SUGGESTIONS FOR DAIRYMEN.

In a pamphlet recently issued by the dairy division of the department of agriculture at Washington, entitled "Twenty Dairy Suggestions, With Special Reference to Nutrition," the following directions are given relative to the proper care of the dairy herd. They are much to the point and should be posted up in every cow stable in the land: (1) Have the herd examined at least twice a year by a skilled veterinarian, promptly removing any animals suspected of being in bad health. Never add an animal to the herd unless certain it is free from disease, particularly tuberculosis. (2) Never allow a cow to be excited by fast driving, abusive, loud talking or unnecessary disturbances. Do not expose her to cold or storms more than necessary. (3) Clean the entire body of the cow daily, while in the region of the udder should be kept short by clipping. (4) Do not allow any strong flavored food like garlic, cabbage or turnips to be eaten except immediately after milking. Changes in food should be made gradually. (5) Provide pure fresh water in abundance, easy of access, but not too cold. Under the head of milking and handling of the milk the following suggestions are made: (1) Use no dry, dusty food just previous to milking. (2) The milker should wash his hands before milking and also see that the udder of the cow and surrounding parts are wiped with a clean damp cloth before he begins operations. (3) In milking be slow, quiet, quick, clean and thorough, commencing his milking at the same hour every morning and evening and milking the cows in the same order. (4) The milk should be carried to the milk room as fast as it accumulates and strained through cotton cloth and cooled at once to 50 degrees F. Warm milk should never be mixed with that which has already been cooled.

RENT OR BUY?

The above query is one that often confronts young people as they start housekeeping on their own account, and they are often perplexed to know which is the wiser and more economical course to pursue. While circumstances to be found in some portions of larger cities may make the plan of renting a home of one's own inadvisable, it seems to be the consensus of opinion that under average conditions those who buy are at the end of a term of years financially ahead of what they would have been had they rented a property of an equal value. Added to the fact that in a period of twelve years one would pay out in rent considerably more than the price of a house of the same value, and the satisfaction of having a home of one's own, a consideration that it is not easy to measure in dollars and cents. Moreover, where young people buy a home of their own and have to go in debt for it there is constantly present an incentive to be economical and careful in one's expenditures. Thus the putting of money into a home results in much the same conditions that prevail when one is carrying life insurance or putting money into other forms of investment. Payments must be made at stated intervals, and economy is accordingly practiced that these may be met. Where one rents a portion of the salary is devoted to this purpose, but the process goes on year after year with nothing to show for the money one has paid during the interval but a bunch of receipts for rent which have no negotiable value.

Saturday he sat up and took dinner with the family after being on her back for over three weeks. One week ago the attendance at Sunday School was 71. Doing pretty well night wahr? Next Sunday the school expects to attend the convention at Laidlaw in a body. A meat market has been opened at the old stand with H. D. Spencer in charge. The young folks' Sunday evening meetings are being well attended. Quite a number of our citizens attended court at Prineville last week, some voluntarily and others perforce. C. R. McLallin and F. W. McCaffery stayed over to assist as jurors.

NOW THE BABY CALVES.

By T. A. BORMAN, Kewanee, Ill.
It leads the world how small farmers, men who would engage in the most economical use of their land and who could be saving every vestige of fat and profit, will hang on to the old notion that the supreme service of a good cow is to rear a calf or two for the feed lot and in the end sacrifice her own body on the butcher's block. This beef idea is an extravagant idea. There are many farmers who would not object so much to milking cows and patronizing a creamery if they felt assured they could raise a calf with credit to themselves and their other farming operations. It is possible to rear a calf on the hand rearing sweet skim milk properly combined with grains, which calf at the end of twelve months will be worth as much money to the farmer either for placing in his feed lot or in selling to some feeder as the calf that has been reared at its mother's side.

I would have on every farm a herd of eight or ten cows, which cows can be handled with very great profit to the farmer and will add very largely to a system of maintaining soil fertility together with a sensible use of the land in the growing of crops.

Now, the farmer cannot afford at the present time to sacrifice his chances for a good calf, and he need not do so. Even though the farmer is procuring excellent prices for his butter fat he can't afford to mistreat or stunt the calf during the first two or three weeks of its life. I would, therefore, be as liberal as need be in feeding a young calf whole milk during this period.

At the end of the third week of the hand raised calf's existence he should be on a ration composed wholly of skim milk, eating some corn chop and nibbling hay. The calf should be thrifty, the eye bright, the coat glossy and smooth and the calf active. If properly and wisely fed until this date the calf will be all this and even more—hungry, playful and lusty.

Aside from the corn and the milk ration, see that the calf gets plenty of hay. It must have roughage to aid digestion and distend the stomach. The potbellied, cat hammed, stunted and miserable calf creatures to be seen on many farms, are so frequently now as formerly, are the result of improper judgment used in feeding the baby calf. The calf so described is a disgrace to the owner, and he should feel ashamed of having produced the like.

Time on the farm is money just the same as in the factory. The farmer who is rearing a half dozen calves per year can't afford to be without stanchions. (See cut from Kansas Farmer.) Stanchions are as necessary in feeding calves as is an improved stall in making the dairy cow comfortable.

