

SALTBUSH IS NOT ALL NOXIOUS WEED

Deleterious saltbushes as well as thistles and other noxious weeds are occupying a great deal of attention right now on the part of county and state officials, acting in the interest of the farmers of interior Oregon. In this connection it may be said at the start that all saltbushes are not weeds. There are some varieties that make excellent forage food. This fact is not generally known in Oregon, principally because the only saltbush known to agriculturists of this state is one of the undesirable kinds, unfit for provender, and a weed of stubborn growth which spreads with amazing rapidity.

Saltbushes had their origin and thrive in arid countries. The silver saltbush which is such a farm pest here is said to have been brought into the county upon the representations made by an eastern seed firm. It was highly recommended as a forage plant. The stuff proved to be worthless and became so abundant that there is a state law classing it with the thistle and cocklebur as inimical to agriculture and providing penalties when it is not removed and destroyed.

Knowing that Australia was the weaning ground of the saltbush, S. J. Newsom of Prineville about a year ago wrote to the New South Wales Department of Mines and Agriculture at Sydney asking for information about, at the same describing, the silver saltbush against which the roadmaster of Crook county is waging war. Walter S. Campbell, the director of Australian agriculture for the British commonwealth, answered Mr. Newsom's letter very courteously and also sent him the seeds of three valuable varieties, which he still has. Director Campbell's letter, in part, is as follows:

I have the honor to inform you that the plant mentioned by you is probably one of the inferior saltbushes of this country (Australia), of which there are about 90 varieties, many of which are excellent fodder plants. Many varieties have been introduced into America and seed is obtainable there. Two ounces each of the following varieties of saltbush have been forwarded to you under separate cover, viz., antiplex mularia, antiplex semibaccata and antiplex halemoides.

The Australian department also sent Mr. Newsom a pamphlet (Miscellaneous Publication 717); telling all about saltbushes, their conservation and cultivation, with pictures of the more important varieties. It forms an invaluable pamphlet for farmers in arid regions.

C. H. Erickson obtained some of the seed sent to Mr. Newsom and planted it on his place in Crook county. It is flourishing well and Mr. Erickson reports that his cattle make for it every chance they get, preferring it to anything else. Caution must be used, however, as too much saltbush acts as a physic, to a stronger degree, it is said, than fresh alfalfa. With this light on the subject, the three varieties recommended by the Australian government are worth trying here.

REWARD OFFERED.

Redmond News.

Redmond, Or., Aug. 30, 1908.

Messrs. and Mesdames Chapman and File got back from their outing in the mountains and tall timber after having enjoyed themselves very much. We missed reporting them when they went.

Jesse Tuck, George Woods, Cecil Woods and another friend took an outing up in the Crescent Lake country. They got a deer apiece and some other game.

A. W. Morgan was a returner on today's stage and expressed himself as glad to get back.

J. E. Lamb will build on his lots in town this fall.

DeWitt Lamb and family will occupy the E. C. Roby house in town for the school year.

Wm. Buckley was home today from surveying on the C. O. visting with young Bill.

Ed Kennard is working for the C. F. P. Co. at Cline Falls.

Dr. Cline is camped in town and has been doing some dental work.

Word received from Lou Reed states that they got as far as Shaliko in good shape and expected to keep on to Washington in the same way, with their own team and vehicle by easy stages.

The Hotel Redmond will soon be under new management. H. M. Smith retiring and LeRoy Covert taking charge. Roy has been connected with the hotel for some time.

Jimmie Boy has joined the ranks of the benedicts. Just when he got married or where or how or whom he married or any of the other details we cannot state. He went Friday morning and will be back when he gets here. We predict that Mrs. Jimmie Boy will receive as hearty a welcome as he will upon his return. We have an idea that Mr. Norwood's "brother" will conclude that he does not need the O'Connor house and will let Jim have it.

J. M. Spencer with his son and their families have gone to the Willamette to pick fruit.

Needs Mail Service.

E. A. Parker, who visited this city Tuesday from his home in Bear creek valley, voiced the sentiment of ranchers living along the 125-mile stretch of road between Prineville and Buck creek when he stated the simple truth that the postal authorities at Washington are sadly neglecting the mails in this wide and productive though remote part of Crook county. The government maintains a postoffice at Crook, 50 miles southeast of Prineville, but furnishes no mail service to the 75 families resident in the district. The ranchers take turns hauling the mail once each week from Prineville out to Crook. Prior to seven years ago the government furnished a semi-weekly mail service to Crook postoffice, but now the federal authorities are unwilling to pay more than was paid in the year 1900, when the mail was carried only 30 miles to Millhorn's ranch, whereas now it goes to the Barnes place 50 miles away. Several petitions have been sent to the department at Washington, D. C., but without avail.

Albert Noble Hurt.

Albert Noble, son of George Noble of Beaver creek, was thrown from a horse Monday and severely injured.

The young man was getting ready to take part in the fall rodeo. He was riding alone about a mile from home when the cinch broke and his saddle turned. The rider was thrown upon a large boulder, striking on his left side. He was knocked senseless for a time but when he regained consciousness called loudly for help. His cries were heard at the house and help arrived about an hour after the accident. Dr. Rosenberg was called and after a ride of 75 miles reached the sufferer. Young Noble was struck between the hip bone and the ribs otherwise some bones would have been broken. As it is it will be some time before the young will be able to get out of bed.
