Crook County the Missing Link.

May Push It Through Next Year-Lava Beds Greatest Obstacle.

By all means let us encourage the inter-state automobile road idea that several counties have been urging upon Crook for some time past. While it is admitted that nothing can be done this year because of the extra expense of building the court house, yet many are of the opinion that Crook county could put its share part of the work to be done in this county is about three-quarters of a mile in the lava beds. The proprictors of Belknap Springs are ready with men and money to do their share toward making such a road possible. Harney county is going ahead with its auto road irrespective of what Crook county does. Malheur county is in line, also, and it seems that Crook is the only link missing in an inter-state road that will attract travel from all parts of the United states.

It is possible even now to get au auto across the Cascades, but the lava beds make it a hard prope sition. Isaac Gratton of Portland, made the trip last Monday in a White Steamer and had no trouble but in the lava. The road at that place is wretched, Mr. Gratton says. Again, let us repeat, by all means
