

THE REFORMATION.

I feel it wrong to stroll along
The idle path of pleasure
And wish to say that I today
Renounce a life of leisure.

My mind's made up, and I will sup
On duty fare no longer,
But have instead a crust of bread
(This coffee should be stronger).

Expensive dress spells wickedness;
I've come to that decision.
I'll wear a sack or something black
(My new pink frock's a vision).

Through rain and snow, though winds
may blow
And roads be rough and hilly,
I'll take my way from day to day
(Please shut the door; 'tis chilly).

Thus on I'll tread with lifted head
And footsteps brave and steady,
For luxury is wrong, I see (Goodby! My car's ready).

So we must part. When do I start
My plaidings of sorrow?
Oh, well, it's late! I think I'll wait
At least until tomorrow.

Willing to Help.

"How much for pulling a tooth?"
"Fifty cents without gas, dollar
with."
"How much where I furnish the light?"

The Irony of Fate.

"Pa, what's the irony of fate?"
"I'll try to explain it as well as I can. I once had a strong desire to save up something for a rainy day. I denied myself many pleasures so that I might put by a little from time to time, and at last I had quite a neat little pile."

"What happened then?"

"One night your mother became possessed of a foolish idea that she smelled smoke, and when she stuck her head out of the window one of our neighbors turned in an alarm. The department quickly responded, and before I could get my trousers on they had knocked a hole in the roof and absolutely ruined everything I had saved
up for the rainy day by pouring water
on it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Set Up Job.

"Are you the man from Soddor &
Co.'s to do the repairing of the water pipes?" asked Mr. Subbula.
"Yes," replied the plumber, "and Mr.
Soddor says it'll cost you $50."
"What? Why, he hasn't seen the job. He doesn't know how much I want done."
"Maybe not, but he told me how much to do."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Then They Fumigated the House.

Mrs. Parveau—John, that Mrs. Callor
who was just here said she'd been haying a bad attack of ongrwee. What did she mean?

Parveau—Something catchin', perhaps. Why don't you look it up in the dictionary?

Mrs. P.—I did. I went through all the o's, but can't find no such word.—
Boston Transcript.

Commendable Care.

Uncle Ezra—How's your daughter
doing in business college?

Uncle Eben—Fine. She can't spell
very good, and she ain't very fast on the typewriter, but I tell you she's keerful. When she gets through writing a letter on that machine every
"i" is dotted and every "t" is crossed.
—Puck.

A Country Advantage.

Mrs. Crawford—How is it you got more rest since you live in the suburbs?

Mrs. Cratslaw—I don't have to sit up all night for my husband. When he doesn't arrive by the last train I know he won't be home till the next day.—Judge.

No Forgetting.

"But, dad," pleaded the son, "she's a nice girl. What's your objection to my marrying? You were young yourself once."

"Don't remind me of it," said the father, overcome with emotion. "It was then that I met your mother."—Cleveland Leader.

Dramatic Criticism.

"How'd you get into the show the other evening?"

"Passed a counterfeit quarter at the door."

"How was the show?"

"Well, I got my money's worth."—
St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Fact and Fiction.

"He vowed he would traverse raging seas just to look into my eyes!"

"When—last night?"

"No; last night he telephoned me
that it was raining too hard."—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Household Hint.

By taking one hobble skirt and sewing up one end of it a very pretty rag-bag may be made in which to put the others.—Washington Star.