If calves are fed in an open pen in summer time I would build a stanchion in the lot. I would also have a set built in the calf barn. Stanchions are not so expensive but that the farmer can afford two sets.

At mealtime each calf will have his head in the stanchion and the calf waiting to be fastened. The feeder closes the stanchion and the calf is secure. The feed is given the calf according to his requirements and desires of the feeder. If the calf is a slow eater it is not molested by the greedy calf next to him.

Stanchions on the dairy farm will expedite greatly and overcome many of the obstacles and disagreeable things in feeding calves.

Creameries and Factories.
There are now in Minnesota 825 creameries and seventy-six cheese factories in actual operation, nearly all of them being operated and owned by the farmers, using the same system of bookkeeping that is given in the short course in the dairy school, and every creamery in the state is using the Babcock milk test and is making first class butter.—President Northrup of Minnesota University.

Good Methods.
"The idea that great outlay for equipment is necessary to produce clean milk is erroneous. Milk of the best quality may be produced in an ordinary barn if the proper care be taken. The trouble has not been lack of expensive equipment, but lack of clean methods." This brief statement by Illinois dairy authorities stipulates the milk problem immensely.

YOUNG LAMBS.

Of Fleeting Memory and Creatures of Opportunity.
Concerning the comfortable quarters that are so necessary for the weaners Joseph E. Wing has advised as follows in his book on sheep farming in America:

There must be provided a small room or pen in which the lambs can go and the ewes cannot. This place must be of very convenient access, so that it is really easier for the lamb to go in than to remain outside. This is because lambs have fleeting memories and are largely the creatures of opportunity. They will consume much more feed when it is right at their mouths than if they have to go even a few rods to seek it. This place, which we call a "creep," must be in a light part of the barn, and if the sun can shine in all the better, for lambs are attracted by sunlight and greatly benefited by it.

This creep need not be very large. If it is twelve feet square it will accommodate fifty lambs very nicely, as they will not all be in it at one time. It should be separated from the ewes part of the barn by a fence of vertical slats spaced about seven inches apart, the slats with rounded edges. This will permit the lambs to pass in and restrain the ewes. After a time the lambs will need some wider openings, and then if small rollers are put up to permit them to squeeze between all the better.

In the creep there must be some flat bottomed troughs in which to feed grain and a hayrack for alfalfa hay or clover if it is the best at hand. The troughs must be low to permit young lambs readily to reach them. As lambs delight to get into troughs with their feet, the troughs must be covered. Let the end of the trough be a solid board extending up twelve inches above the sides of the trough, pointed at the end like the gable of a house roof, and put upon this two boards like an inverted V.

CHEAP FEEDING.
A Practical Kansas Farmer Tells How He Does It.
At one of the meetings during the last "farmers' week" at the Kansas State Agricultural college Dr. J. T. Axell made a talk of special interest in regard to different ways of feeding alfalfa.

Alfalfa, according to Dr. Axtell, contains from eleven to sixteen and one-half parts protein and forty parts carbohydrates, while corn ranges about one-half that amount of protein and one-third that amount of carbohydrates.

You will see there, he says, that it requires considerably more corn to afford an animal the same amount of protein that he would get from a given quantity of alfalfa meal. Now, we have found that an animal (horse or cow) needs about two and one-half pounds of protein and twelve and one-half pounds of carbohydrates per day.

Alfalfa is wasted feeding as hay, and the meal is too rich as a single feed, so we mix pound for pound of alfalfa meal and ground corn, and in a twenty-five pound feed we have the required amount of both protein and carbohydrates.

When we were feeding alfalfa as hay we found that the average amount eaten by each horse per day was from sixty to eighty pounds. They are now allowed fifteen pounds of alfalfa meal per day and are doing as well on the heavy hay feed.

For Cows and Swine.
A cow giving a good flow of milk gets an average feed of about six or seven and one-half pounds of alfalfa meal and one-half to three-fourths gal of ground corn, while our driving horses get a ration mixed with three pounds of alfalfa meal and two pounds of ground corn three times per day, with one feed a day of about five pounds of prairie hay.

Our ration for swine is mixed with a bit more of corn in the proportion than in the ration for horse or cow. I don't believe any of you have stock doing better than mine, and I know you are not feeding as cheaply as I am.

Cement Milk Tank.
A cement milk tank is the latest use to which cement has been put. It can be built in one corner of the cellar or milk house, where the water will remain cool much longer than in the old fashioned wood tank and it will be impossible for germs to hide in the pores.—Farmers' Institute Bulletin.

Could Not Get Damages.
In the case of Lavina Jones, guardian of John E. Jones, an insane person vs. John Atkinson, in which a suit was brought for damages and costs that were incurred in a contest case against Jones at Bend some time ago, Judge Bradshaw rendered a decision on Monday that there was no manner specified in the civil courts for damages incurred in a case of this kind, as it is the privilege of any citizen to bring a contest case on a homestead or timber filing if he sees fit and there is no manner specified in the civil laws for the allowance of damages.

This was a test case brought to determine if there is any manner in which persons who make a practicing filing contests can be made to pay for actual damages incurred or any part of the costs.
