Big Crowd at the Basket Ball Games gon

The first basket ball games of the season which were played last night at the club hall was attended by a large and enthusiastic andience.

Athalf past seven the girls were called onto the floor and the way they played for a few minutes made the boys feel that they would have commercial value and if it were to work some to have any part of possible to grow them in sufficient the public's favor. Foster, referee; Ashby, time keeper. By using a little arithmetic we game between the boys. The two teams were very evenly matched, the Alphas having a slight advantage in weight. The first half ended disastrously for the Ochoconians. The score was eight to two in favor of the Alphas. The second half took a different turn. The Ochoconians made basket after basket until time was called. The score stood ten to ten and the game had to continue until one team or the other made two points. After a few minutes of hard playing the Alphas were successful and won by a score of twelve

Oregon Trunk to Cross Columbia

A bill has been introduced by Repre sentative Ellis anthorizing the building of a bridge across the Celilo canal and Columbia river by the Oregon Trunk railroad to connect its Deschutes railroad with the North Bank

The Oregon Trunk is to have a bridge, after the same plan as that of the Northern Pacific across the Columbia at Vancouver, constructed across the Columbia at the mouth of the Deschutes.

The bill authorizing the construction of the bridge was introduced before congress by Congressman Ellis.

Plans for the bridge call for a modern steel structure to cost approximately $2,500,000. The work of construction is to be commenced as soon as the consent of congress is gained. The bridge is to connect the North Beardman was a writer of plays, litimately fairly well known in his For nearly twenty years he struggled and fought his way along without meeting with any very proounced success, each play in turn proving more or less of a failure. At ast, however, he produced a play that really caught the public taste. He and the famous Sheridan happened to be present together on the opening night. All went well. Success followed sucess, and applause greeted and ended each scene. At the end of the second act Beardman's elation got the better of his discretion, and, leaning over to ward Sheridan-as usual, too witty to be merely sympathetic-be exclaimed: "Sheridan, Sheridan, it's going to be success, a complete success

"Ah, yes," murmured Sheridan, with exquisite compassion in his voice, "too bad, too bad!" "Too bad?" stammered his friend, completely taken off his guard. "Why, too bad that it should prove a success?" "Because now," retorted Sheridan, "it'll take you another twenty years to

A firm of shady outside London brokers was prosecuted for swindling. In acquitting them the court, with great severity, said:

"There is not sufficient evidence ! convict you, but if any one wishes t know my opinion will refer to me.

Next day the firm's advertisement appeared in every available medium with the following, well displayed: "Reference as to probity, by special permission, the lord chief justice of England."

His Reformation.

He was rather given to late hours, and his wife remonstrated with him, so he promised her faithfully that he would reform. It would have been all right if his friends had not heard of it. "So John H. has reformed, has he? Humph, we'll see." They "saw" him in procession. First he met one old chum, then another, and it never dawned upon him that is was a conspiracy. The first night that John II. reached to his wife it was very late, or, rather, it was very early. In fact, it was early morning. He took off his boots, managed to hang his hat up and walked softly into the room where his wife slumbered. So far all was good. He divested himself of his coat, and just as he was hanging it on the gas bracket his wife woke up, "Why, John," she exclaimed, "what on earth are you getting up so early

This was a poser, but John was equal to the occasion.
"That's all right," he said. "You know I've reformed, Mary, an' there's lots of people I've got to see early in

And he deliberately put on his cont and boots, found his hat and went out again, while Mrs. H. turned over, with a fiendish chuckle, and went to sleep.

In the olden times a woman in the north of Scotland went to visit her husband, who was condemned to be hanged on the following day. The doomed man began to give his instructions to his wife preparatory to bidding her farewell, when all at once she broke in upon the conversation and exclaimed, "By the bye, John whaur will I plant the tattles this year?" The unfortunate man, as may be imagined, grew exceedingly indignant at the indifference of his wife and exclaimed angrily: "What need I care whaur ye plant them? I'm not likely to need ony o' them." "Hech." replied the woman, turning to the warden, with a wag of the head, "oor John's huffed because he's gaun to be hanged the morn!" and marched out of
