Good News for Central Oregon.

The Central Oregon Railroad is no longer a myth. That Prineville will be connected with the outside world by steel rails within a few years is beyond question. The very road that will do us the most good is the one that is surely coming. The surveys have been going on all summer and now comes the announcement in a telegram to the Oregonian as follows:

The projected road through Central Oregon, to connect with the Corvallis & Eastern, owned by A. B. Hammond, is placing its bonds on this market, and it is probable that they will be listed on the Stock Exchange in the near future. The Corvallis & Eastern is 130 miles long, from Yaquina Bay, on the coast, to Idanha, in the Cascade Range, and the extension to Snake river to Ontario, or a point near that place, will add some 300 miles to the road.

The name by which the extension is commonly known here is the Central Railway of Oregon. It is understood that the new project will use the rights of way through the state acquired by the Oregon Central & Eastern, which was building over the same route 15 years ago, and whose project collapsed, and was afterward bought, road and all, for $100,000 by A. B. Hammond, who changed the name to Corvallis & Eastern. The projected road will pass through a part of Oregon which now has no rail facilities, connecting with the O. R. & N. and Union Pacific system on Snake river and with the Southern Pacific in the Willamette Valley at Albany. The road is to be bonded at $20,000 a mile, which, considering the nature of the country, is considered moderate.

Hitherto, New York has not heard much of this project, but it has been considerably impressed since the bonds have been in the market here. The line of the road, if it should follow the old Central & Eastern right of way, will traverse a productive region.

It is thought that arrangements will be completed within the next 30 days for financing the project. The foregoing dispatch is in line with Mr. Hammond's announced intention, recently expressed by him to the Oregonian, of extending his Corvallis & Eastern through Eastern Oregon to Snake river. Mr. Hammond, when in Portland several weeks ago, said that he planned to build next year, when he expected to have financial arrangements complete, and to secure an adequate supply of labor.

Bruin Visits Big Plain.

A big brown bear weighing probably about 300 pounds was killed on Agency Plains last Sunday by Charles Dillon and Alfred Parkey, who shot him with a 22 calibre rifle. While big game hunters are scouring the mountains in the upper Deschutes and around the berry patches on the Santiam and McKenzie Rivers, two lucky ranchers on the plains can tell a story of big game hunting here at home, which will doubtless discount any stories of the chase that may be brought home from the mountains.

At Alf Parkey's homestead last Sunday, Charles Dillon and Parkey noticed a large animal crossing the Parkey field with a lumbering gait, and the animal was soon identified by them as a bear. They only had a small calibre rifle in the house, but mounting their horses they gave chase, and riding around Bruin, shot him with the 22 rifle and killed him. He was a monster brown bear, weighing possibly 300 pounds or more, and when he stood on his hind legs he was as tall as a man. Agency Plains is a populous farming community, and that Bruin should venture to cross it as he would his native wilds was in the opinion of the ranchers on the plains, justly punished by death. This is probably the first bear that has crossed the plains in a quarter of a century or longer. His presence there can only be explained by the supposition that he was driven out of his haunts in the mountains by forest fires, and seeking new stamping grounds, crossed the Deschutes and climbed the high rimrocks to the plains above.—Madras Pioneer.

Success results from two things—opportunity and preparedness.
