Big Touring Car Spills Occupants

What might have been a serious automobile accident was narrowly averted Saturday noon just outside of the city limits, when a big White steamer turned over on its side, bruising and scratching its occupants but not otherwise injuring them.

It was at the dinner hour when two big touring cars passed through Prineville at a pretty good clip bound for Shaniko with a party of Portland real estate men. It was raining, or snowing rather, at the time, which made the going very slippery. On reaching the outskirts of town, about a hundred yards north of the Kester feed stables, the roadway narrows to a single track, with quite a steep embankment. It was at this point that the car skidded and the left-hand front wheel struck the ditch, toppling over the car. The wheel was buckled and the axle badly bent. But for the top the car would have turned turtle on its occupants.

In the auto were P. H. Burns of Gresham, William Brown of Bend, and the driver, J. A. Jones of Portland. The car is the property of the White Automobile Company of Portland.

The Villain's Teeth.

The two sets of false teeth looked just alike, but one set cost $10 more than the other. "There is a lot of extra work on those expensive teeth," said the dentist. "They are made for an actor who always plays the part of heavy villain in melodrama, and he has to have teeth that he can bite with. I experimented on three different sets of teeth before I got the combination. Somehow the nice, even teeth that I usually turn out wouldn't permit the villain to 'saw' that he deems in to escape with sufficient venom. You wouldn't believe how much tinkering it takes to fix teeth into shape for the 'deaths' and 'od's bloods' to sound just right. Of all the people I ever made teeth for the heavy stage villain is hardest to fit."—New York Press.

What is a Gentleman?

I'll have to give you the real definition of a real gentleman: "A man that's clean inside and out; who neither looks up to the rich nor down on the poor; who can lose without squealing and who can win without bragging; who is considerate of women, children and old people; who is too brave to lie, too generous to cheat and who takes his share of the worst and lets other people have theirs."—New York Sun.

He Was Wise.

"It seems queer that she ever took a fancy to him. He isn't at all the kind of man one would expect her to admire."

"I know, but he always had a way of noticing it when she happened to have on a new hat or a gown that had just come from the dressmaker."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Tommy's Question.

Tommy—Papa, when a thing is bought it goes to the buyer, doesn't it?
Tommy's Papa—Yes, my son, Tommy—Then how is it that when you buy coal it goes to the cellar?
