

CROOK COUNTY ALL RIGHT

Crop Conditions Good at this Time.

SOME FINE EXHIBITS

Call at the Telephone Exchange and See the Samples of Grain.

A recent visit was made to the country embraced from Powell Buttes to the country around Lamonta, and as far as Madras and Culver, shows the crops to be in good condition at this writing.

All the farmers around Powell Buttes have good crops of both hay and grain. The gardens also seem to be in a good growing condition.

Alfalfa farmers on lower Crooked river while not having extra heavy crops at the first cutting have an extra heavy one for their second crop and if present weather conditions hold for a short time pasture will be better than usual in the districts irrigated.

The grain around Grizzly Butte is good and barley is a fine crop as far as Lamonta. From there to Culver several fall wheat crops are especially good and as more acreage is in grain this year than usual as much grain as was sold as surplus last year will be available this fall. So far as can be learned there are none who have any fields that will not be cut for hay or grain. While crops are not up to the expectation of farmers or to the predictions made during June, there is not expected to be any shortage in feed, grain or hay, with the possible exception of No. 1 milling wheat.

Samples of Grain and Grasses on Exhibition.

There is on exhibition at the telephone office some fine exhibits of what Crook county can produce in an off year. The hot weather this season has been very hard on crops, but notwithstanding its effects the showing made is a great surprise.

A sample of Little Club wheat from the Palmein place on Willow Creek shows an excellent grade of wheat. It is clean, bright and plump. The hot weather does not seem to have materially effected this stand of grain.

Some good samples of oats, barley, beardless barley, etc., were taken from Ed Holmes' place six miles east of Madras. Grain is by no means a failure on his place.

Rye is an excellent crop in Crook county this year. Samples seven feet high with heads six inches long are on exhibition. The heads are fully developed. The kernels are plump and clean. Four stools were taken from one field without any special effort to pick the best, and when the stalks were counted the largest stool had 108 and the smallest 96. These were all taken from Robert Barnett's place near Culver.

Bunch grass from the Draper claim near Lamonta makes a good showing. The samples measure thirty-two inches in height. The field from which it was taken was pastured off in April so the growth shown by the samples has been phenomenal.

Some fine alfalfa from Henry Windom's place in the Haystack country is shown. One stool between three and four feet high contains 132 stalks. This was its first year and was raised from volunteer seed. Another stool measured 54 in height but did not contain near as many stalks. All this, mind you, was done without irrigation.

Speltz, a new forage plant in this county, seems to do well here, judging from the samples shown. This plant is highly recommended by the United States Agricultural Department and we would be glad to see more of our farmers take up its cultivation.

Bring in your samples, people of Crook county, so that your neighbors may know what you are doing. Leave them at the telephone office and Mr. Summers will take pleasure in making as attractive display as is possible with the samples on hand. These exhibits will help you, help your neighbor and help the county at large. Strangers visiting Prineville cannot help but be favorably impressed with a good showing of what Crook county can produce.

Prof. Travers delivered an excellent lecture last Friday evening at the M. E. Church on the subject of "The School and the Boy." The subject was handled in a manner that was both entertaining and instructive. Just enough statistics were given to show what enormous sums were spent for tobacco, liquor, etc., and what a measly bagatelle in comparison was spent on the education of our boys and girls.

In speaking of successful schools Mr. Travers says that three things are essential, namely, wideawake directors, the proper public sentiment and plenty of cash. There was a fair sized audience present but every father and mother in Prineville should have heard the lecture.

Sheriff Frank Elkins of Crook county passed through the city last Friday, on his way to the Hot Springs at Carson, Wash., where he was taking his mother-in-law, Mrs. M. E. Logan, for treatment for rheumatism says the Antelope Herald. He returned on Monday and spent the night here, attending to some legal business. In speaking of his recent capture of stock rustlers, he said that the chances were good for sending them over the road, and that others are likely to follow. He is determined to wipe out the stock thieves in Eastern Oregon and put a stop to the lawlessness that has been rampant so long, and to that end is quietly gathering evidence and information as to the whereabouts of certain parties who have been lying low for some time past. Sufficient evidence is already possessed to convict some of these parties, and it is only a matter of time when they will be caught. There are others who can be had when wanted, for the authorities are keeping tabs on them, and they will be asked to explain a few things that looked very peculiar to the court. It has always been a mystery how one party in particular escaped being held to the grand jury for horse stealing. The incident is apparently closed, and the party is supposed to be leading an "honest, upright life," but the court records still exist, and there are those who remember how this man and others squirmed out of a tight place. It is this class of men as well as those who are at present openly defying the law, that Sheriff Elkins and the other officers of Oregon are watching, and their time is coming.
