

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Thousands of millions of cans of Royal Baking Powder have been used in making bread, biscuit and cake in this country, and every housekeeper using it has rested in perfect confidence that her food would be light, sweet, and perfectly wholesome. Royal is a safeguard against the cheap alum powders which are the greatest menaces to health of the present day.

Globe Trotter Probably Fake

It seems that Mack McDonough the ex-soldier from South Africa, who was in Prineville a few weeks ago with a long tale about walking around the world on a $21,000 wager, is a fake.

Frank Long has just received a letter from the Bank of Africa Limited at Pretoria, South Africa, stating that McDonough is unknown by any bank in that city. This too, in the face of the fact that McDonough gave Long the name of this bank as reference and stated that the $21,000 was deposited in it awaiting the outcome of his trip. The traveler also gave Long the name of his sweetheart and asked that he write to her. So far, no answer has been received from the girl, and the probability is that she does not exist.

McDonough while here claimed to be an ex-soldier of the Boer army and said he was walking around the world and that the conditions of the wager required him to secure a piece of money from the ruler of every civilized country on the globe. His time limit was five years. He had in his possession papers from numerous governors of states in this country, and the supposition is that he started out with bogus credentials, and after securing the signatures of several authorities made easy sailing on the strength of them.

This person secured several dollars in Prineville by taking up a collection on the street after giving a "spiel" about his undertakings and notices in local papers clear through the California line show that he worked other towns in the same manner.

The letter from the manager of the Pretoria bank follows:

The Bank of Africa Limited, Pretoria, 7th Jan., 1909.

Dear Sir—We are in receipt of your letter (undated) and have to inform you that the person mentioned therein is unknown to us, or any of the local banks. Yours faithfully,

A. B. Abarrun, Manager.

Death of Pioneer P. G. Carmical

Another pioneer well known to the older residents of Crook county has passed away. Mr. P. G. Carmical died at Lebanon, Oregon, February 15, 1909, aged 80 years, 5 months and 21 days. His death occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Belle Geer, and was the result of illness only a few days. A wife and four daughters survive to mourn the loss of a kind and Christian husband and father. The daughters are: Mrs. Belle Geer, of Lebanon; Mrs. W. M. Tomlinson, of Moscow, Idaho; Mrs. O. W. Compton, of Scio, and Mrs. D. A. McDowell of Prineville. Mrs. Geer and the wife were at his bedside at the time of his death.

P. G. Carmical was born in Illinois August 27, 1828, and with his parents afterward moved to Leavenworth, Missouri. As captain of his train he crossed the plains to Oregon with ox teams in 1852 and in the fall of that year settled at Scio. On January 16, 1852, he was married to Miss Ann Powell and later with his wife removed to Crook county where he made his home for many years. Many marks of his career still remain in this county to remind us of Uncle Dick, as he was familiarly called.

Behold, the man that fears the Lord, thus blessed shall he be. The Lord shall out of Zion give His blessings unto thee; Thou shalt Jerusalem's good behold whilst thou on earth dost dwell. Thou shalt thy children's children see, and peace on Israel.

County Division to Be Decided at Home

County division fights have probably been eliminated from the Legislature, for both Houses have passed a general bill providing that the voters of any portion of a county may petition for the creation of a new county and that the County Court must submit the question at an election. To carry such an election requires 75 per cent of the votes within the proposed new county and 25 per cent of the votes in the territory in the county outside of the proposed new county. This proportion was decided upon so that a bare majority cannot impose upon the people the burdens of a new county and so that a bare majority of an old county cannot prevent the organization of a new county.

While this bill does not prevent the Legislature from creating the county or prevent the organization of a county under the initiative, as was done in the case of Hood River County, yet the new method is in general so reasonable that people desiring a new county will undoubtedly be told to proceed under the general law and not ask for special legislation.

POINTS FOR THE DAIRYMAN.

