Another Flouring Mill for Madras

E. S. Isaacs, a prominent milling man of Walla Walla, has been in Madras several days looking after the matter of establishing another flouring mill at this place. Mr. Isaacs has made several trips into Central Oregon during the past summer, looking over the country for the best localities for the production of a choice grade of milling wheat, and he has decided that the country tributary to Madras, with its large production of wheat, excellent quality and the facilities for shipping to market, make this the point at which to erect the mill.

The preliminary arrangements for a concern which will be called the Crook County Milling Company, to be located at Madras, are being carried out and the articles of incorporation are being prepared under the laws of Oregon. The capital stock has been placed at $150,000, and shares will be sold at $100 each.

It is the intention of Mr. Isaacs and his associates to interest the farmers in this vicinity into taking stock in the project to the amount of one-third, or more if they desire it. The Farmers Union is a strong organization in this section, and it is expected to interest the members in the enterprise to the extent that it shall have their support and cooperation when in operation.

A paper has been prepared and headed by Mr. Isaacs for $10,000 worth of stock, and the paper will be circulated among the farmers and business men in and around Madras and it is thought the stock will all be subscribed in a very short time.

Negotiations are well under way with the townsites company for the location of the mill, and as soon as plans and specifications are completed, bids for the construction of the mill will be advertised, and work will commence as soon as material can be secured and placed upon the ground.—Pioneer.

DIRECT ROAD TO REDMOND.

ed it to get into closer touch with the county seat, but a desire to secure the Prineville business and travel when the steel rails connected Redmond with the outside world. He said he realized that Redmond was sure to get one railroad, if not two, the coming summer, and while Prineville had nothing definite in that line, he, on the part of the Redmond people, would offer every facility to handle our railroad business at that town.

After assurance of hearty good will on behalf of the citizens of Prineville, the meeting adjourned.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

What is the Earliest Event in Life You Can Remember?

"I can remember back to my fourth year," said a physician. "I was four during the Philadelphia Centennial of 1876, and I remember two Centennial scenes well. One was a great room full of brass band instruments—horns so big and yellow and shiny that they delighted me. I remember, too, a Turkish coffee room. My father took me into this room. Turke in native dress served the coffee. I liked the place at first; then I saw that it was noisy. The native waiters shouted horribly. I was frightened. I was on the point of tears, but whether I cried or not I can't tell you."

"I can remember back to the time when I was three," said a lawyer. "At the age of three my family took me to Cape May. I saw my father out in the water. He laughed and held out his arms to me, and, all dressed, I ran into the sea to him."

"All of us," said a psychologist, "can remember back to our fourth year. Some of us can even remember back to the second year. It would make an interesting article, a compilation of the earliest memories of a lot of people. The trouble, as a rule, is to fix the date of these memories, so as to be sure of our age at the time."—Pittsburg Press.

PUNCTUATION.

Originated by Aristophanes and Revived by Charlemagne.

Punctuation by means of stops and points, so as to indicate the meaning of sentences and assist the reader to a proper enunciation, is ascribed originally to Aristophanes, a grammarian of Alexandria, Egypt, who lived in the third century B. C. Whatever his system may have been, it was subsequently neglected and forgotten, but was re-introduced by Charlemagne, the various stops and symbols being designed by Warnefried and Aleuin.

The present system of punctuation was introduced in the latter part of the fifteenth century by Aldus Manutius, a Venetian printer, who was responsible for our full stop, colon, semicolon, comma, marks of interrogation and exclamation, parenthesis and dash, hyphen, apostrophe and quotation marks. These were subsequently copied by other printers until their use became universal.

Most ancient languages were innocent of any system of punctuation. In many early manuscripts the letters are placed at equal distances apart, with no connecting link between, even in the matter of spacing, an arrangement which must have rendered reading at sight somewhat difficult.—Chicago News.

Bad Eggs.

Seated in a dark, cool cellar, a lighted candle in one hand, three eggs in the other, the egg candier talked. "No egg is unsalable," said he. "You can sell an egg when there's nothing left of it but the shell. Who buys it then? The kid glove maker. He beats his kids soft in a yolk bath, and the ripper that great foaming yellow bath is the more joyously the kid glove maker splashes about in it. Here's a half dozen fresh brokens, O. K. but for the shells. The confectioners 'll take 'em. This couple is what you might call fair—what your grocer would term 'fresh'; not 'new laid' nor 'best fresh'—only 'fresh.' Such eggs you could stand in a Spanish omelet, but not boiled. We'll split them and sell the yolks to low class bakers and the whites to papermakers for staining."

Easily Pleased.

If you wish to make a Baganda perfectly happy, all you need to do is to say, "Way wally," which means a sort of supremely earnest "Well done." The moment this talismanic expression has left your lips the native to whom it is addressed will probably fall on his knees, and, clasping his two hands together, will sway them from side to side as if he were playing a concertina, while all the time his face beams with the most benignant and compulsive smile, and he purrs "A-o, a-o, a-o," as much as to say, "My cup of joy is overflowing."—Winston Churchill in Strand Magazine.

