

STOCKMEN USE FOREST LANDS

The report of grazing in the national forests for the fiscal year 1906-1907 has been completed. The total area of all the forests is over 156,000,000 acres, but stock is not pastured in all of them. Sheep, goats, horses, and cattle are the kinds of live stock entering into the statistics. In one region cattle and horses predominate, in another sheep and goats.

Stockmen who wish to make use of the range apply for permits. They state the kind of stock they have, the quantity and location of the range they want, and the officers in charge make allotments, apportioning the available pasture among the applicants on as equitable a basis as practicable.

During the year just closed the report shows that 23,662 applicants for pasture were approved, and of these applicants 21,788 paid fees, and were granted permits. That was 92 per cent. Last year there were 18,040 applications, and 16,593 permits, 92 per cent. The fact that the percentage of permits was the same in both years tends to show that the method of transacting the business is systematic, and that great fluctuations need not be expected.

This year the total number of sheep and goats on the ranges by permit was 6,657,068, and of horses and cattle 1,200,158.

Last year the totals were, sheep and goats, 4,263,100, and horses and cattle 1,025,148.

AREA IS INCREASED.

The increase in the number of stock on the ranges for this year is due almost wholly to the increased area of the range, and does not mean that the pastures are crowded more this year than last. The total area of the forests is several million acres more this year than last, and a greater number of stock can be accommodated without an increase per acre.

Many stockmen living on the borders of forests have range of their own, but to reach it with stock it is frequently necessary, or convenient, to drive across portions of the forests. To do this they are required to obtain a permit, but no charge is made for it. This year 833 such permits were granted, and 36,807 horses and cattle, and 2,051,830 sheep and goats crossed. Last year 259 permits of that kind were issued and 12,626 horses and cattle, and 592,540 sheep crossed.

SOME TRESPASSERS

Sometimes stockmen who live near forests, or have stock near them, allow their stock to drift across the line. If this is done carelessly, negligently, or wilfully, it is considered trespass, and the offender is subject to fine, and may also be liable to pay damages. The number of trespass cases this year was 183 and 168 of these settled without going to court, that is, they paid the amount agreed upon as just. The remaining 15 had not yet been settled at the close of the fiscal year, but it is believed that most of them will do as the others have done. There is little disposition to go to law or make trouble over such matters. The total damages collected for trespass for the year was $5,576.

Another kind of permit is issued in certain cases. Sometimes a man owns land inside a forest, or partly surrounded by it, and rather than fence it to keep his stock in, he signs an agreement that if his stock is allowed to graze in the forest, other stock in the forest may graze on his land. Arrangements of that kind are frequent, and are often very convenient and satisfactory. He simply swaps his range for an equal amount of grazing outside his lines, and it is all used in common. This year 615 such permits were issued, for 15,624 horses and cattle, and 182,622 sheep and goats. Last year there were 244 similar permits, and the stock affected consisted of 18,823 horses and cattle, and 118,400 sheep and goats.

The total receipts from grazing permits for the fiscal year just closed were $858,856.83. For the preceding year the amount was $514,692.87.

The business relations between stockmen and forest officers, throughout the entire grazing region, have been pleasant and satisfactory. No serious trouble or misunderstanding occurred anywhere during the year.

Cattle Rustlers Busy

A dispatch from Lewiston Idaho says cattle rustlers have again paid their respects to Idaho. They gathered up 190 head of fine cattle from the ranges south of the Salmon river and disappeared with the entire band.

The report was received at Lewiston by Sheriff Lydon, who was instructed by the sheriff's office at Weiser to look out for a stray band of 190 cattle, which is supposed to have been driven into the Lewiston country.

Nez Perce county was the hostess for the rustlers a few weeks ago, when 135 head of cattle were gathered from the southwestern section of the county and rushed across the Snake river into the wilds of the Blue mountains of Oregon. It is believed here that an organized band is operating in the country and driving the stolen stock into the remote sections of the upper Snake river valley and adjoining mountain country.

The Irrigation Congress

Three thousand is a conservative estimate of the delegate body in the coming session of the National Irrigation Congress which meets in Sacramento, September 2-7. Every section of the country will be represented. The Atlantic and Southern and middle west states more largely than at any previous meeting. Some of the most prominent men of the nation, in every department of human activity will be present. The speakers who will address the congress, constitute as distinguished a body as ever appeared on any platform in this country. Our insular possessions and several foreign lands will be included in the list. The scope of subjects considered by the congress is broader than ever. It comprehends the whole proposition of the wise conservation and development of the basic sources of national wealth and prosperity.
