

Road Brings Sheep

Four Carloads Come on First Train From Madras

Four carloads of sheep constituted the first lot of freight shipped out of Madras to Portland over the newly-constructed Oregon Trunk, the stock being consigned to the Portland Union Stock Yards.

The sheep left Madras early Saturday morning and arrived here Monday, being in first-class condition. They were taken over the new road the entire distance from Madras to the mouth of the Deschutes River, ferried across the Columbia to Fallbridge, Wash., and brought to Portland on the North Bank line.

The territory adjacent to the Oregon Trunk is highly adapted to sheepgrazing, and farmers, now that they have an easy method of sending sheep to market, expect to engage more in that market.—Oregonian.

Mail Routes to be Discontinued

A number of mail routes in Central Oregon have felt the influence of the railroad. The daily mail line between Antelope and Mitchell has been discontinued. The Mitchell supply will come daily from Condon, by way of Richmond.

The Antelope office will be supplied daily from Shaniko which, by the way, will be the only mail route that will operate out of Shaniko.

The mail line from Heister to Madras has been cut off at Youngs, which leaves Heister and the Trout Creek country without a supply.

Hay Creek will be supplied from Madras. Youngs will continue to receive its mail from that point.

The Prineville-Shaniko line will be discontinued soon, perhaps March 1. The mail for Prineville will come in over the Oregon Trunk and the offices on the west side of the county will be supplied direct from Metolius.

Almost if not all of these changes will take place the first of March.

Howard School Closes Successful Term

Teacher George Cole closed a very successful term of school at Howard Tuesday evening.

The play, "Clarindie Cackle's Courtship" was given and greatly enjoyed by those present. The characters were as follows: "Clarindie Cackle," Opal Sears; "Simon Hobbs," George Cole; "Charlie Hobbs," Peter Nagers; "Polly Springer," Josephine O'Kelley; "Ragdoll Robin," Charlie O'Kelley; "The Widow Lockett," Oral Sears; "Dewdrop," Bert Sears.

County Superintendent Ford addressed the people on the importance of the school library. At the close of the address Dave Rogers sold the baskets that were given for the benefit of the library. The baskets were well filled with good things to eat and brought a good price. The school will realize $60 or $70 from the sale which will be used to buy books.

The people of Howard are to be congratulated on their splendid school spirit. This profitable closing of the school is only the beginning of better things in the future. Let other schools catch the inspiration and do likewise.

A Good Old-Fashioned Time

The "get-togethers" social at the Presbyterian church was a complete success.

The old-fashioned spelling school was the attraction. Mrs. Baldwin and Supt. Ford were the "captains," Mrs. Dooner was the school mistress. Words, mostly of one syllable, were used, and a number went down as grass before the scythe. Mrs. Baldwin made her selection with reference to good looks—Messrs. Hauser, Ashby, Coe and Wyld were her first selection. Mr. Ford was slow and deliberate in his selection surveying the field carefully before choosing.

Mr. Ashby went down on "swear," Mr. Wyld "ammunition." Prof. Coe spelled "emphasis" with an "H" and insisted that he was right and would not "down." Mr.

Wyld said he was right and that the book was wrong. Supt. Ford misspelled "kirt," spelling a word unknown to the vocabulary of most people. He recovered on a second trial.

Supt. Ford claimed that his side won but his claim was not allowed.

Numbers of cartoonists were present and gave an exhibition of their work on the blackboard. Mr. Ashby drew a goose or something of the kind that inhabits the bayous of Maryland. It had wings on the tail and feet like an elephant. "Some said it was an air bird," Mr. Ashby is to give another exhibition of his drawing at some future time.

Mr. Hauser drew an incubator. The little chicks in the shells were making a desperate effort to get out. He attributes his great percentage of "hatch" to the fact that he used a mug of beer on a dry platform on one corner of the incubator. He was very much disappointed that he did not receive the prize. Collins Elkins drew a monkey with wings like an angel. Collins says he has put extra effort on this cartoon and hopes to win out.

Mrs. Angie Smith drew a duck, goose or bird which was difficult to tell what it was. She kept the audience guessing from start to finish.

Mr. Lakin drew the Tree of Paradise and contends that it is an exact counterpart of the original in the Garden of Eden. Mr. Lakin will not despair and hopes to win out in the long run. He is ambitious and no doubt will.

Suddenly, as Mr. Lakin was putting on the finishing stroke, a loud, squeaky voice was heard in the basement of the church announcing that the table was spread. This was like a fire alarm and a rush was made for the basement, leaving the rival cartoonists disputing who should have the prize. Collins Elkins finally won with his monkey. T. J.

Noble Tract to be Subdivided

Andrew J. Noble has just closed a contract with A. R. Bowman to subdivide into town lots and place on sale the Noble tract of land immediately adjoining the original town of Prineville on the west. This tract of 23 acres will be immediately platted and will be known as the Noble addition to the city of Prineville.

The subdivision will make about 120 lots, will have graded streets, sidewalks, parking areas and building restrictions.

Died.

George Lytle, who died at Salem January 25, was buried here Tuesday.

Mr. Lytle was 40 years of age, and had been a resident of Crook county for the greater part of his life. He resided on Hay creek for years. During the past summer he received injuries while freighting that caused a stroke of paralysis. He moved with his family to Marion county last August. He leaves a wife and three sons. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen lodge of this city.

