

Wool Nearly All Sold.

Oregonian: Charles H. Green, the widely known wool buyer for Koshland & Co. of San Francisco and Boston, has returned to Portland from his annual Summer campaign in Eastern Oregon.

"The sheep men are well satisfied with the result of the season's trade," said Mr. Green yesterday. "On good wools they realized one cent more than they anticipated. The low priced wools, however, those of heavy shrinkage, were slow sellers. Quite a few of this kind were left unsold."

"In Oregon and Washington about 14,000,000 pounds were sold at prices ranging from 5 to 16 1/2 cents. The average price was about 6 cents under last year's figure. The lower prices were made necessary by the conditions of the wools this year. There was very heavy shrinkage due to the open Winter and sand storms in March and April."

"The clip of Eastern Oregon was about 11,000,000 pounds and of Washington 3,000,000 pounds. Shipments out of Eastern Oregon to date have been 8,500,000 pounds in the grease and 4,500,000 pounds were bought for scouring. One million pounds are left in growers' hands. The Eastern Oregon clip was a little larger than last year, as the sheep sheared a little heavier."

"The wool buying this season was more evenly divided among the Eastern buyers than formerly. The principal houses represented secured about 1,500,000 pounds each."

"An association was formed, known as the Wool Buyers' Association, to encourage growers to put their wools up in better shape and to discriminate among those who do not. The object is to educate the growers and they are giving us a lot of assistance."

Crook Can Supply Much Livestock

appeared in the Rural Spirit of Portland, the query was made, "Where is the supply coming from?" Reference was made to the number of livestock necessary to keep the new packing plant running to its full capacity.

In answer to the query of the Rural Spirit I can assure that paper that Central Oregon can and will produce a very large part of the livestock if some means of transportation can be found for this country.

With rail transportation we can furnish cattle, hogs and sheep in great numbers and in good marketable condition. It now costs about $1.75 a head to drive cattle from Prineville to Shaniko. The shrinkage is from 75 to 100 pounds per head. The time consumed on the road in good weather is eight days. Thus you can readily see when everything is figured in that it costs us at least $5 more a head than it should to get our cattle to the Portland market, to say nothing of what we lose on the price of the cattle on account of their shrunken condition caused by this long drive.

The same is true of sheep. As to hogs it is out of the question entirely to think of shipping under present conditions. We do not even supply the demand for pork in the local market half the time. Yet all this interior country is a good stock country. We can grow all kinds of feed and forage, but at present there is little inducement to do so. The remuneration is not sure enough.

If Portland wants our help to furnish the meat supplies then we say to our metropolis on the Willamette, help us get a railroad. Then it will not take long to prove the truth of what I write. And please remember when building railroads that the Deschutes route is far preferable—a down hill pull all the way from Madras, while the extension of the Columbia Southern means heavy grades—Trout-creek is 800 feet lower than Prineville while Shaniko is 1000 feet higher than this place. Very respectfully, T. H. LAFOLLETT.

Redmond News.

Redmond, July 19.

A. W. Morgan and wife left early last week for an extended visit to their old New York home. John Moore is at present in Portland and when he returns he and his wife will follow them.

Miss Eckerson is back from Bend where she has been looking up some land matters.

Grain and hay harvest has commenced. M. Kulech started his binder in rye; M. E. Landes has cut timothy and clover; yours truly will cut alfalfa tomorrow and several others are at it already.

No preaching today on account of Mr. Lilly being away on his vacation.

The new railroad survey is supposed to start from here tomorrow morning. W. J. Buckley takes out the old D. I. & P. cook shack, which has been newly fitted up. With him goes a cook and an engineering party of seven, headed by Mr. Ray of Portland, who is already somewhat known in this vicinity.

Today we had the pleasure of meeting W. A. Wynn of Portland, the right-of-way man for the Central Oregon Railroad, who has been working between Lamonta and Madras. He reports good success and talks as though the road is assured.

W. L. Perry is at home today from the ditch camp. C. R. and Mrs. McLallin drove over to the Trich creek homestead today.

Cline Falls reports are to the effect that Messrs. Prickett and Cochran have bought the late Meredith store and are ready for business; also that Mr. Meredith has left for Seattle. Also, again, that the hotel is again open for business, a Mr. Johannson having charge.

The social at C. N. Ehret's last Tuesday evening was a success, though some went home in the rain, others went home between showers, while still others let the showers go first.

Another dance at the confectionery last night was well attended.

A number of our citizens are helping Crooked River ranchers put up their alfalfa. We have heard that the quality of the first crop is rather poor owing to late frosts, and that the cutting is very uneven.

Neighbor Stofe was up from O'Neil last night for Woodmen meeting. We need a few more like him.

The writer has never paid very much attention to estimates of high yields of crops, knowing how easy it is for many men to see a big crop on their own land. Perhaps this is the reason he does not hear very many such estimates. Our own first cutting of alfalfa will run a little less than five tons to the acre. As we have not access to scales we never will know just how much less, but it is a safe bet that the estimate is correct. Today we overheard that Mrs. Kendall has sixty-five quarts of strawberries canned. No estimate about that—she has the goods to show.

F. C. Rowlee was a visitor in town one day this week.

A bug in our ear said that Freddie McCaffery was sick, but it wasn't a big enough bug to tell how sick. E. C. PARK.

Will Buy Heavier Drilling Outfit

Frank Forest left last Friday afternoon for Southern California, where he goes to buy a heavier drilling outfit and other machinery for the Madras Oil Co., of which he is president. He will probably make the purchase in Los Angeles, where machinery of that character can be had. The new drill will be a large one capable of putting a hole-down 4000 feet if necessary. The drill with which the hole was put down to its present depth of 150 feet was found to be too light to go farther with, and a new drilling outfit was necessary.

J. W. Ross, who has been manager for the company, resigned his position the last of the week and left for his home in California.—Pioneer.
