Begin Argument on Receivership.

Federal Judge R. S. Bean heard the opening argument Tuesday in the application for a receiver for the Deschutes Irrigation & Power Company. Jesse Stearns, secretary and attorney of the company, appeared for the defense, and began the presentation, with a history of the company, its debts and troubles, promises and prospects. His first affidavit in reply to that filed by F. H. Sisk, asking for a receiver, was by F. S. Stanley, manager of the company, who plainly stated that the suit brought at this time is not in good faith, but is intended to wreck the company and unhorse the present management, when there is the first prospect of making something out of the enterprise. Mr. Stearns said that no complaint was ever made during the days of depression and financial need of Mr. Stanley's management. It is only when one, at least, and perhaps two, railways are assured the country that Mr. Deshler and his Ohio associates have discovered mismanagement.

In the statement of indebtedness it appears that there were issued $112,000 first mortgage bonds. At a later date there were issued $132,000 collateral trust bonds. Deshler advanced the company $20,000, and Turney, another former director, $35,000. In addition to this indebtedness, it is said that there is something like $100,000 of unsecured claims, making the total obligations of the company something more than $700,000.

Water has been conducted to about 60,000 acres, of which 48,000 have been sold. Under the present contract with the state, which enables the construction company to make a charge of $40 an acre for more than 100,000 acres of the land segregated, it is estimated that good profits will be possible, because there is sure to be a keen demand for the land when the railways get near.

In his argument, Mr. Stearns said that Mr. Deshler, the complainant in the receivership suit, was a director of the company from 1901 until August, 1908, and as such official, approved the contract made with Roscoe Howard, which is held up as being the central point in the conspiracy charge made by the bondholders' interests. Mr. Stearns said he would produce affidavits showing that the minutes of the meetings setting forth details of the contracts were approved by Mr. Deshler and his associates during all of the time that there appeared to be certainty of ultimate loss, and that the mismanagement issue had never been raised until the positive assurance of a railway line had been accepted by the public as guaranteeing to that district transportation.—Telegram.

Ancient Glassmaking. When the council of ten ruled Venice they issued a decree regarding the art of glassmaking. It runs: "If a workman carry his art beyond the limits of his country to the detriment of the republic, he shall be desired to return. If he disobey, his nearest relatives shall be imprisoned. If, in spite of their imprisonment, he remain obstinate in his wish to live abroad, an emissary shall be told off to kill him."

Hymn 333. A youth named Harry Jordan sat at an examination at one of the eastern colleges. When he learned the result he telegraphed to his people: "Hymn 333, verse 5, last two lines, Harry."

The anxious father turned to his hymn book and read the comforting couplet: "Sorrow vanquished, labor ended, Jordan passed."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Curious Fish. There is a fish with four eyes along the sandy shores of tropical American seas. It is the anabiepis and is unique among vertebrates on account of the division of the cornea into upper and lower halves by a dark horizontal stripe and the development of two pupils to each orbit. One pair of these appears to be looking upward, the other sidewise.

operating department every courtesy is shown each other. Why, instead of holding back our freight, it is given the preference. When I made that run with my outfit from Shaniko to Trail Crossing in fifteen hours, I got here in the middle of the night and the Harriman engineers I found encamped at the crossing got up and with lanterns lighted us up the grade. They realized that we had beaten them to it and like men gave us what aid they could. One hour after our arrival we were breaking rock. It was exhausting work, but we got there. The river at this point is narrow and can be crossed for less expense than at any other point. That stake over there," said Mr. Wayment, "is a Harriman stake, and it is just four inches from the center of our grade. We may have a legal battle for this position, but that will be the only kind."

When asked how long it would take to build into Redmond, Mr. Wayment said he thought about fourteen months. That is, the division between Madras and Redmond. He thinks he can work all winter, or not be delayed by the cold weather longer than a few weeks.

As Mr. Wayment was about to leave for Portland he was persuaded to do so by way of Prineville. This would give him a chance to see the country, see the best town in Central Oregon and meet its business men. Mr. Wayment thought this a wonderfully productive country. The alfalfa fields particularly attracted his attention. He was delighted with Prineville and its environment and said that if he could get a suitable house he would move his family here for the winter.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

Third Addition to Prineville, asking that the council select the names for the streets therein. This matter will be taken up also at the meeting to be held Friday evening. In this addition the streets are laid out only 60 feet wide, while these corresponding are 80 feet wide in the other parts of the town. The streets will probably be named to correspond with those already named, as near as possible.

City Marshal Huston asked the council for a two-weeks' leave of absence, stating that he desired to accompany his family to the Seattle exposition. His request was granted.

The marshal stated there were several persons using the city irrigation water from the ditches who desired to continue the service during September. The city contracts expire Sept. 1. The marshal has been paid $25 per month for attending to the water works and it was not thought enough users would want water in September to justify paying him the salary in September. The marshal was directed to serve all who want water this month, and take half of the water rent for his remuneration. All water rents due the city were ordered collected at once.

A Good Position

can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "wireless" or railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country, there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance for advancement. The National Telegraph Institute of Portland, O., operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of railroad and wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details.
