to the section, nearly all of whom purchase from 40 to 100 acres.

The authorities claim to have very strong evidence against the Edmondsons, who are confined in the county jail here awaiting trial in circuit court for malicious sheep-killing. There will probably be a large turnout to hear the trial, which promises to be of intense interest to stockmen and others. As Monday, September 4th, is a legal holiday, circuit will not convene until the following day.—Fossil Journal.

Fire has been burning in the timber on the mountains surrounding the head of John Day valley for several weeks, and it is reported that much timber has been destroyed. The flames that had apparently died out, were fanned to life by the high wind last Sunday, and for a distance of several miles the timber in the mountains on the head of Hall creek was ablaze. It is reported that a band of sheep ranging in that locality were surrounded by the flames and a part of the band perished.—Canyon City Eagle.

The forest fires have afforded a grand spectacle to the people of Madras and vicinity. There has been a fierce forest fire raging on the south side of Mt. Jefferson for the last two weeks, which is visible every evening. When it first began, it would burn up to some height in some very light, dry material, and it looked like red fire, and then die down again. This would be repeated several times, which brought to the minds of several there a statement in the Evening Telegram of the Mt. Hood mystery. But now it is a large, steady blaze, destroying much timber.

Albert Noble of Beaver Creek, Crook county, a son of George Noble, one of the cattle kings of that section, is in Albany on a visit with old friends. The Noble family formerly resided near Lebanon, and in the early part of the 70s went to Crook county, where they have prospered and attained to influential positions. They now own thousands of cattle on the Crook county hills and are enjoying life. The family is one of the best in Crook county, and they have many friends throughout the Willamette valley. Mr. Noble, after visiting Albany friends, expects to spend some time at the exposition before again crossing the mountains for his Eastern Oregon home.—Albany Herald.

Postmaster Summers calls attention to the strict orders which have been issued by the postal department prohibiting the transmission of indecent postal cards through the mails. Mr. Summers has found it necessary recently to return several cards which had been mailed at the local office and serves notice that the offenders will have to be reported to the postal inspector. There is a heavy penalty attached to the violation of the law prohibiting the mailing of indecent literature or pictures either in envelopes or on postal cards, and the postal authorities are not slow about tracing up a matter of this kind. The local office is compelled under the regulations to report a violation of the law.

J. F. Fry, who resides on Beech creek, was arrested in this city Wednesday afternoon by Sheriff Ambrose on a warrant received from Sheriff Smith, of Crook county, in which he was charged with the larceny of a gelding and mare. He was given quarters in the county jail awaiting the arrival of Sheriff Smith, when he will be taken to Prineville to have his preliminary hearing. Mr. Fry says that the charge against him does not amount to anything. The accused man has been a resident of the John Day valley for many years and those who know him in this county are slow to believe him guilty of any such charge. He has always borne an excellent reputation, and his friends hope to see him establish his innocence.—Canyon City Eagle.

Machinery for a new planing mill, which is to be erected by J. B. Shipp, will arrive in the city in a few days. Mr. Shipp ordered the necessary articles while in Portland last week and the shipment now lies in Shalako ready to be sent in here. The new plant will be put up at the end of Fourth street, west of the ball grounds, on the south bank of the Ochoco. The machinery now in use at the planing mill on the south side of the city will be moved to the location and will be run by steam, a 50 horse power engine having been ordered to do the work. Mr. Shipp is compelled to make the change owing to his growing business and the fact that power from Crooked river is rather uncertain. He expects to have his plant moved and the new machinery erected and in running order inside of a few weeks.

Don't forget the closing out sale at J. F. Morris', for the way they are selling it will not last long. Many thousands of dollars worth of goods, including Dry Goods, Groceries, Wagons, Buggies and Hacks are included in the sale. Your special attention is called to the sale of buggies as having a large lot of them on hand a big cut in prices has been made to close them out, also a small reduction on the Schuttler wagon which is sold at a very small profit. Owing to the excellent material used in this wagon it is valued for its superior strength, great endurance, light build and light draft, all of which make it one of the most satisfactory wagons that can be bought.

Petroleum has been found for the second time in the Haystack district, the latest strike having been made on the E. A. Jenkins ranch, one mile and a half north-east of the D. W. Barnett property, where a petroleum well was bonded by Portland men early last spring. Mr. Jenkins drilled a well on his ranch last February and work was discontinued at a depth of 102 feet. Not until the first of last month was any water pumped from the shaft when it was found that the water smelled and tasted strongly of petroleum, besides showing plainly on its surface. At the present time about 60 gallons of water is being pumped from the well daily, and as the supply is decreased the petroleum indications assert themselves with greater freedom. Mr. Jenkins states that the formation through which the shaft has been sunk is similar to that on the Barnett property, the drilling having been continued through a soft rock which cracks and crumbles when brought to the surface and exposed to the air. He intends to sink the well deeper in the hopes of striking a flow of petroleum.

MARRIED.

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by D. P. Adamson.

Funeral of Charles Derham.

The funeral services of Charles Derham, who died suddenly at Madras last week, were conducted at the Union church last Friday by the Rev. J. T. Moore. Interment took place in the Union cemetery. The Madras Pioneer gives the following account of his death:

Charles Derham, of the Derham & Cowles sawmill, died very suddenly in this city Wednesday night from heart trouble. He had been in town several days doctoring, though he had been up the greater part each day and did not think himself seriously ill. Mr. Derham sat on the porch about an hour after supper before going to bed at the hotel Wednesday evening, but was found dead about 7:30 this morning, that being his customary time for arising. The body was still warm. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.
