under the number who came in last year, but the Sunday schools represented covered a wider field than ever before and the enthusiasm of those who came was more evident than in former years.
It is likely that the fourth convention, to be held in 1909, will be held at Redmond, though no definite steps to that effect have as yet been taken. It is merely understood that the people of Redmond will probably extend the necessary invitation, in which case it will be formally accepted. The first three conventions have all been held in Prineville.
The new officers are: J. B. Shipp, president; Fred Sherwood, vice-president; Mrs. Anna L. Winnek, secretary; Mrs. Calbreath, treasurer. Each district also has its own vice-president.
Rev. Charles A. Phipps, state Sunday school organizer, of Portland, was the central figure at the convention, and his addresses were much enjoyed and very profitable to the delegates. He was thorough in his work and his talks were calculated to create enthusiasm in Sunday school work. He took up the different phases of Sunday school work, one at a time, discussing alike the cradle roll and the adult movement, and laying especial emphasis on the organized class.
All numbers on the program were good and showed that considerable time and work had been given to the subjects assigned to each of the speakers. The paper read by M. W. File of Redmond was particularly good, so good that it was ordered published in full in the Optimist, the State Sunday school official paper.
The convention closed Sunday evening with a rousing meeting at the Methodist church, Rev. C. A. Phipps having preached at the
