

HILL AFTER THE DESCHUTES ROUTE

Bethel and Nelson Getting Busy at the Mouth of the River

SURVEYORS NOW AT WORK

Thought That James J. Hill
Will Construct Road Across
Oregon and on South

Good news for the people of interior Oregon comes today in a dispatch from The Dalles to the effect that the presence there of N. W. Bethel, locating engineer of the Hill lines, simultaneously with W. F. Nelson, of Seattle, promoter and principal owner of the Oregon Trunk railroad, augurs the speedy construction of a railway up the Deschutes valley from the Columbia, where it would connect by bridge across the big river with the new North Bank line.

Foundation for the surmise lies in the memorable speech made by James J. Hill at a banquet held in Portland three years ago, when he said that after the completion of the North Bank railroad he might have something interesting to say to the people of central Oregon in the matter of development and of transportation. Secondary verification for the report is had in the presence of a crew of surveyors who have been working up the valley of the Deschutes from the Columbia.

The Oregon Trunk railroad, if built, will form a Great Northern feeder through the heart of Oregon to California, affording Mr. Hill at one and the same time a chance to compete with the Harriman system and giving him an outlet to San Francisco and the south.

COUGAR KILLING MILLICAN'S COLTS

E. G. Hodson and J. E. Roberts went by auto to Millican's ranch above Bend Saturday and while there hunted a cougar which has slain a dozen or more colts and other domestic animals in and about Pine mountain. The tracks of the beast could be easily traced in places, but neither "hide nor hair" of him could be seen, so he is still at large.

This particular cougar has for a long time made life miserable for the ranchers and stockmen of the vicinity and efforts have before now been made to track him down and shoot him. His lair, even, has been discovered, but it evidently was one of several dens, as the cougar refrained from returning to it while the hunters were watching for him.

Although Messrs. Hodson and Roberts failed to find the animal, another effort will shortly be made to run him down and kill him.

Paulina's New Schoolhouse.

Ben Gotter of Redmond and Arthur Kelly of Post are rapidly completing the building of the new schoolhouse at Paulina, and it will be open when the classes meet in September. The building is to cost about $1,900. It contains two spacious rooms, a wide vestibule, two cloakrooms and a belfry. The school compares favorably with any in the county. No teacher has been engaged yet for the 50 children who will attend. Last year, owing to inadequate facilities, only 30 pupils could be accommodated and neither the eighth nor ninth grades were taught.

Building Stone Residence.

Thomas H. Brennan is building a fine ranch home of native stone on his place six miles east of Paulina, on the Burns road. It will be the finest ranch homestead in Crook county when completed, though not quite as large as a few others of wood. The floor area is 36x38. Fourteen men are employed by Mr. Brennan, both at haying in the fields and at work on the house. Although the family is one of the oldest in that section, they have always lived in a little log house as in pioneer days, so the change in accommodations will be great.

Redmond News.

Redmond, August 16.
Mrs. Redmond has our thanks for a batch of news notes received; Mrs. Landes and Mrs. Muma for culinary favors received.

Another large outfit of campers in town; also Ed Landerback and friend with their families are camped again north of the town-site.

Neighbor Smith will start for Shaniko tomorrow morning to meet Miss Olive coming from Spokane.

Lou Reed intends leaving with his family the middle of the week for Washington, where he may take up canal construction work.

Elmer Covert was riding ditch during Mr. McDuffie's vacation in the mountains.

Mr. Lilly was unable to fill his appointment here today owing to an accident to one of his horses. He expects to preach at Redmond next Sunday evening, August 23.

The D. I. & P. ditch camp broke up and moved to town Wednesday. Some went up to Hall's to do a little work, while others went to Bend.

Our mountain campers got back during the week. As they passed here Robbie Ehret held up the "bear" his father shot for our inspection.

Joe McClay, Mr. Stewart, Mr. McAuley (not Red, the other one), Mr. Atkinson and others are away fighting fires in the timber.

E. C. PARK.

THE OCHOCO VALLEY.

Anyone who desires to see Crook county at its best, barring summer heat, should go out into the rural districts of this great county during August, hot as it is, and take a look at the fields awash with ripening grain—wheat, rye and oats, and get a whiff of the perfume of timothy and sweet clover that is in the air.

During the past week it has been the pleasure and privilege of the JOURNAL's field representative to penetrate that heft of Crook county's agricultural section—the Ochoco valley—the journey being made by bicycle in one day from the city of Prineville and back as far up, almost, as the Ochoco mines, well above Howard post-office, in the tall and majestic timber of the Blue Mountain forest reserve. It was a great trip to a lover of nature and for one who admires the fruits of man wrung with perseverance from the soil.

In many places along the roadside, and in adjacent fields, browsed mild-eyed, fat cattle, happy in their own animal contentment for the ultimate benefit of man. No half-starved beasts here, nor ugly ones, for who—animal or man—can be ugly or starved with nature prolific to overflowing on every hand. And alternating between the pasture lands are fields of grain, and harvesters garnering the abundant hay on every side; for the haying season is at its apex this month up the fair Ochoco.

To the lover of scenery there is no fairer place in Crook county than this valley varying in width down below from two miles to narrow gorges in places above. And the waving grain plumes make the valley all the more lovely.

Like you the true, pure life of the country? Then visit the Ochoco, for you haven't seen Crook county until you go there.

RANCHERS FEAR FOR CHILDREN

Thought to Be Lion or Tiger Escaped From Some Menagerie

A wild beast of terrifying proportions and great destructive powers is causing consternation among all ranchers living between Post and Pine creek, and ranchers are afraid to let their smaller children stray far from the house even in broad daylight, though thus far the animal has only committed his depredations at night. D. Koopman alone has lost eleven young calves, ten of them this year, and other ranchers report the killing of calves, pigs and chickens.

So bold is the bestial marauder sometimes that he will slink up to the porches of farm houses and take therefrom cats and dogs lying thereon. No dog has yet been found brave enough or strong enough to frighten the beast away, and all dogs which have come to close quarters have either been killed outright or terribly mauled.

The presence of the wild animal has been known for two years, but only during the present summer has he been feared. He does not seem like a cougar; his traits indicate otherwise, for he will not tree, keeps away from pens and traps and never shows himself by day. He has been seen at night, however, but never within easy range, and is of a tawny color. Ranchers are inclined to think the animal is a lion or tiger escaped from some traveling show, and are preparing to organize a hunt for him as soon as harvest is over.
