A SCISSORS ARTIST.

Wonderful Feats Performed by Joanne Koetren.

More than 200 years ago a little girl born at Amsterdam, Holland, was a peculiar child in that she cared whatever for play and sport, but found her greatest delight in makng copies of things about her, imitating in wax every kind of fruit and unking on silk with colored floss excopies of paintings which were

But after she had become very complished in music, spinning and em-broidery she abandoned all these for a still more extraordinary art-that of cutting. She executed landscapes, marine views, flowers, animals and portraits of people of such striking resemplance that she was for a time quite he wonder of Europe. She used white papers for her cuttings, placing them over a black surface, so that the minute openings made by her scissors formed the "light and shade."

The czar, Peter the Great, and others of high rank paid her honor. One man high in office valuty offered her 1,000 orins for three small cuttings. empress of Germany paid her 4,000 florins for a trophy she had cut, bearing the arms of Emperor Leopold, crowned with eagles and surrounded by a garland of flowers. She also cut the emperor's portrait, which can now seen in the Royal Art gallery in Vienna. A great many people went to see her, and she kept a book in which princes and princesses wrote their

After she died, which was when she had lived sixty-five years, her husband, Adrian Block, erected a monument to her memory and had designed upon it the portraits of these titled visitors. Her cuttings were so correct in effect and so tasteful as to give both dignity and value to her work and constitute her an artist whose exquisite skill with the scissors has never before or since been equaled.

CAMELS HARBOR HATRED.

Wait Until an Opportunity Arrives For Revenge.

The Arab who has angered a camel will throw his clothes upon the ground, and the infuriated beast after stamping on them and tearing them asunder with its teeth goes on its way, and the driver is thereafter quite safe, as it seems to be an axiom with the camel that no man shall be put in

The camel is stupid save when angry and then seems to become almost preternatural in carrying out its vengeful designs. Palgrave relates the following story of a camel's revenge, which serves to Illustrate this point: "A lad of fourteen had conducted a large camel laden with wood from one village to another at a half hour's distance. As the animal loltered or turned out of the way its conductor struck it repeatedly and harder than it seemed to have thought he had a right to do; but, not finding the occasion favorable for taking immediate quits, it bode its time.' That time was not long in coming.

"A few days later the same lad had to reconduct the beast, but unladen, to his own village. When they were about halfway on the road and at some distance from any habitation the camel suddenly stopped, looked deliberately round in every direction to assure itself that no one was in sight and, finding the road clear of passersby, made a step forward, seized the unlucky boy's head in its monstrous mouth and, lifting him up in the air, fung him down again on the earth with the upper part of his skull completely torn off. "Having thus satisfied its revenge, the brute quietly resumed its pace toward the village, as though nothing were the matter, till some men who had observed the whole, though unfortunately at too great a distance to be able to afford timely help, came up and killed it."-London Telegraph.

Describing the stringent police regulations of Berlin, a citizen of that city by way of illustration told the following story: "Schmidt and Krause met one morning in the park. "'Have you beard,' says Schmidt, the sad news about Muller?" " 'No,' says Krauss. 'What is it?'

"'Well, poor Muller went boating on the river yesterday. The boat capsized, and he was drowned. The water was ten feet deep.' "'But couldn't he swim?"

"'Swim? Don't you know that all persons are strictly forbidden by the police to swim in the river,"-Philadelphia Record.

Not Mentioned by Herodotus. Xerxes was meditating upon his good luck in having been made king by his royal father in preference to the eldest son.

"Still," he said, "if the succession had been determined by a primary election I would have got it just the same. Naturally everybody would have marked an X opposite my name." Subsequently, however, the Greeks gave him the double cross at Plataes. -Chicago Tribune.

"And you say you almost starved to death in your last position?" said the

LIGHTNING AND SHIPS.

Vessels Are Struck More Frequently Than is Supposed.

In spite of the popular impression to the contrary, ships remote from the land are seldom damaged by lightning. although some of the most awe inspiring displays of atmospheric elec-tricity are frequently witnessed by those on board of them, Standing rigging and even parts of the running gear are now made of steel wire, and this substitute for the old fashioned hemp serves the purpose of lightning conductor when the ship is not fitted with such an aid to safety. The electric current is conveyed down the wire rigging and reaches the sea through the vessel's metal hull. Damage occurs only if the current be interrupted on its way down. In a comparatively large proportion of instances the fore royal truck is struck by lightning, that of the main less frequently and the missen least of the head occurred to warships and merhulls and hempen rigging. In July, 1802, as thirteen salling vessels of the East India company were trying to round the cape in the vicinity of Algon bay, homeward bound, two of them, the Britannia and the Bombay Castle, were struck by lightning. The fore flames, and the masts had to be cut away in order to save the ships and their combustible cargoes. A heavy gale was blowing, the night was dark, and the other ships of the fleet, which were hove to at the time, were witnesses of this thrilling incident.

Many vessels are now fitted with lightning conductors of approved types lest the wire rigging should fall to carry off the electric current. In May, 1896, shortly after a severe thunderstorm, accompanied by lightning and rain, in 3 degrees south, 87 degrees east, the P. and O. steamship Victoria had a sudden increase of deviation amounting to 6 degrees in both the standard and the wheelhouse compasses, and later it was discovered that the lightning conductor on the fore had fused. The ship must have been struck by lightning during the storm.— Knowledge Magazine,

WALL STREET "TIPS."

Best Place to Plant Them if They Come Your Way.

seasoned Wall street campaigner condenses a life of practical observation in the remark: "Stock market 'tips' are, as a rule, founded on nothing better than guesswork or pure invention. Although usually without value, openly peddled out to the publie and not possible to trace to any reliable source, they come clothed in such a garb of mystery and apparent importance that there are always a lot of ill informed persons who will ac-

"Often these so called 'tips' are but the whispered suggestions of some manipulator who was confident that his mysterious, semiconfidential bint would travel and be made the basis of large buying of some stock he was especially auxious should be largely sold. "It is told of one great speculative magnate of the past generation that when he was approached by the pastor of a rich and fashionable Fifth avenue church in search of means by which his lips close to the cierical ear and whispered: 'Buy Pacific Mail. It's a sure thing. If you lose on it I'll make good your losses.'

"The pastor departed gleefully. Some two weeks later he called at the office of the manipulator and deplored the great financial losses he had incurred in following the confidential 'tip.' 'How much were they?' asked Mr. G., and on being told he drew his personal check for the amount.

"The minister took it and after expressing his thanks hesitated a moment and then said: 'But how about my parishioners? You placed no ban of secrecy on me, and their losses have been enormous.'

"The financier smiled grimly as be remarked, 'You see, doctor, those were the fellows I was after.'

"This story may be true or may not, but it points a moral. If you get a 'tip' on Wall street bury it in the back yard and forget it."-Cleveland Leader,

A Double Headed Bull. On the occasion of a public reception

at Napler, Australia, the school children of the town, after being duly complimented by his excellency from County Tyrone on the hearty manner in which they had rendered the national anthem, were solemnly assured that if they put their shoulders to the wheel they would be sure to reach the top of the tree, upon which a compatriot turned to me and said, "Sure, it was an axletgee he meant, bedad!"-London Spectator.
