The general appearance of the grounds and the attending throngs of vistiors was typical of the country fair. There was more of the fair spirit in the air than at 28 points and McCallister 25.

There were quite a number of concessions. The association bartook every precaution to protect the crowds. The pink lemonade, ice cream cone, hot lunch, toy baloons, and venders of many such articles were in evidence. The shows of various kinds attracted many of the younger gen eration and some of the older ones.
