More Litigation for Columbia Southern

Suit to have the Columbia Southern Irrigation Company and the Columbia Southern Irrigating Company declared insolvent and for the appointment of a receiver was begun in the Circuit court by F. H. Hanke, representing the settlers who contracted for the purchase of land from the defendant companies and who claim that the irrigation companies have not fulfilled their part of the contract, says the Telegram. Hanke asks that the court compel the stockholders in the defendant companies to pay the amount claimed, in proportion to their capital stock. Among the defendants is W. H. Moore, now on trial in the Circuit Court for alleged mismanagement of the funds of the Oregon Trust and Savings Bank, of which he was president. Other defendants in the criminal cases against the officers of the Oregon Trust and Savings Bank are made defendants in the suit brought by F. H. Hanke. They include E. E. Lytle, H. A. Moore and W. Cooper Morris.

Hanke says he bought property from the irrigation companies in April, 1904, and that it was located in Crook county. The Three Sisters Irrigating Company, which is among the defendants, agreed to reclaim the land under the Carey Act. Hanke agreed to pay for the release of a lien of the Columbia Southern Irrigation Company on the property for the sum of $1345.45. He says he actually paid the Columbia Southern Irrigation Company $798. Subsequently, the Columbia Southern Irrigation Company transferred to the Columbia Southern Irrigating Company all its rights and contracts. The plaintiff further claims that neither the Three Sisters Irrigating Company, Columbia Southern Irrigating Company nor Columbia Southern Irrigating Company performed all or any of the terms of the contract with him, and that the irrigating system was never completed. All construction work on the system has been abandoned, he states.

The complaint alleges that the Columbia Southern Irrigating Company has outstanding liabilities for moneys borrowed in a sum in excess of $20,000 and liabilities based on breach of contract in excess of $100,000, and that the company is wholly insolvent. He says he has rescinded his contract and demanded the refund of his investment, but that this has been refused.

Hanke says the company was incorporated January 1, 1903, with a capital stock of $100,000. He says E. E. Lytle subscribed for 33,334 shares, W. H. Moore for 33,333, W. A. Laidlaw for 33,333, and that thereafter W. H. Moore transferred to H. A. Moore 14,167 shares, and to J. D. Laidlaw 5000 shares.

It is alleged that no part of the original subscription to the capital stock was paid prior to the voluntary sales and transfers and that the defendants are indebted to the Columbia Southern Irrigation Company and to its creditors on account of such subscriptions in sums ranging from $4167 to $85,000 apiece. The Oregon Trust & Savings Bank is shown to have been largely interested in the alleged insolvent company and it is stated that some of the stockholders, who were also interested in the Oregon Trust, unloaded several thousand shares of their stock on to the bank. These stockholders included W. A. Laidlaw, R. W. Wilson and J. W. Blain.

According to the further claims in the complaint the original subscribers to the capital stock of the company are justly indebted to the Columbia Southern Irrigating Company and its creditors to the total amount of stock subscribed by them and that they are severally liable in the total sum of $300,000. This suit in equity is brought in Hanke's behalf and also in behalf of such other creditors of the irrigation company as shall intervene and come into the suit as parties to plaintiff.

It is admitted that certain of the individual defendants are insolvent and unable to respond to an order of the court directing them to pay funds, but Hanke says he is unable to specify just how many are insolvent. He wants those who are able to settle.

The complete list of defendants in the suit is as follows: Three Sisters Irrigation Company, Columbia Southern Irrigation Company, Columbia Southern Irrigating Company, W. A. Laidlaw, E. E. Lytle, W. H. Moore, J. Laidlaw, Guy D. Wilson, J. W. Blain, Edwin Caswell, Seneca Smith, C. L. Diven, H. C. Leonard, W. A. Rutherford, A. Bump, P. L. Willis, C. M. Keep, D. E. Keasey, I. Yerex, Yerex Brothers Company, J. Frank Watson, Merchants National Bank, W. Cooper Morris, H. G. Sahstrom, H. W. Davis, L. B. French, W. T. Hislop, T. W. Clark, F. A. Sweeney and Van de Lashmunt.

A Mail-Order Ax.

A rather amusing story is told of a man who went into a hardware store in a neighboring town and wished to purchase an ax, says an Ohio paper. Being shown the article and informed that the price was $1.15, he said:

"Why, I can get that same kind of an ax from a mail-order house for ninety cents."