A spring scale with a pointer for the tare of the pail now makes the weighing of the milk easy and quick. This scale can be had from almost any hardware store at a small price, and the milk pails can be made of uniform weight by putting a little lead on the bottom of the lighter ones. The producer can buy milk record sheets, good for a month, with spaces for keeping the weights of milk from over thirty cows, morning and night, at a cost of 15 cents a year. These sheets, tacked on a board near the scale, with a pencil hanging by a string, make it easy to weigh and set down the result, which shows at a glance what every cow is doing in quantity of milk. This, carried out through the year, will be a great surprise to the producer, disclosing unsuspected good and bad qualities in his cows.

The yield of milk, however, is only a part of the value of the cow. To really know her value one must apply the Babcock test. If he is not able to do this himself his state department station will test samples without cost to him, except the express charges. The average of two tests made from a two day composite sample of milk from each cow will give a very close approximation to the test of the whole year. By multiplying the number of pounds of milk for the year by the percent of fat obtained from the two tests made on each cow at about six weeks after calving and again at about six months after calving he can know about the value of each of the cows in his herd. The advantage is that he can understandingly weed out the boarders from his herd, thereby increasing the net profit, and can tell which are his best cows to save calves from to add to the herd.—C. M. Winslow, Secretary Ayshire Breeders' Association.

Feeding Young Cows.
My practice in feeding heifers from calfhood has been to give rations which would induce growth of bone and muscle, notwithstanding a generous supply of fat forming material, so that the little creatures were symmetrical beauties, says a prosperous dairyman.

When they began to milk I still gave them enough of such food to keep them from becoming thin, believing, for the manufacture of the greatest supply of milk they were capable of producing, they should be furnished the materials in their food and not be required to take it from their own bodies, and I believe if this method of feeding were more generally practiced there would be less tuberculosis among the dairy herds of the country.

Flaxseed Meal For Calves.
Ground flax is an excellent substitute for butter fat to be fed to calves. Use a heaping teaspoonful to every feed of milk while the calf is from two to six weeks old, provided you are feeding skim milk. As the calf grows older gradually increase the flaxseed meal until the calf is getting about a heaping tablespoonful with each feed. This flaxseed may be mixed with the milk, but never mix cornmeal or any other ground feed that contains a good deal of starch with the milk, as that is very apt to produce scours.

The reason for that is that starchy foods must be mixed with saliva before digestion can take place, and anything that is drunk with the milk does not become mixed with saliva, and consequently it fails to become digested and acts as an irritant to the alimentary tract.

Salting the Butter.
It is needless to say that nothing but the best grade of salt should be used in salting butter. I would prefer the flake salt, as it dissolves more readily and is not so liable to make mottles, says a dairyman. Salt adds flavor to the butter and materially increases its keeping quality. Buttermakers differ as to the amount of salt which should be used in butter. Very high salting, however, has a tendency to detract from the fine, delicate aroma of butter, while at the same time it tends to cover up slight defects in flavor. Salt very readily absorbs odors and must therefore be kept in a clean, dry place, where the air is pure. It should be of the same temperature as the butter when used.

Fly Cover For Cows.
To keep flies off the animal while milking is in progress a coarse woven fly cover can be thrown over her, and in a bad season such covers can be left on during the day to good advantage.

70 YEARS

There are two kinds of whiskey. One is—the other isn't.

The kind that IS contains all the constituents that come from proper distillation and ageing—That's what makes it REAL whiskey.

The kind that ISN'T is made of alcohol, prune juice and bead oil or is simply alcohol put in charred barrels, and branded whiskey.

The Pure Food Law aims at having the consumer get exactly what he calls for.

When you call for whiskey ask your dealer if it will respond to a government laboratory test. Ask him if he guarantees it.

Then you will know what you are paying your money for. Buy the brand you know, the standard for 70 years. Cyrus Noble—pure whiskey—all whiskey—old whiskey.
