Oldtimers Visit the Fountain of Youth

At the home of Dr. and Mrs. Belknap Tuesday evening an old-time party of schoolmates was given in honor of Mrs. Jennie U'Ren of Eugene, who spent her early life here.

No one was eligible to attend who had not graced the old schoolhouse that stood for many years on the banks of Crooked river. Just how many it would not be fair to tell—suffice it to say that some of the youngsters are now grandparents, and others—well, Time has dealt gently with them. Just let it go at that.

As the guests arrived they were once more introduced and greeted as John, Mary, Ella, St. Ed, George, Manda, Lulu, Mina, Mattie, Issie, Wilda, "Bug," Jennie and Roy, while Charley and Perry were greeted as "recess" and "noon" visitors. Husbands or wives who married one of the select band were greeted more formally, and they later undertook to act as judges when George Slayton and Mrs. U'Ren chose up sides for an old-fashioned spelling match. M. R. Elliott gave out the words, but had trouble when they were spelled in syllables in the good old way. Mrs. U'Ren's side won. In choosing up each person was called by the old maiden name in full, some almost forgetting in the changes time had wrought. The girls were too bashful to sing alone so everybody sang, there were two famous recitations and all played games. Mrs. Sarah Stevens supplied water for the youths of 18—, as she did in days of yore. She smilingly looked upon the children that used to annoy her. It was wondered if Sam Richardson of Salem, Mr. Hackett, Mrs. J. Luckey, Rev. and Mrs. Skipworth and many other teachers did not receive a mental telegram Tuesday night.

Miss Anna Thronson kept the piano in harmony with the moods of the class. Many stories of bygone days were told and much enjoyed. The wheat they ate at Stewart's mill and the good old cinnamon bark they used to chew. When refreshments were served each received ground wheat that had been parched and sweetened. All were compelled to eat as they did at school when they stuck their tongue into a cigar box or bottle lid under their desk. Many seemed to have forgotten how they used their tongue and hesitated so cinnamon bark was passed around and used as spoons by the modest ones. Next came cheap mixed candy. The guests were then invited into the dining room where 22 glasses of lemonade, made from canned sugar was waiting to quench their thirst; also cake to appease the appetite. After a joyful farewell the friends of a life time wended their way home feeling young again.

Traylor, Horsethief, Easily Trained

Last Thursday night Victor H. Traylor stole a horse and saddle from Herbert Rideout's barn at the ranch on Crooked river west of town and struck out for The Dalles on the county road through Warm-spring Reservation.

Sheriff Elkins was notified and went to the Rideout ranch and sized up the situation. He came back to town, got busy with the telephone and in a few minutes had Deputy Sheriff Robinson at Madras on the road after the man. Superintendent Covey at the Warm-spring Agency was also telephoned to stop him. At about 11 o'clock Friday forenoon Traylor rode into the Agency to get feed for the horse and was taken in by the Indian police. Deputy Robinson soon arrived there and took the prisoner back to Madras, where Sheriff Elkins went Friday evening and returned here with the man Saturday.

Traylor waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury by Justice M. D. Powell. There is no question that Traylor will plead guilty, as he was caught with the goods and told the sheriff that he simply stole the horse and thought he could get away with it.

Traylor is a young man in the early twenties. He worked for Mr. Rideout last spring during the hay harvest and was thus familiar with the premises.

Columbia Southern Settlers Protected

The interests of the settlers on the Columbia Southern irrigated lands are to be fully protected. The effort of the State Land Board to cancel the contract of the company is defeated. Judge Bean rendered a decision Monday, holding that no fraud or misrepresentation had been made to the State of Oregon when the Three Sisters Irrigation company entered into its contract to reclaim 27,000 acres lying west of Laidlaw, the water being taken from Tumalo Creek.

In deciding against the state, Judge Bean stated that a better and less injurious remedy than the cancellation of the contract existed, such having been provided by the Federal statute granting power to prosecute such reclamation work. In the event of failure to fulfill contract obligations, it is provided in this statute that the project may be sold in regular manner, protecting the existing settlers who have paid money and giving the greatest possible encouragement to continuance of the work. Judge Bean called attention to the fact that if the company's contract were cancelled now, as the State Land Board asks, the settlers who have paid all or part of the price charged for the lands they took, would be made to suffer heavily, because they would have to enter into entirely new contracts for securing the necessary water to make their lands worth anything.

The source of trouble in this project is the lack of water to irrigate all the land embraced. The project was approved by an engineer sent by the State Land Board and when application for patent was made a special agent was sent to investigate the matter, and this official also reported favorably, acting upon which the Government patented the reclaimed lands to the state. It soon developed that the company had insufficient water for irrigating the land said to be reclaimed and the settlers were given immeasurable trouble. It was then that the state brought the cancellation suit alleging that the contract from the state had been secured by fraud and misrepresentation. None of the settlers is a party to this suit. Judge Bean holds that there was no fraud, but a mere mistake, in which the engineers sent by the state and Federal Government shared.

Bend Masonic Lodge Instituted by Charter

Last Saturday was a day long to be remembered among fraternal circles at Bend. The occasion was the instituting of a new Masonic Lodge at that place, the members there having been granted a charter at the last session of the Grand Lodge in June.

Last Saturday T. M. Baldwin and Dr. J. H. Rosenberg, accompanied by eight other members of Prineville Lodge No. 76, A. F. & A. M., made the run to Bend in their automobiles in about two hours.

Mr. Baldwin, acting grand master, convened the Grand Lodge of Masons in Lara's hall and marched to the Masonic hall where the new lodge was convened, when Mr. Baldwin performed the beautiful and impressive ceremony of instituting and consecrating the new lodge, assisted by members of the Prineville Lodge. The new lodge will be known as Bend Lodge No. 139. After the consecration ceremonies the ladies were invited in to witness the installation of officers of the new lodge.

The following officers of Bend Lodge No. 139 were then duly installed by the acting grand master: Worshipful Master, F. O. Minor; Senior Warden, Dr. U. C. Coe; Junior Warden, Chas. M. Redfield; Treasurer, Dr. C. W. Merrill; Secretary, E. A. East; Senior Deacon, Creed M. Triplett; Junior Deacon, Millard Triplett; Stewards, W. P. Vandever and J. D. Davidson; Tyler, F. E. Smith. After the installation ceremonies all repaired to the banquet room where the lady "members" had prepared a most sumptuous banquet, to which ample justice was done by at least the boys from Prineville. Work in the several degrees was then resumed by the new lodge, and the morning sun was an hour high in the east when the work was concluded and the lodge closed. The Prineville delegation arrived home about 10 o'clock a. m., after voting the Bend people capital entertainers, and their wives and daughters the best cooks on the Deschutes.