"Very well," said the hardware man; "I will give it to you for the same price, provided you will do the same with me as you will do with it."

"All right," replied the customer, as he handed over a dollar bill, the merchant giving him back ten cents in change.

"Now," said the hardware man, "I want 25 cents more to pay express charges," which the purchaser gave him. "How much did your ax cost you?"

"One dollar and fifteen cents," the man answered.

"Very good. Now give me 5 cents more for money-order fees and postage," which the purchaser had to hand over. "Now, who much did your ax cost you?"

"One dollar and twenty cents," said the customer.

"Not so cheap after all," said the merchant, whereupon he picked up the ax, tossed it back on the shelf, and told the customer to call for it in ten days, as that would be as soon as he could get it if he had ordered it from the mail-order house.

ANGORA GOATS.

They Have a Natural Instinct For Eating Brush.

The brush eating instinct of Angora goats is being successfully demonstrated on the Lassen national forest, in California, where they are eating trails for fire guards through the brushy areas on the slopes of the mountains. The animals, which number 3,000, have been divided into two bands and under the care of the herders are grazed within certain well defined areas, so that their work may be concentrated on the brush within those limits.

The result is that they have practically killed nearly all the brush in the course, either by eating it up entirely or by breaking, as in the case of the heavy manzanita bushes. At the beginning of the experiment there was some doubt as to the goats' willingness to eat the manzanita, but it has been found that where there is little else they will just as readily attack it as any other bushes.

The grazing season was so late this year in the Lassen forest that the goats did not begin operations until about the middle of June, but since then they have made rapid progress, and the result promises to be a success from every point of view.

The trails will first be opened and then kept free of sprouts by the goats, saving the government considerable labor in cutting them out by hand, as has been done heretofore, while the brushy forage, which otherwise would have been wasted, will support 3,000 goats very comfortably.

The Age of Cattle.

At twelve months an animal should have all its milk (calf) incisors in place.

Fifteen Months.—At this age the central pair of incisors (milk teeth) may be replaced by a pair of permanent incisors (pinchers), these being through the gums, but not in wear.

Eighteen Months.—The middle pair of central incisors at this age should be fully up and in wear, but the next pair (the first intermediary) not yet through the gums.

Twenty-four Months.—The mouth at this age will show two middle (permanent broad) incisors, fully up and in wear.

Thirty months generally show six broad permanent incisors, the middle and first intermediary fully up and in wear; the next pair (second intermediary) well up, but not in use.

Thirty-six months show three pairs of broad teeth, which should be fully up and in wear, and the corner milk teeth may be shedding, with the corner permanent just appearing through the gum.

Thirty-nine Months.—Three pairs of broad teeth will be fully up and in wear. The corner teeth (incisors) through the gum are not in wear.

Heat in Cows.

Difficulty is often experienced in catching certain cows in heat. Some animals do not come in heat regularly and show scarcely any signs when the period is on. A healthy cow should be in heat once in three weeks and during the period is excitable, falls off in milk and shows many other unmistakable symptoms. The only course open where a cow does not show signs is to try her once or twice a week for at least three weeks. If she fails to show during this time, wait a week or two and repeat the program. It often happens that cows will not breed from one cause or another. There is no remedy, so far as we are aware, that will aid materially in bringing on the period. Of course proper feed and care and not allowing breeding animals to lay on too much fat can but assist in the maintenance of all normal body functions.

New Sheep Disease.

The first authentic case in the United States of gid, a brain disease peculiar to sheep, has been found on a farm in central New York state, according to Dr. V. A. Moore, director of the State College of Veterinary Medicine.

The disease, he said, is common in Great Britain and Germany, but had never been definitely found in this country.

The malady is a form of staggers and is often fatal, but Dr. Moore says prompt preventive measures will quickly check its spread.

Smallest Cows.

The smallest cows in the world are found in the Samoan Islands. The average weight of the males does not exceed 200 pounds. The females average about 100 pounds, are very stockily built and are seldom taller than a Merino sheep. In color these cattle are nearly all alike, a reddish mouse color marked with white. They have very large heads, and their horns are of exceptional length.

Rye Meal For Dairy Cows.

The Pennsylvania experiment station has discovered that rye meal as a part of a properly balanced ration for dairy cows is as efficient in milk and butter production as an equal weight of cornmeal.
