Mayor Names Working Committees of the Council

Mayor D. F. Stewart and all the other members of the new city council met and organized in the city hall Monday afternoon, taking over the reins of government from former City Recorder Draper, although the outgoing council lacked a quorum, only Councilman Lippman, Adamson and Cram present. Councilman Clifton arrived later.

Former Mayor Wurzweiler's report was read again, its recommendations being the same as reported in the Journal five weeks ago. The reports of all the other city officers were either filed or referred to the new finance committee.

Official bonds of the new members were read and approved.

Mayor Stewart announced his working committees as follows: Finance—Adamson, Lippman, and Shipp. Fire and Water—Clifton, Yancey and Cram. Streets and Public Improvements—Yancey, Cram, Clifton. Health and Police—Shipp, Adamson, Lippman. Judiciary—Cram, Adamson, Clifton. License—Lippman, Shipp and Yancey.

At the first regular meeting of the council Tuesday night, the finance committee reported they could not make the reports of the outgoing city treasurer and the outgoing city recorder balance, with the recommendation that the books be expeted by Max Crandall, now in this city at work on the county books in the court house.

On motion the report was adopted. Then, on a second motion, it was ordered that Expert Crandall check up the books, it being the general opinion as expressed in the council chamber that the city's books should be expeted annually.

The report of the fire chief was next read, approved and filed. In it he suggested that all persons who have stovepipes in use be compelled to put up brick flues. This recommendation was referred to the fire committee for further report.

Bills were allowed as follows: S. J. Newsom, G. W. Barnes, C. D. Calbreath, W. H. Kinder, M. H. Bell, C. A. Riddle and H. C. Dunsmore, $2 each for election day services; Mrs. Annie Maling, rent of city hall for three months, $25; J. H. Crooks, salary for December as marshal, $50; Prineville Light & Water Co., lights, 8.50; Prineville Planing Mill, lumber, 13.85; Prineville Machine Shop, grinding axes and scythes, $2.95; J. L. McCulloch, one per cent of face value for cancelling warrants (referred to Councilmen Shipp and Adamson before final payment); William Draper, services as recorded, $23.91.

The report of the marshal was read and referred to the finance committee. The report of the recorder was likewise referred.

Instructions were then issued to the recorder and marshal to notify all parties owning dogs to procure licenses at once, payable quarterly, at the rate of $2 annually for males and $4 for females, otherwise, the dogs are to be impounded, kept two days and then killed.

Culver Cullings.

Culver, Ore., Jan. 4. Mr. Lee and John Peck and families returned Wednesday from southern Oregon where they have been since the early part of last summer. They say they are glad to get back to Crook county, and their many friends in this vicinity are glad they are here again.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Lamson, Jan. 2, a daughter. During Christmas week the young people attended several parties in this vicinity.

Mrs. May Schooling has returned from a week's visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Helfrich.

Jim Reed has a valuable horse which was very badly cut on barbed wire. It will recover. The dance at Culver hall Friday night was a decided success. A large crowd attended.

Mrs. Andrew Limbaugh, after a long illness, is much improved in health, and able to be out. During the past week, Miss Golda Cleck visited with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Reed.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Turner, who have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Turner's parents returned to their ranch near Powell Buttes.

In the general rain that fell last week Culver received a larger share than the country immediately north.

Mr. and Mrs. Peck came down from Grizzly and attended the meeting of the Artisan lodge, Saturday evening, returning the same night. CULVERITE.

Redmond News.

Redmond, Or., Jan. 2. There is another little visitor at O. H. Long's home, but we did not learn particulars.

The Ladies Aid Society meets with Mrs. Muma, on Thursday of this week.

W. E. Barne is down from Sisters for a few days.

C. L. Lowther is now a regular Redmond resident in accordance with a note in last week's paper.

Bennie McCaffery has bought the Bauer place and is fitting it up for a home.

A very pleasant watch meeting was held at the school house Thursday night to welcome the new year.

F. A. Kennard was a blend visitor with produce the past week, bringing back a load of sawdust for W. H. Oakes, who will put up ice if there is more weather suitable for ice harvest.

Benj. McCaffery and wife are both nursing at Wilcoxson's on the Redfield farm. E. C. PARK.

Paulina Items.

Paulina, Or., Jan. 3. We have had considerable snow, but not the usual amount for this time of the year.

The Paulina school has closed for the holidays.

Mrs. Wm. Foster of Wolf creek is very low with pneumonia. Drs. Hyde and Rosenberg are attending the case.

Tommy Miller's shoulder is bruised considerably, caused by his horse falling with him.

Harlie Brown is a Paulina visitor. Art Bennett is spending the holidays here with relatives and friends.

Marion Morgan's house caught fire from the fire Saturday and the roof was burned off. Fortunately, a new roof of green shingles was put on recently, causing the fire to burn slowly, and this condition enabled help to arrive in time to save the remainder of the building.

Martin Drake returned a short time ago from a visit to New Mexico. He was very much pleased with the territory and is preparing to move there with his family in April.

Paulina had a beautiful Christmas tree this year in the new school house. The program was rendered by Miss Bessie Cudd, teacher at Paulina Valley school. Four districts joined in the exercises and everybody near here brought provender for the community feast. Four turkeys, among other good things, were consumed, and the bachelors up this way are all right.

Miss Silva Hall gave a New Year's watch party the night of December 31. A party of young folks gathered and spent a pleasant evening. Just at midnight started down the streets of course making all the racket they could. One man was heard to say, "Well, who is married."

Ice wagons have been busy for the past week laying in their summer supply of ice, until this late thaw put them out of a job.

More Land for Irrigation

Word reaches here in a dispatch from Salem to the Oregonian that the State Land Board has signed a contract for the reclamation of 74,000 acres of arid land in Crook county, the Deschutes Irrigation and Power Co. being the contractor. The company is to have a lien on the land for the estimated cost of reclamation, fixed at $60 per acre for irrigable land and $2.50 an acre for non-irrigable land.

The Deschutes company already has contracts for the reclamation of two tracts, one consisting of 84,000 acres, known as the Pilot Butte segregation, and the other of 50,000 acres, known as the Oregon Irrigation Co. segregation. All of this land is in the vicinity of Bend, Redmond and Powell Buttes. The tract covered by the contract just signed lies south and east of the tracts covered by the earlier contracts and reaches from the Deschutes river nearly to Prineville.

Water for the irrigation of this vast area of land will be taken from the Deschutes river. The plans call for the construction of a storage reservoir, the details of which are yet to be definitely decided upon.

The per cent of irrigable and non-irrigable land is not definitely known, but it is estimated that the total lien of the company will be in the neighborhood of $3,500,000.

The company is to receive 80 cents per acre per year from settlers as a maintenance charge until 1917, when the system is to be turned over to the settlers complete, unencumbered and in good condition. The contract requires that the most important portions of the flume shall be made of concrete and steel.

The contract gives the irrigation company the right to use the water powers available in the canal system for a period of 35 years, in consideration of which the company is to maintain the canals during that period. The land will be sold to settlers by the state, the purchasers paying off the company's lien, this being the consideration.
