KILLED

Blown Into the Matoes River.

BODY NOT FOUND

The Horse He was Riding Striped on a Stick of Dynamite.

This community was greatly shocked Monday to learn that Homer M. Street of Sisters, Or., was instantly killed by an explosion of dynamite. Both himself and the horse he was riding were thrown into the swift-running Matoes river. The horse was found badly mutilated about half a mile below the place where the accident happened, but diligent search has not been able to find any trace of the missing man.

The only authentic details of the accident were taken from a letter written by Mrs. Street to friends in Prineville. The letter was dated April 1st. It says:

An awful calamity happened Saturday afternoon. My husband was killed by the accidental discharge of dynamite under his horse's feet.

He brought some dynamite home a month ago and left it in a sack by the road about a quarter of a mile from the house, near the place where he expected to use it. He was afraid to bring it to the house for fear the children would get hold of it.

Saturday afternoon he was out on horseback looking for cows. On his return his attention was attracted by the barking of the dogs at a tree on the river bank which was about a hundred yards away from the road. Gussie, our oldest daughter, was also making her way to the tree, carrying her brother's little shotgun. Gussie stood on the side of the tree next the river and as my husband rode around the tree to where my daughter stood his horse stepped on a stick of dynamite which exploded, throwing both horse and rider into the Matoes. The river at this point is both deep and swift. No trace of my husband can be found. Nothing but a piece of the saddle he rode was left to tell the awful story of the accident. The carcass of the horse was found by neighbors about half a mile below the place where the accident happened.

Just what dragged the sack of dynamite away from the place where it was hidden is conjecture. Some think it was the dogs and others think it was wild animals. The sack was found all torn and the dynamite scattered around on the ground. Neighbors are still searching for the body of my husband.

Nothing in the letter was said about the age of Mr. Street but from friends living in Prineville it was learned that he was about 45 years old. He came to Crook county about ten years ago from Grant county, and has a brother living at Prairie City. He leaves a wife and four children. One boy and three girls. The boy is the oldest and is 15 years of age. Every effort will be made to recover the body.

Bondholders May Get the Ditches

If a proposition made to Governor George E. Chamberlain is agreed to and is viewed with favor by the State Land Board, the much discussed Columbia Southern Irrigation Company will pass into the hands of the bondholders, such an arrangement having been entered into between stockholders of the corporation and the persons who bought the bonds.

A meeting with Governor Chamberlain was held, and the proposal was gone into at considerable length, and while none of those connected with the matter care to hazard an opinion, it is understood the plan promulgated met with the ideas advanced by Governor Chamberlain, who wishes to have the difficulty straightened out so the original contract between the Land Board and the company will be carried out.

Among the principal bondholders are: P. E. Willis, Guy Willis, Wilson & Smith, Moore Brothers, W. O. Laidlaw, H. C. Leonard, T. W. Clark and I. A. Yerex. So far about 14,000 acres of the land in question has been disposed of but not nearly all of it is under cultivation. If the state officials agree to the proposition offered it will mean the completion of the reclamation project, including the extension of ditches, establishment of additional reservoirs and in fact every improvement as first acquiesced to under the contract.

"From all information obtainable by us, the settlers have been satisfied," said one of the bondholders. "One or two of them have complained, but notwithstanding reports to the contrary, there has been sufficient water furnished all lands under cultivation last year. In fact some of the settlers demanded and received water for lands that were not under cultivation."

Some of the bondholders are suspicious as to the reason for objections being made in the first place, for they allege certain settlers made a proposition to buy the property and plant of the company and on a price being set they were unable to raise the funds. Then legal steps were threatened and soon after filings were made on other reservoir sites, which bondholders allege was a move to control the facilities in the hope that the property could be secured through the courts. The commencement of a suit means the project will be tied up for an indefinite period and that the settlers would be without water. At the same time it would prevent the bondholders from securing their interest and rather than see the plant interfered with, it is contended the move for a new management was decided on.

Interest on the bonds is not due until May, and according to the contract under which they were sold, the company has 60 days thereafter in which to meet the obligation. For that reason, it is pointed out, the bondholders could not take independent action and the proposed plan is therefore one in which bondholders and stockholders have participated.—Portland Telegram.

Official Dates for Wool Sales.

The official dates for wool sales in Eastern Oregon have been set as follows:

- Pendleton—May 22 and 23, and June 7.
- Hepburn—May 28 and 29, June 18.
- Shaniko—June 10, 11 and 26, July 16.
- Condon—June 21.
- Baker City—July 9.
- Elgin—July 11.

In view of the fact that but little if any contracting for wool is being done this year, practically the entire Eastern Oregon clip will be offered for sale at the dates above named.

THE NEW

SHEEP LAW

State Inspector Lytle Issues Statement.

THE REGULATION DIP

All Sheep Must Be in the Vat from Two to Three Minutes.

April first the recently enacted sheep law went into effect and as a result all sheep in the state, whether afflicted with scab or not, will have to be dipped.

Those found affected will require dipping twice. The dipping must be done between shearing time and the time when the sheep are started for the summer ranges in the mountains.

