FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

For the Home Nurse.
A simple remedy for neuritis is to apply graded horse-radish, prepared the same as for table use, to the temple when the head or face is affected and to the wrist when the pain is in the arm or shoulder.

For a scald or burn apply immediately pulverized charcoal and lincod oil or the raw white of an egg.
To heal an open cut apply alum water twice a day. Powdered rosin is also good. Pound it well in a clean mortar or wooden bowl and when well pulverized place in a sterilized pepper pot and sift it upon the wound. Put a soft cloth over the cut and occasionally wet it with cold water. This will prevent inflammation and soreness.

Horse-radish Plaster.
Few things in the garden afford such quick relief from pain as a leaf of common horse-radish. For sudden cramps, pain in the side or stomach, sore throat or neuritis in the face slightly warm a leaf or two over the stove or lamp till quite limp and then apply to the body. It will not blister or leave any mark. For imbrago first bathe the parts with warm vinegar, then apply two or three leaves of horse-radish and keep quiet.—Chicago Tribune.

Potted Steak.
Cut up small pieces of meat in a frying pan or kettle. When the meat is hot then have two portions of round steak cut thick and divide into five pieces. Fry brown on both sides and then add one cup of boiling water and season. Cut up two onions and one bay leaf. Let boil till tender. Keep adding hot water when it cools down. And when the steak is done thicken the gravy with a little flour.

Homemade Salve.
A healing and most useful salve may be prepared at home by melting one-half pound of mutton tallow and adding one and one-half teaspoonsful of carbolic acid. Pour this mixture in old cold cream jars and allow to cool. Apply this to all cuts and bruises. It always the pain and quickly heals the wounds.

Novel Egg Opener.
A Colorado man has just introduced an egg breaker which reduces to a science the breaking of an egg and makes what was sometimes a painful operation an interesting bit of work. This device consists of an apparatus much like a pair of pliers with long wire handles and semicircular jaws, each equipped with tiny teeth at the end. Above and below the jaws are conical springs, forming a receptacle the shape of an egg. The egg is placed in these springs, and by gripping the handles of the device the jaws press up it, cutting through the shell as neatly as a man might cut a piece of fruit with a knife. The egg is thus opened not only without soiling the cloth, but without burning the hands, which was the invariable experience in the old way.

CUTS THE ROUGHNESS

Double Skirt Braid.
When putting braid on the bottom of a skirt if the braid is first stitched double, then hemmed on the facing by the edges with the folded side projecting just a fraction of an inch below the skirt, the braid will wear twice as long as when put on with the single edge below the skirt.

Rules for Cooking Meat.
Meat for soups should be put on the fire in cold soft water the better to extract its juices. On the contrary, meat to be boiled for table should be put on in hot water, as this causes the outer surface of the meat to contract and by that means retains the juices.

Cleaning Varnish.
Varnished paint can be kept looking as bright as when new by cleaning it with whole lincod. The method is to soak a bag containing the seed for some time in water and then to use it as a cloth to clean the paint.

Peach Stains.
To remove peach stain from white fabrics, to one quart of water add one tablespoonful of chloride of lime. Soak spots overnight and wash in usual way. This will remove any stain caused by vegetable matter.

Stains on the Hands.
Raw tomato is a simple and effective way of removing fruit or vegetable stains from the hands. It answers the same purpose as lemon and in season is much cheaper.

Tallow Removes Ink.
A good way to remove ink stains from wash material is to smear the garment with mutton tallow before sending it to the wash.

A DRAMATIC CLIMAX.

Effect of One Woman's Pathetic Eyes Upon a Jury.
James T. Brady, who was one of New York's greatest lawyers, was once counsel for a young woman in a case involving an attempt to break a will. His client sat by his side. She was a very beautiful young woman, whose eyes seemed always to rivet the attention of those upon whom her glance fell. There was a pathetic expression which affected every one. She sat watching the jury during the course of the trial, and at last there was some complaint that she was attempting by means of her glances to excite the sympathy of the jury.

Then Mr. Brady arose and in one of the most touching and beautiful of all the addresses he ever made in court spoke of the blessings which every one who had an appreciation of beautiful things and could see them enjoyed and dwell for some moments upon the happy lot of the jury who could see the budding of the flowers—it was then springtime—and the charms of nature. Then, suddenly turning to his client, he said, "That blessing is denied my client, for though she has eyes which seem to look upon you, gentlemen, there is no vision in them, for her sight has been taken from her."

