STORY OF THE FOUR SKULLS

tragedy was over as quickly as it began, the Warm Springs Indians taking it as a matter of course and remaining wholly unperturbed.

"Huntington said to Billy Chinook: 'We must secure these bodies, for if they are found by the tribe we will be done up.' So the Indians looked around and soon reported they had found a suitable place in a boggy spring. The bodies were taken there one by one and trampled into the ooze until they disappeared.

"One of the 'dead' Indians was only slightly wounded, however, and when the tramping process began with him the cool water and mud revived him. He sprang to his feet, a very lively corpse, and dashed away with the speed of a deer. The others were after him at once and because of his wound overtook him after running a quarter of a mile, dispatched him; then carried him back and buried him as before, this time successfully. 'Never before or since,' remarked Huntington, 'have I seen such a pretty foot race, one with such a stake or one so spirited.'

"The tribe never knew what had befallen their lost brothers, and Huntington continued on his way and made the treaty."

Note—The following winter the Piutes burned Claypool's cabin up the Ochoco, and the next spring, that of 1869, Mr. Luckey settled in the same valley above Prineville. He passed many sleepless nights watching his cattle and scanning the neighboring hills, when his dog would run in with hair bristling and whining low after being half scared to death by some wild beast or skulking figures in the darkness. The country was then what it will never be again, both a wilderness and a hunter's paradise. Many a time did Mr. Luckey and his eight neighboring settlers shoot deer at their doors. Game was always abundant, but was never wantonly killed until people began to flock in here.

Summons.

In the circuit court of the state of Oregon, for Crook county.
Bertha White, plaintiff, vs. James F. White, defendant.

To James F. White, the above-named defendant: In the name of the state of Oregon you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit in the above entitled court on or before the 10th day of October, 1908; and if you fail so to answer for want thereof, the plaintiff will take a decree against you for the relief prayed for in the complaint, to-wit: For judgment against you for the costs and disbursements of this suit; and for a decree of the above entitled court that the marriage contract now existing between the plaintiff and defendant be rescinded and annulled; that the bonds of matrimony now existing between the plaintiff and defendant be annulled and terminated and that the plaintiff be granted an absolute divorce from the defendant; that the plaintiff be allowed to take her former name of Bertha Watkins; that the plaintiff be allowed counsel fees and suit money as the court may seem proper, and for such general relief as may be just.

This summons is served upon you by publication thereof in the Crook County Journal, a weekly newspaper of general circulation, published at Prineville, Crook county, Oregon, which is hereby designated as the proper paper to give you notice, for a period of six full consecutive weeks, commencing with the issue of August 27, A. D. 1908, by order of the Hon. H. C. Ellis, Judge of the County Court of Crook county, state of Oregon, made and entered at chambers this 14th day of August, A. D. 1908.
