Crook County Journal

THURSDAY, JAN. 24, 1907.

Subscription $1.50 a year.

Oh, what a frost at Powell Buttes. Only one man signed the petition for county division. The anti-division speakers were cheered to the echo. That was a hard jolt for Bend.

Jonathan Bourne Jr., was elected United States Senator for the long term and F. W. Mulkey, United States Senator for the short term at Salem Tuesday. The direct primary law is triumphant. The will of the people is supreme.

As the location of the county seat at Bend for five years is only temporary, says the Bulletin, "after which time it will be permanently located by the people." How innocent. What better "cinch" does Bend want than five years?

What's the matter with Redmond as a location for a county seat? It is a live, wide-awake little town and is just as eligible for county seat honors as Bend. Speak out, Redmond, you are entirely too modest. Your blatant neighbor may hog the prize.

The Bend Bulletin does not say anything about the $371,000 extra money to be raised for state purposes this year. It knows Crook county must pay its share of this besides the regular state tax. Why not be honest with your readers, Bulletin, and explain this matter?

The Bend Bulletin, in speaking of the advantages of county division, says "all moneys expended will go to legitimate uses in the building of roads, bridges, etc." Is that so. Where do the grafters come in who are now working for county division? Nothing for county officials? They would drop it like a hot potato if that were true. Wonder if the west side people swallow such twaddle?

Forty per cent of the whole amount raised in taxes last year in Crook county were spent upon the roads. Of this amount Western Crook received $5000 more than Eastern Crook. Yet the Bend Bulletin would have you believe it got nothing. Get your ear close to the ground, Bulletin, and you will hear the rumbling of protest from all parts of the county against division.

The people of Western Crook should read carefully the result of the investigation into county affairs by one of their own neighbors. Mr. Street of Sisters, makes a vigorous protest against county division. The movement, in his opinion, is one that has been forced upon the people by designing persons, and his letter to his neighbors voices his wrath and indignation at the duplicity practiced by the Drake News Bureau. He uses some pretty strong language, but the occasion demands it.

A FIZZLE

The County Division Meeting at Powell Buttes Proves a Boomerang.

Oh, what a frost the county divisionists got at Powell Buttes Monday night! Gee, but it was chilly for the sixteen spell-binders that were to lambaste Prineville on any old thing that would go down with the people of Powell Buttes. Very little went down, however. The lies about roads, double taxation, double assessments and no assessments and other kinds of rascality of which the people here were accused fell upon indifferent ears. The people knew better. They considered the arguments advanced by the divisionists an insult to their intelligence. W. P. Myers of the Laidlaw Chronicle was handing them out right and left when the Prineville delegation walked into the meeting. Mr. Myers evidently did not know the late comers for he kept right along making statements that were without the slightest foundation. When it came to Judge Bell's turn he loosened up on Myers with facts and figures that fairly took away his breath. The lies about county roads were rammed down Myers' throat so hard that his eyes stuck out. The facts and figures were taken from the roadmaster's report and could not be refuted. The lies about Assessor Lafollette were shown to be equally false and malicious. The difference in value between the Blue Mountains and Deschutes timber was made so evident that even the Drake cohorts hung their heads with shame. They felt like the proverbial "two-spot." They were dumfounded with the turn things had taken. Instead of cheers and hand-clapping which they had expected they got contempt. There was no enthusiasm until the Prineville delegation unlimbered and then there was plenty of it. The boasted anti-division meeting fell flat and the Bend speakers slunk out of town. It is said that they got one signer to their petition.

From Powell Buttes the Prineville delegation went to Sisters so that the truth might be made plain at the Sisters meeting called for Tuesday evening. It was a repetition of the Powell Buttes affair. The same old lies told in the same old way were hurled back with increased vigor. The "no division" sentiment at Sisters is just as pronounced as at Powell Buttes. Only one or two signers were obtained. If Prineville had taken up the cudgel sooner there would have been nothing to this county division question.

influence of the newspaper at that place has been secured by sprinkling a little salt on its tail.

Bend is to get the temporary county seat for five years, and no court house is to be erected during that time. The word "temporary" is surplussage, and is put in to sound nice, and not flush the game too soon; it pleases the big timber interests, as they will escape being taxed to build a court house either in Crook county or the new county. Within the five years there will be sufficient settlement south and east to make us certain of the permanent county seat.

It was found convenient to get the help of the politicians north of Crooked river, and they are to have a new county cut from the northern part of Crook. The people of that region are too poor to support a new county at this time, but a few people around Madras think it will help their town to have a county seat—it sounds nice—and the hungry want an office. We desired their aid as trading stock, and will help them only so far as it will be useful to us.

By the help of the Lumber Trust, the D. I. & P. Co. and other means, we have secured promises from a majority of the members of the legislature to support the measure; especially has the delegation from Portland been properly fixed. The matter has in reality been settled, but it is advisable that it be made to appear that the great majority of the people are in favor of the new county.

Let every citizen of Bend be a committee to talk and work. Come down heavy on the meanness of Prineville—how that she is building a court house by taxing the timber trust—that she does not spend money on our roads; (we have no roads located, but talk just the same.) Talk of the unselfish public spirit of Mr. Drake and the citizens of Bend—that they want no offices, and are compelled to accept the burden of temporary county seat because it must be located somewhere. To a resident of Redmond, show him that in five years the country around that town will be so thickly settled that it will be sure of the county seat, and make a similar speech to the people of Laidlaw.

Old Crook county is entirely too large for one county—84 miles north and south, and 100 miles east
