

Unsophisticated Oregon Man

(Portland Journal.)
Calvin Morris of Paulina, Crook county, Oregon's most unsophisticated man, bought a comic valentine. It cost him a nickel. Then he did a little drawing. A postage stamp was attached. The valentine was addressed to a young woman. It was dropped in the mail. It delivered. She objected. That valentine cost Calvin $300.

Calvin was indicted by the federal grand jury for sending obscene matter through the mail. Owing to the circumstances of the case and upon the recommendation of the district attorney, Judge Wolverton let Calvin off without a jail sentence when he pleaded guilty in the United States court. Until brought to Portland by a deputy United States marshal, Morris had never ridden on a railroad train, had never seen a steamboat, had never even seen and didn't know there was such a thing as street cars.

And furthermore, Calvin Morris, Crook county, Oregon, has never been kissed. Owing to this fact he has become known as Oregon's unsophisticated man.

Until last night Morris had never seen the inside of a jail, had never eaten in a restaurant, had never heard the rumble of a wagon on paved streets, had never seen an automobile nor did he know there was such a thing as a bicycle. He had heard of city sky scrapers, to be sure, but thought they were something that floated about high in the air.

Morris has never been inside of a theatre, never smoked a pipe, cigar or cigarette, never chewed tobacco and has never had a drink of liquor in his life.

And the thousands and one other forms of amusement which are afforded the people of a city are all new to Morris.

But in spite of all the fascinations of a great city, Morris slept in a cell at the county jail last night. And his dreams weren't of music and dances and beautifully gowned women and the buzz of automobiles. But instead his fancies were far away in his old home country in Crook county, and the dreams were of green valleys and mountains and cattle and horses and of the people he has known all his life, and who are natural and more to his liking.

Morris is 22 years old. He lives with his father and mother and has never been in trouble before. All his life has been spent on the range and he had no anticipations, no longings for the city. He knew not of the city, nor did he care, and he was happy.

But last Valentine's day Morris got hold of a funny valentine. And poor Morris fell from grace. District Attorney McCourt stated to the court this morning that with the exception of the valentine incident, the defendant had always been on his best behavior. Since he was a boy, he said, Morris has worked hard and taken care of his family. During that time he has accumulated nearly $2,000 in cash and a bunch of horses and cattle. Owing to these facts the young man, though he claimed ignorance of the law relative to sending obscene matter through the mails, was let off with the $300 fine and without a jail sentence.

Tomorrow Calvin Morris leaves for his home in Crook county. Behind he will leave with Uncle Sam $300 in hard earned cash. And for months to come as he rides the range visions of that comic valentine will flash through Morris' mind. But it won't seem funny any more.