Fruitful Comparison.

"That girl is a peach," enthusiastically remarked a speculator.

"Yes," said another, "and she is the apple of her father's eye."

"She and young Blinks would make a fine pair," suggested a third.

"But," objected another in the group, "a fellow like Blinks would find her something of a lemon in the garden of love."

A Person to Be Avoided.

"Palanquin is certainly a man to avoid. People have told me stories about him which are not edifying."

"Really? You do well to tell me, for I need not now give him back the money he loaned me."—Paris Figaro.

Getting Desperate.

Dolly—There's Miss Oldgirl. She used to say she would never marry until she got an excellent proposal. May—And now? Dolly—Oh, now she's dropped the "excellent."—Illustrated Bits.

A Noley Caucus.

"Papa, will you tell me one thing?"

"Yes, my son."

"If crows were to hold a meeting and swear at one another, would be what they call a caw-caus?"

Clothing Cleaned and Pressed.

Mrs. Elvora Barker will open a Parlor on Monday, November 16th, in the rooms back of the telephone central office on the ground floor of the Masonic building. Men's clothing cleaned, pressed and repaired. All kinds of sewing and dressmaking done. Wedding trousseaus a specialty.

ASSERTED HERSELF.

The Young Woman Also Had a Few Questions to Ask.

The young woman was being interviewed by her prospective employer. The man bit off his words and hurried them at her in a way to frighten an ordinary girl out of her wits.

"Chew gum?" he asked.

"No, sir."

"Walk slanting?"

"No, sir."

"Know how to spell correctly?"

"Yes, sir."

"Use the telephone every other minute?"

"No, sir."

"Usually tell the office force how much the firm owes and all the rest of the private business you learn?"

"No, sir."

He was thinking of something else to ask her when she took a hand in the matter and put a few questions.

"Smoke cigars when you're dictating?"

"Why—or—not?" he gasped in astonishment.

"Slam things around when business is bad?"

"No."

"Lay for your employees when they get caught in a block some morning?"

"No, indeed."

"Think you know enough about grammar and punctuation to appreciate a good stenographer when you get one?"

"I—I think so."

"Want me to go to work, or is your time worth so little that?"

He interrupted her enthusiastically: "Kindly hang up your things and let's get at these letters."—Judge.

WOOD LOTS OF JAPAN.

Example Furnished of Tree Growing on Small Plots.

In these times of great drains on the timber supplies, caused by the heavy demand for forest products of all kinds, Americans may see in Japan an example of what can be done in growing wood on small plots.

That country contains 21,000,000 wood lots, about three-fourths of which belong to private persons and one-fourth to communes. The average size of the plot is less than nine-tenths of an acre. They usually occupy the steepest, roughest, poorest ground. In this way land is put to use which would otherwise go to waste and if unwooded would lose its soil by the wash of the dashing rains.

From Japan's wood lots the yearly yield of lumber is about eighty-eight feet, board measure, an acre and three-fourths of a cord of firewood. In many cases the yield is much higher. More than 500,000,000 trees are planted yearly to make up what is cut for lumber and fuel.

With all the care in cutting and the industry in replanting it is by no means certain that Japan's forests are holding their own. If the preservation of the forests is doubtful there, it is evident that depletion must be alarming rapid in other countries which cut unsparingly and plant very little.

On the other hand, it is encouraging to see what can be done with rough, steep and poor land. The United States has enough of that kind to grow billions of feet of lumber.—Pathfinder.

"Drunk With Thy Beauty."

Charles Dickens once had an argument with a friend about Byron's expression, "Drunk with thy beauty," to which he made great objection. During the discussion the novelist gazed as if enraptured at his host's fair haired daughter, who was in the room. At last he sprang to his feet, struck a dramatic attitude, clasped his heart with his hands and stalked to the window, where he wrote on the white woodwork:

Voted Twice.

Sir Gavan Duffy, formerly speaker of the legislative assembly of Victoria, was once returned to his seat by a single vote majority. On visiting his constituents subsequently, he was received with a special warmth by an Irish fellow countryman.

"And so," said Sir Gavan Duffy to his friend, "you were one of my supporters."

"No, sir," was the reply. "I was two of them."

The Boss.

"But," exclaimed the man of delicate sensibilities, "will your conscience permit you to do as you suggest?"

"Look here, friend," answered the New York politician, "I am accustomed to be bossed even by my own conscience."—Washington Star.

Not Modesty.

"Sometimes," said the press humorist, "I think my jokes are rotten. I suppose that's my modesty."

"No," explained a friend, "that's your common sense."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

They Certainly Keep It Dusted.

Women in all lands are the custodians of speech. They preserve its purity. To them must go much of the credit of the improvement in American English.—New York World.

Used to It.

She—I suppose it would break your heart if I were to say that I can only be a sister to you. He—Not at all. I'm used to having girls say that.—Exchange.

Do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of.—Franklin.
