At a meeting of the owners of the coal mining property near Hay Creek held in this city Monday, it was decided to continue work on the property as a present mapped out. Several tunnels are being sunk on the different mines, the deepest one will be down about 50 feet the latter part of the week. It is expected to strike the vein of coal at this depth below the sandstone formation and a better idea secured of its character and paying qualities. Considerable interest is being manifested in this as it depends upon the results obtained whether further work on the property will be continued or not.
