The ladies of the Presbyterian church served one of their excellent dinners in the new quarters to be occupied by the Winnek Co. The ladies had their hands full taking care of the big crowd that came to patronize them.

Drs. Belknap & Edwards are considering the purchase of a couple of autos. The latter on his present trip to Portland with his wife, has also paid visits to The Dalles and Pendleton with a view to investing in a chug wagon.

Ralph Jordan and mother, D. F. Stewart and W. A. Booth a few days ago sold their timber claims in the Blue mountains for $2500 apiece. Mrs. Belknap could also have sold her claim but will hold the tract until after the railroad comes in, when she is confident prices will go up.

The Christian church in Crook county as a whole is considering the matter of calling a circuit pastor who shall give at least one Sunday in each month to Prineville and one to Madras. No definite steps in this direction, however, have yet been taken by the 40 or more members of the church in this city.

D. A. McDonald, wife and son arrived in Prineville Monday by wagon from their former home at Bridgeport, Douglas county, Wash., up near the Canadian line, where the mercury drops to 30 below zero in mid-winter and rises sometimes to 114 in mid-summer. They are looking for a location in either Crook or Lake county, but will probably locate near Redmond, where they have friends. They called at the Journal office and expressed themselves as well pleased with this part of the country.