As the Slusher bill contained the emergency clause it will not have to wait 90 days before going into effect.

Under the terms of the new law all dipping is to be carried on under the supervision of the federal inspectors who will work in cooperation with the state sheep commission.

In this state there are about 2,500,000 sheep and in order to properly superintend the dipping Dr. Lytle states that he will require the services of about 20 deputies in addition to those now under him. In dipping the stockmen must use one of the sixteen dips officially recognized by the bureau of animal industry.

The bill requiring dipping was passed in hopes that a thorough dipping of all the sheep in the state will so obliterate the scab that the present federal quarantine may be raised. Since this is the case, it is desired to have the work done effectively, and according to Dr. Lytle, the dipping will be done as near a perfect manner as possible. After the dipping in the spring the sheep will be carefully inspected before their return from the summer ranges and all found infected must be dipped again before being allowed to go upon the winter ranges.

The dipping will begin early in May under federal inspection and there will be no expense to the owners except that of providing for the vats and dipping mixtures. The old lime sulphur dip can be used and any of the 16 recognized dips approved by the government can all be used if according to the requirements.

The old lime-sulphur dip is mixed as follows: Twenty-four pounds of sulphur and eight pounds of unslacked lime added to 100 gallons of water, to be heated for at least two hours under a temperature of from 105 to 110 degrees Fahrenheit. In order to make the expense reasonable in the case of the smaller sheepmen of the Willamette valley, it has been suggested by Dr. Lytle that the owners get together and purchase a portable dip, which could be used by all the sheep owners of a certain community.

Dr. W. H. Lytle of Pendleton, is state sheep inspector. He is a graduate veterinarian of the Iowa State college at Ames, Iowa, and has had six years practical experience since graduation. Four of these were spent in the federal service, the last three being in this state in connection with the bureau of animal industry.

Owing to the fact that so many erroneous reports have been published in the different state papers concerning the new sheep laws and the requirements in regard to dipping, Dr. Lytle, state inspector, sent to this paper the following statement and he would appreciate very much if the different county papers throughout the state would copy it. He says:

"The new Oregon law provides that all sheep within the state shall be dipped during the year, between the months of April and August.

"All sheep that are free from scab will be dipped once, but all that are found infected must be dipped twice. In this annual dipping, no dips shall be used except those that are recognized by the government, a list of which may be had upon application to the state sheep inspector or to inspectors of the bureau of animal industry. The government also permits the use of home made lime and sulphur dip, which is made from eight pounds of unslacked lime and 24 pounds of flowers of sulphur to 100 gallons of water. Where any of the tobacco dips are used it is also required that 16 pounds of sulphur be added to every 100 gallons of water.

"All this dipping must be supervised by government or state inspectors, and where dipping is done in their absence it will not be recognized as official, and another dipping will be required. Whenever anyone is ready to dip an inspector will immediately be sent to supervise the mixing of the dip and the dipping of the sheep.

"The government requires that all sheep must be in the vat from two to three minutes and that the temperature of the dip must be maintained at a temperature of from 100 to 110 degrees Fahrenheit. All scabby sheep must be dipped at their present quarters and must not be trailed to a public vat, but it is desirable that clean sheep be dipped at some central vat so that as few inspectors as possible will be required to handle them.

"For the present year, no sheep will be allowed to enter a forest reserve unless they have a certificate showing that they have been dipped by the proper officers.

"All sheep that have been reported scabby since January first, will be handled as infected sheep at dipping time, whether they have been dipped in the mean time or not. This is done so that when the annual dipping is completed there should be little danger of them breaking out with scab again."

Redmond Items.

Redmond, Ore., April 1, 1907.
If April Fool's day always came on Monday we wonder if news would always be as scarce. We got some personals, though.

C. R. McLallin is transacting business up Crooked river today. The hot beds are started and lettuce, radishes and cabbage plants are looking well.

The Iverson place was not sold as reported last week. The sale would have had to be subject to the two years' lease held by B. J. Henniger and this spoiled it all.

Ed Arnold of Sisters, was with us today on his way to Prineville. Mr. and Mrs. Walker have gone out to their farm and will live in the Redfield house while putting up one of their own.

Mr. Welch sold two of his good cows to Mr. Manderscheid.

J. O. Hansen was across the river looking up some business matters pertaining to some C. S. I. Co. land.

Mr. Merrill and Mr. Butler of Crooked river were up to see yours truly on business.

The eucher club meets this week with Mrs. McClay.

Robbie Whitney entertained friends at a birthday party Saturday.

J. C. George of Laidlaw, was talking mutual telephone lines with some of our citizens today.

Mr. and Mrs. Welch expect to go out to their new forty next week and spend a couple of weeks pulling junipers.

Mr. Muma got in after a two weeks' trip to Shaniko. Among other freight he brought in a nice line of dry goods for Ehret Brothers.

H. F. Jones has been doing some very creditable sign painting lately.

Messrs. Porter and Manderscheid were across the Deschutes looking for seed oats.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Trisler will be glad to learn that they arrived home safely after visiting several days at various points in Nebraska and Iowa. E. C. PARK.
