Jay Bowerman Acting Governor

The Oregonian of June 17 says: "Jay Bowerman, president of the State Senate, arrived in Salem on the 4 o'clock electric car and went at once to the capital, where he took the oath of office as acting governor of Oregon. The oath was given by Justice Eakin, of the Supreme Court. The elevation of the senator's president to the head of the state government was accomplished without ceremony. A few friends from the city and attaches of the different offices greeted the new governor, who proceeded with the business of the office within a few minutes of his arrival.

His first official act was to affix his signature to the notarial commission of M. E. Fowler of Portland. After signing a number of papers that were awaiting his attention, a meeting of the desert land board was called. In the evening, a meeting of the State Land Board was held.

While it was the general opinion of attorneys that the oath of office was unnecessary, the Attorney-General advised the formality to remove any question that might arise later.

Jay Bowerman is the first governor to reach that position in this state by virtue of his position as president of the senate. He is 33 years of age and was born in Iowa. His mother lives in this city.

After cleaning up a number of routine matters that have accumulated, Acting Governor Bowerman will go next week to Eastern Oregon, to attend a session of court where he has some cases set for trial.

Discussing his probable policy in regard to public matters, Acting Governor Bowerman said tonight: "I did not come down here to start something. I shall not fire all the appointive officers and pardon all the convicts. In the main I think it may be said that I will carry out the policies of the Benson administration. However, I shall use my best judgment in all matters that require my attention and decide questions on their merits.

The Journal of June 20 has the following concerning the health of Gov. Benson: Master Fish Warden McAllister returned to Salem June 19 from San Francisco, where he went to talk over the matter of his resignation with Governor Benson, and he says the governor is in good spirits and is improving rapidly under the care of the physicians. The governor goes out every afternoon to visit his physicians or to a ball game and expects to return to Salem in three or four weeks.

McAllister says Governor Benson expects to return during July and will take up his duties in the executive office and make a campaign for reelection as secretary of state.

McAllister's resignation from the position he now holds as master fish warden has been handed to Governor Benson and will take effect July 1.

Crook County Developments

The Odin Falls Irrigation & Power Company is at work on a project which will reclaim 7000 acres of exceptionally fertile land lying directly on the Deschutes river in Crook county, near the Hill-Harriman lines now building. Water for irrigation will be taken from the Deschutes river immediately below Cline Falls and carried by flume within the river gorge for some 20,000 feet to Odin Falls Cove. This cove faces the Deschutes river and contains 2000 acres of very fertile land, with an elevation of but 2800 feet. The soil derived from basaltic rocks, the common or principal minerals being quartz, hornblende and feldspar with which is associated considerable quantities of volcanic ash. It contains no alkali. It is surrounded by high rim rock and, owing to the sheltered location is much more free from frost effects than the surrounding territory, making it well suited to fruits and vegetables. It is the intention to subdivide the land into 40-acre tracts and establish a colony thereon. A small townsite has been laid out at Odin Falls, near the center of the tract, in a most attractive location. This townsite will go with the land and is arranged to provide a central point of residence where a community school, church and other public buildings can be maintained under the exclusive ownership and control of the colony.

An extension of this project will carry water across the Deschutes river and along the east bank for nine miles, where a pumping plant will be built to lift the water 100 feet to the high level plateau between the Deschutes and Crooked rivers, comprising 8000 acres of the most fertile land in Central Oregon. The soil is exceptionally heavy and deep and the water drainage is perfect. The river canyons on either side are from 600 to 1000 feet deep. The resulting perfect air drainage, together with the great accumulation of heat stored in the canyon walls from the sun during the day, and which is slowly given off at night, makes injury from frosts almost unknown on this peninsula. It is, in every way, especially well adapted to fruit and, with water, will develop rapidly into the garden spot of Crook County.

A contract has been let to the Pacific Electrical Engineering Company of this city for the construction of a power plant at Odin Falls, on the Deschutes river, where hydro-electric power will be generated for pumping water for irrigation, and for commercial uses at Prineville, Redmond, Madras and Opal City. Work on construction is already under way and will be pushed to completion as fast as men and materials can be secured.—Portland Daily Abstract.

CROOK COUNTY TO BE CARVED

Redmond Wields the Knife.

WANTS TO BE COUNTY SEAT

Prineville and Bend Left Out in the Cold — Now Rome Will Howl.

A special dispatch from Salem to the Oregonian, dated June 20, says that the latest initiative petition presented for signature in this city is one for the creation of Deschutes County, out of the northwest quarter of Crook County, with Redmond as the county seat.

The proposed county contains 2800 square miles and has a population of about 1300 people. It includes the towns of Redmond, Laidlaw, Madras, O'Neil, Cross K-ys, Lamonta and Culver, but does not take in either Prineville or Bend. Its dividing line lies between ranges 14 and 15, east of the Willamette meridian, and its south boundary lines between township 16 and 17, south. It is certain that the proposed county will meet with bitter opposition not only from Prineville, but also from Bend. The east boundary line of the proposed county passes within six miles of Prineville and embraces some of the richest land in the Crooked river valley, while the south line passes within five miles of Bend, and takes in many of the irrigated farms under the ditches of the Columbia Southern and Deschutes Irrigation & Power Company.

Other proposed counties are Clark, Otis, Orchard, Umpqua, Nesmith and Williams.

Prineville Masons Honored at Portland

T. M. Baldwin was chosen Deputy Grand Master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Oregon without opposition last Thursday at Portland, a position that assures him the highest office in the state next year, that of the Grand Master.

Other Prineville masons who were in attendance at the grand lodge at its last session were W. F. King, D. P. Adamson, and C. S. Edwards. Mrs. T. M. Baldwin, Mrs. D. P. Adamson and Miss Bertha Baldwin were in attendance at the Eastern Star meetings which were also held in Portland at the same time. Mrs. Baldwin was reappointed Grand Sentinel in the Eastern Star.

Degrees conferred on Prineville delegates were the knight's templar or commandry, W. F. King and T. M. Baldwin; shrine, W. F. King; and the past high priest degree, D. P. Adamson. The past high priest degree is one of high rank, there being but one other member in Crook county so far as is known to the local masons, Dr. E. O. Hyde of this city, who received the degree several years ago.

Wool Sales at Shaniko.

A June 21 special from Shaniko to the Oregonian says: The wool-growers of Central Oregon are a dissatisfied lot of men. Sixteen lots, aggregating 700,000 pounds of wool, were sold here today at prices ranging from 13 1/4 cents to 17 cents.

The impression prevails among many that the buyers have a "frame-up" that is invincible, while others believe that the tariff "monkeying" at Washington has much to do with it. Sixteen buyers took part in the day's business. The sale will continue through tomorrow.

J. G. Edwards refused 16 cents for his clip of about 240,000 pounds. Other large owners are holding off until the July sale.

About 2,250,000 pounds are in the Moody warehouses here, with 480,000 pounds at the first sale today. Sales will take up almost one-third of the clip tributary to this market.

Following are the sellers and amounts paid:

D. T. McRae, 23,000 pounds, at 13 1/4 cents.

F. A. Young, 61,500 pounds, at 14 1/2 cents.

McRae Estate, 21,000 pounds, at 14 1/2 cents.

Henry Wakerling, 26,000 pounds, at 15 1/2 cents.