She had been, in fact, the victim of total paralysis of the optic nerve, which had not impaired the beauty of her eyes, but had given to them that singular pathetic expression which she was thus falsely charged with employing that she might secure the sympathies of the jury.

HIS CORRECTION.

The American Knew a Little About Shakespeare and English.

An English literary man who visited this country some years ago to lecture frankly declared that he came not expecting to find accurate scholarship among Americans, especially on purely literary subjects, adding affably: "You have been too busy and useful a nation in practical matters to give much time to the arts and graces of learning."

During the dinner at which he made this remark he criticised Shakespeare, sharply declaring that his metaphors often were absurd, "as, for example," he said, "Sleep that knits up the raveled sleeve of care." How ridiculous to figure sleep as knitting up a torn sleeve of a coat!

A young American sitting near him said modestly: "I think the word is not sleeve, but sleeve, the thin stuff of a damaged web. It is a technical expression among weavers."

"In the United States probably," retorted the critic irritably, "Shakespeare never could have heard it. He meant sleeve."

"I believe," persisted the American gently, "the word is printed sleeve in all the old editions. It is not an American word, but has been used for centuries by weavers in Scotland and the north of England."

The visitor frowned and then with English frankness said, laughing: "Thank you, I was mistaken. Perhaps I am mistaken about other things and will be corrected before I leave your shores."

Lofty Tibet.
Although the mystery concerning Tibet has been mostly dispelled as a result of the English invasion, the curious nature of that country continues to excite great interest. Think of an inhabited land covering between 700,000 and 800,000 square miles and having a mean elevation exceeding 16,400 feet, which is considerably higher than Mont Blanc! The loftiest peaks reach an altitude of about 29,000 feet, while the deepest valleys, in the high parts of the plateau, do not descend below 14,400 feet, which is higher than Pike's peak, which is higher than Pike's peak. Toward the south the valleys sink lower, and rice and fruit are cultivated up to 11,500 feet. Here the most important centers of population are Yound-Lassa, Shigatse and Gyantze.—Youth's Companion.

The Value of Money.
"Oh, yes," replied the millionaire, "we make a point of allowing our boy pocket money regularly. Every week his papa hands Bobby $1,000 in small change—fifties and twenties. It's only a trifle; but, do you know, it teaches him the value of money? He isn't quite ten years old, yet he manages his little revenue with a great deal of foresight. It would amuse you to hear him try to beat down a justice of the peace who is fining him for having killed somebody with his automobile. Yes, we insist on his paying for luxuries out of his allowance. We buy his automobiles, but the fines he has to take care of himself."—Puck.

A Helping Hand.
Among the contributors to a minister's donation party was a small but very bright boy belonging to one of the families of the congregation. After obtaining his mother's permission to spend his money for anything he pleased he went to the village store and returned home with a neat package. In it was a pair of suspenders, and attached to them was a card upon which was written in a scrawling hand: "For the support of our pastor."

He Knew His Mamma.
Neighbor—Bertie, your mother is calling you. Bertie—Yes'm, I know it, but I fancy she don't want me very badly. Neighbor—But she has called you seven times already. Bertie—Yes, I know, but she hasn't called "Albert" yet.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The bookkeeping class has organized with Mr. Evans as instructor. The class room in the old court house has been specially fitted up. The students who are taking advantage of the work are: Misses Lotta Smith, Allie Horgan, Etta Houston, Orpha Wright and Messrs. William Criswell, Clarence Rice, Vernon Bell, Aaron Hoffman, Robert Koster and Elmer Martin.

Miss Fay Baldwin registered last week in the training department of the C. C. H. S. We are glad to welcome all students who wish to do special work and hope others will follow Miss Baldwin's example.

The board decided at its last meeting to make an annual appropriation of one hundred dollars for the general library fund and fifty dollars for the library for the training department. The books are to be the property of the Crook County High School, but will be loaned to teachers in all parts of the county. This will be a great advantage to the small schools with limited libraries as in a few years, with this appropriation, a good teacher's library can be collected. At the same meeting, the board decided to have the grounds leveled and fenced. This will improve the appearance of the campus wonderfully.

Mrs. Winnek was a C. C. H. S. visitor, Thursday.

Misses Edna Estes and Gertrude Hodges visited the musical program of the societies, Friday. They assisted the Nightingales with their song, for which we wish to thank them.

The letter received Monday from Superintendent Landers, of Pendleton, named our opponents in the inter-high school debate. We are to be in the triangle with Sherman and Wheeler counties and the debates are to be held at Moro and Fossil.

Athletics.