Pneumonia Cured by Serum.
A record of six cases of pneumonia ordinarily fatal, in which, after a treatment of inoculation with a vaccine of killed pneumococci, there was a complete recovery, is announced by Dr. Henry A. Craig, assistant physician at the Sallor's Sng. Hospital, New Brighton, N. Y., in the Medical Record.

In these cases the ages of the patients were from sixty-six to eighty-seven years, and, as is well known, pneumonia is fatal in almost all cases at that age. What is perhaps more important is that all the patients had a marked alcoholic history, and all showed marked arterio-sclerosis.

CHECKING AUTO NUISANCES.

Live Towns Can Stop Offenses From This Source if They Choose.

From at least two major points of view earnest commendation is to be given to any campaign against the automobile smoke nuisance in streets and also to the movement to compel the operators of such vehicles to stop spilling oil on the pavement or road. Both these practices are indubitably unpleasant and offensive and probably injurious and dangerous, and both are susceptible of abatement. There can be no question of the right and power of the health and police departments to deal with such matters.

The occasional emission of smoke from automobiles is probably unavoidable and excusable. But for a car to run mile after mile with a dense trail of acrid smoke pouring from it is not excusable. It is not necessary, and if it were it would constitute a pretty strong argument for excluding the car from the highways altogether. The smoke is certainly exceedingly unpleasant to the senses, and in many cases it may be positively injurious to the visual and respiratory organs of those who are exposed to it.

The spilling and stopping of oil on the streets until they are saturated with it and dotted with puddles of it are also inexcusable nuisances. It fills the air with a bad smell, it makes the streets dangerously slippery to walk on, and it often is a cause of soiling and practically ruining clothing and other articles. Now and then, as in the case of smoke, a little oil will, of course, get spilled on the street. But there is no reason for any such wholesale effusion of it as is to be observed in this city. Either a little more care or the provision of drip pans to catch it is all that is needed to abate the nuisance.

The other point of view from which both these practices are to be regarded is that of the selfish interest of those who are guilty of them. It is a well known fact that a smoking motor is a motor which is being improperly used and is therefore being injured. The very conditions which cause the smoke cause injury to the mechanism. Thus the chauffeur who permits his car to smoke is injuring the car as well as afflicting the public.

Of course in the other case the oil which is poured on the street is oil wasted, and that means increased expense of operating the car. If the abatement of these nuisances meant increased expense to the owners or drivers of cars it should still be insisted upon for the welfare of the public. But since, on the contrary, it will mean a decrease of their expenses and therefore the promotion of their own good there can be no reasonable resistance or objection to it.

The town authorities should be ever vigilant against offenses of this character. A concerted crusade might be instituted by citizens of any town and the offending automobile owners made to answer for their carelessness, for carelessness it is and nothing else.

SAFE BUSINESS COURSE.

Pay Every Bill and Interest Account When Due is Good Advice.

"No man can do business of any magnitude," said a retail man recently, "or would care to, for that matter, without credit, but the very ease with which credit may be obtained may be a pitfall and one into which a good many retail merchants have fallen and unless human nature changes are likely to fall in the future."
"But there is one safe course to follow, which at least will prevent complications arising as a result of carelessness, and that is to adopt a rule to pay every bill and interest account when it is due. Many a bill has been let run over when to pay it would be just as easy as to omit doing so, and loose ends of debt accumulate in a way that is surprising when a full summing up is made of them."

"Then, too, it is true that if the debts are left at loose ends some one may take it into their heads to gather the loose ends together and so tie up the man who should have looked after them. This may be a bad metaphor, but it is certainly good logic."
"So, as I said in the beginning, the best thing to do is to pay all bills when due, even if to do so you shall have to borrow the necessary money with which to take care of them, since doing so at least has the merit of concentrating the indebtedness and placing it where provision can be made for its handling easily when opportunity offers to take it up."—Boot and Shoe Recorder.

Advice to the Employee.

If you don't like the way the boss runs the shop then quit, but while your salary comes from him be true to him and swear by him and all that he does and you will win in the long run. If you have something to say about the way the business is run that you think could be improved don't tell your boss' competitors, but tell him, and it is likely that he will see that you take an interest in the business and give you an increase.

Get the Smile Habit.

Get the smile habit if you want trade. What's the use of going around with solemn face, like some down in the heel undertaker? Just as cheap to smile as it is to frown. No extra charge unless you are foolish enough to smile at the wrong time. Don't frown; don't smirk. Just smile and see how good it is.

Penalty For Delay in Street Work.

The city council of Newcastle, Ind., has adopted a rule that provides a heavy penalty for each day of street improvement work that remains incomplete after the specified time.

Auto Fees to Mend Roads.

Bergen county, N. J., has received $37,920 from the auto fees paid into the state fund, and to a well known construction company of Hackensack, N. J. were awarded four contracts amounting to that sum for work to be done on roads much traveled by New York motorists. The board of freeholders at a recent meeting voted to establish a road system that will cost about $600,000 and insure excellent roads in the district close to New York.

Mail Service

Prineville will receive mail for only the Howard and Crooked River country.

This will reduce the weight of the incoming mail sixty per cent or more. The average weight of incoming mail for this point should not weigh more than 700 pounds or 1200 as the extreme maximum according to the estimate of Postmaster Ledford.
