LUPINE PLANT DEADLY TO SHEEP

(Pendleton Tribune.)

Being called upon to look into the cause of the death of 250 head of sheep belonging to George McDonald on McKay Creek, which were being driven from the K. G. Warner range, Dr. W. H. Lytle, state sheep inspector, made a post mortem examination of one of the dead sheep and found that death had been caused by eating lupine, or wild pea, sometimes called crockweed.

Dr. Lytle states that the lupine is a good forage plant, resembling alfalfa in its food value, both being members of the pea family.

However, sheep coming from a range where the lupine does not grow to one where the plant does grow frequently die from the effects of eating the plant.

Just why the plant should prove so poisonous to sheep unaccustomed to the lupine is one of the mysteries of science. Instances have been known where the eating of alfalfa produced the same result.

Loss from this cause occurs only when sheep are being driven from one range to another, as the lupine is one of the best forage plants when sheep are accustomed to it. It is thought also that the fact the sheep become hot and thirsty on long drives may have some bearing on the matter.

However, potassium permanganate has been proven to be a successful antidote when used in time. The strength of solution best adapted for this purpose is obtained by dissolving five to seven grains of the drug in four ounces of water.

News from Redmond.

W. B. Lamb had the misfortune to lose one of his black horses Sunday morning after working on him all night. Bots in the stomach seem to have been the cause of the trouble. Robert Immele also lost one of his new horses the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chappell are to start this week overland for Corvallis and other Willamette points to spend the summer. Mr. Manderscheid will do the irrigating while they are gone.

Dr. Russell is gone again. It reminds us of the following words of Longfellow, we think it is: "Ships that pass in the night and speak each other in passing; Only a signal shown then darkness again and a silence."

The school entertainment and basket social Saturday night was one of the best if not the best ever given in Redmond. Something over $40 was netted to go towards the purchase of a bell. One event which tended to mar an otherwise pleasant evening was a fire scare. Several of the school girls were to take part in a Japanese drill and Nellie Covelli's sash caught fire from a gasoline stove and then there was a skidoo. The blaze could be seen through the curtain. Fortunately no one was much injured though Miss Wilson, the teacher, got some burns on her wrist in trying to put the fire out.

Several callers were in yesterday afternoon and Mrs. Park was feeling better until they were all gone, but later was feeling worse, not on account of the visitors, however. This morning she is feeling better again.

The ball game yesterday resulted in a regular old-fashioned Jimtown score of 18 to 11. Of course in favor of the Redmond boys who made the 18.

As we look over the ballots today it seems that the republican candidates for the legislature from the twenty-first representative district will surely have a walk away, as there are only two names on the ticket and two to be voted for.

W. A. Belcher is in Portland attending the Rose Festival and other festivities and will be back about the 10th.

J. Ward Harner is in again from Sunnyside, Washington, superintending some building on his place northwest of town.

Miss Minnie Norwood of Salem, Oregon is expected in daily to make a month's visit here. Incidentally she will take lessons in trout fishing of uncle Jim.
