Irrigation Projects Near Prineville

Word from Washington brings encouragement that something may be done with either the Ochoco or Crooked river irrigation projects.

Oregon is one of the largest contributors to this irrigation fund and has received the least from it. Secretary Ballinger feels that the state has something coming and will make restitution as quickly as funds become available.

There are two projects near Prineville that should receive the attention of the government. Preliminary surveys have been made and the feasibility of both sites favorably reported upon. The Crooked river project would cover 100,000 acres. Should it be undertaken by the government water would be stored in the two forks of the river by a dam built just below the junction of south fork and north fork. Such a dam would impound 350,000 acre-feet of water, enough to reclaim the acreage stated. The water would be divided into distributing canals at a point about three miles above Prineville.

Considerable pressure is being brought to bear on the department to secure the construction of the Ochoco project, which is capable of irrigating about 18,000 acres near Prineville. This project would take water from a storage reservoir which can be built to impound the flood waters of Ochoco Creek some six miles above Prineville. Such a reservoir as has been in contemplation would hold 34,000 acre-feet of water. The trouble with this, as with some other Central Oregon projects, is that practically all the land is now in private ownership, and about 40 percent of the entire area is held by the Willamette Valley & Cascade Mountain Road Company. Before the project could be built it would be necessary for the road company to agree to sell its land in small tracts, in order to comply with the terms of the reclamation act. This project, which is comparatively cheap as to cost, possesses one distinct advantage; it is located very near to Prineville, which would furnish market for many of the products of the irrigated farms.

Engineers Blast 1000-Foot Span.

A special from Madras to the Journal dated Nov. 5, says: "A Harriman construction crew commenced blasting to find bedrock upon which to build the abutments for the large bridge which spans Willow creek canyon just west of this place. The bridge with the approaches will be over 1000 feet long.

The Harriman road has established a construction camp about two miles northeast of Madras, where a deep cut is to be made through the divide between Willow creek basin and the Mud-Springs neighborhood.

The Harriman line has a few miles of roadbed completed south of Madras, and there is also a mile or two of grading completed south of Madras, and there is also a mile or two of grading completed in Porter Springs canyon, 11 miles north of here. Most of the completed work was in dirt, and was moved by teams and scrapers.

Porter Spring canyon is surrounded by considerable farming country, and to the east is a large territory devoted to stock raising. This place will probably be a shipping point of some prominence with the completion of the road.

This canyon is about the only place where water can be obtained by digging on the Harriman line, after it leaves the Deschutes river, the line being about 300 feet above and west of the townsite of Madras. Water is not reached again until the irrigated country is reached south of Crooked river."

Application to Enlarge New Ochoco Canal

W. F. King, J. O. Powell and others owning lands in the McKay flat district, have made application to the state for permission to enlarge the canal that is now being constructed by E. T. Slayton, T. H. Lafollette and J. S. Watkins to irrigate 1000 acres owned by the last mentioned parties, and if permission is granted, the canal will be extended a distance of several miles and enlarged to a capacity several times that of the canal now under construction.

While the waters of the Ochoco from whence the supply will be obtained for this new district have already been appropriated for use by the older settlers in the Ochoco valley proper, it is the purpose of the new people to utilize the waters that go to waste every year between April 1 and May 15.

The character of the lands to be irrigated is such that it will absorb enough water in a few days to insure good crops of grain or alfalfa. The land is a deep rich sandy loam and will permit of irrigation at least six weeks sooner than lands in the valley proper.

Nearly 1000 acres will be placed under irrigation by the latest enterprise, and the total will amount to something more than 2000 acres, all of which was considered worthless by many a few years ago. Under the plan of irrigation devised for it, the support of twenty or more families will be possible.

A Surprised Deputy.

A number of years ago the United States marshal of western Pennsylvania sent a warrant to one of his deputies, who was stationed in a back county, for the arrest of a counterfeiter. The deputy knew the man and treated him considerably. When they reached Pittsburg the necessary papers were not at hand to commit the prisoner to jail. The deputy would not take him to a hotel, because he would have to pay the bill out of his own pocket. So he took him to the marshal's office to pass the night there. The deputy was sleepy and the counterfeiter said he was. So the deputy handcuffed his prisoner to himself and lay down on the floor beside the steam register. As soon as the deputy was asleep the counterfeiter took his keys from his pocket, unlocked the manacle and fastened the loose end to the register. Then he took the deputy's watch and what money he had and departed.

"Where is your prisoner?" asked the marshal the next morning, awakening the deputy.

"Doesn't that beat all?" he replied as he tugged at his handcuff and bruised his wrist. "Darned if I don't believe it's the all!"