Both the Ochoconians and Alpha basket ball players have elected their captain, The Ochoconians selected Lawrence Lister, '13 and the Alphas, Robert Kester of the same class. This speaks well for the popularity of the freshmen.

The baskets have been put in place in the gymnasium and the boys are diligently basket throwing.

Alphas.

The society met on November 12th and, after the usual business and the appointing of a committee consisting of Roy Lowther, Ethel Klann and Robert Kester, to draw up a new constitution to take the place of the one misplaced during vacation, listened to one of the best and most carefully prepared programs of the year. Warren Yancey's talk on the society was an incentive to all, especially the freshmen, to not hesitate to take part in the various school contests. The impromptu and readings were interesting and the recitation by Miss Gladys Doak on "The value of a smile" had its lesson. The Alpha paper was an especially commendable edition, as every item was classified and came in its own special department. The characteristics of the members, rhymed, created a great deal of amusement. The last number was one essay on Van Dyke's "Other Wise Man" by Miss Ethel Klann, which was both interesting and instructive.

Miss Fay Baldwin was a society visitor, Friday.

Ochoconian.

The O. L. S. met Friday and the program which was rendered showed that each number had been carefully prepared. The Nightingales made their debut at this meeting and their song, which was encored, showed what a year's practice had accomplished. We feel we are very fortunate in having such an excellent young ladies chorus as the Nightingales and that the thanks of the school is due Miss Conway for her untiring efforts in perfecting them in their work. The reading, "My first pair of boots," by Adolphus Myers was a treat to all. William Criswell's talk on "Disarmament" was both instructive and beneficial to the members of the society. "The Ochoconian News," edited by Miss Ethel Moore and Lawrence Lister was an edition of this historic periodical that will long be remembered. The impromptu by Miss Ethel Kidder deserves special mention. The program concluded with a recitation by Miss Mabel Doak which showed careful preparation.

Seniors and Freshmen.

Last week's paper stated that the bust of Longfellow was presented by Clark Morse, President of '10, which should have read Miss Emerlene Young. The bust is in place in the assembly room and is the incentive to the students that Miss Young suggested she hoped it would be.

Misses Fay Baldwin and Ethel Klann have joined the senior English class.

At the meeting, Monday evening the seniors decided to have rings as their class emblems instead of pins.

Burns Montgomery, of '13, is absent from classes on account of a sprained ankle. We hope he will be able to be with us again soon.

Sophomores and Juniors.

Miss Etta Houston has dropped all of her studies except bookkeeping and is devoting all of her time to this work.

Miss Allie Horgan, a former member of the junior class, is taking up the commercial course.

Letter from Rev.

J. T. Moore

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 6th 1909.

Dear Journal,

One week ago tonight we reached Little Rock, somewhat weary, but after an enjoyable journey.

From Portland we went to Seattle, where we took the steamer for Vancouver, B. C. That was a delightful ride. After seeing Vancouver for a half day, which, by the way, is a thriving little city just across the border, we boarded the Canadian Pacific for St. Paul. From Vancouver almost to Calgary in Alberta is the grandest mountain scenery I ever saw. For me the scenery of the Selkirks and Rocky mountains on the C. P. R. is beyond description.

About 9 o'clock on a moonlight night we crossed the great divide—the summit of the Rockies. There man has painted a great sign "The Great Divide," but the Creator of this old world has truly made it divide. There the water bubbles up out of a rock and part of it flows into a small stream which empties into the Columbia, and is carried out to the Pacific, while the other part flows in another direction and later finds its way into the Hudson Bay.

We crossed the great plains of Alberta and felt the cold wind that sweeps over that northern land. Medicine Hat looked like it got cold enough in winter to shave a fellow, and hot enough in summer to boil him. We had no desire to locate there. We went through the North Dakota wheat fields, and that is certainly a prosperous land, but oh! so cold and the wind sure does blow.

Leaving St. Paul in the morning we had a good look at a part of Minnesota and Iowa. A daylight run from St. Louis to Little Rock gave us a view of south east Missouri and north-east Ark. We are now located in Little Rock. This week has been lovely weather. The flowers are blooming, the oak leaves are beginning to turn brown. We are all well and trying to adjust ourselves to the new surroundings. We miss the sage brush, juniper trees, the wind and sand of the home-land near Prineville. Otherwise we are doing fine and well pleased. But we must have the Journal, and thereby keep tab on the progress of that inland empire, so be sure to send it to us at 1322 west 20th street, Little Rock, Ark. Truly yours, J. T. Moore.
