

OFFICERS BLAMED BY RESCUED PASSENGERS

Chance to Save All on Board Santa Rosa Refused, While Sea Was Yet Calm.

San Francisco.—With anger waxing rather than diminishing, the rescued passengers of the steamer Santa Rosa who were brought here, after the vessel went to pieces on the rocks at Point Arguello, declared that a rigid investigation of the disaster would be demanded.

They held the Santa Rosa's officers responsible for the grounding of the steamer and many declared they would testify before the United States marine authorities that it was negligence that forced them into a life and death battle with the breakers.

The ship's officers and the Pacific Coast Steamship Company are harshly censured for delay in rescuing passengers.

While three vessels stood by from dawn until dark, ready to take the passengers off the steamer, nothing was done until it was too late. The Pacific Coast Steamship Company, it is alleged, could not make up its commercial mind as to how much it would be worth to save the two hundred persons.

The sea had risen and the other vessels could not stand in close enough to make a quick transfer of passengers in the boats. So the passengers had to take the dangerous alternative of trying to make a landing in the surf on a shore barbed with rocks, hemmed by breakers.

So far as has yet been ascertained, only four members of the crew—the second officer, Heuson and three sailors—were lost.

PETITIONS POURING IN

Ottawa is Besieged in Effort to Save Mrs. Napolitano.

Ottawa, Ont.—Three more sacks full of petitions praying for executive clemency in the case of Mrs. Angela Napolitano under sentence to be hanged at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., next month for the murder of her husband, were received by the justice department. The petitioners now number tens of thousands, representing all parts of the continent.

Because of the peculiarly distressing condition, the case has aroused special interest in the United States. Petitions have been received by hundreds from Chicago and other American cities.

In only one instance has capital punishment ever been imposed on a woman in Canada. It appears to be thought here that the sentence will be commuted to life imprisonment.

Postmen Get Salary Lift.

Washington.—The 49,000 odd rural free delivery carriers in the United States are to receive salary increases as a result of a decision reached today by Postmaster General Hitchcock. The order will provide for the disbursement during the current fiscal year of $4,000,000, which will mean an increase of $100 a year over the present salary of $9000 for all carriers on standard routes.

CROPS MAY BE SAVED

Rain in Nebraska, Kansas and Southwest Brings Relief.

Chicago.—Chicago and the Middle West continued to broil under the pitiless heat during the past week.

The crop situation is challenging the serious attention of the public. There was rain Sunday in Nebraska, Kansas, and the Southwest that seemed to promise the breaking up of the drought in those regions, and it is believed crops will be saved.

But crops in sections of South Dakota are hopeless. Private advices from various points admit this. Hundreds of settlers who took up government claims a year ago, counting on their first crop to tide them over, will ask the government for an extension of time, as they are almost destitute. There is still hope for the wheat crops of North Dakota, Minnesota and the Canadian Northwest.

Court Approves Hound as Sleuth.

Topeka, Kans.—The Kansas Supreme Court upheld the bloodhound as an agent of justice. If the hound had been proved accurate in following the trail of human footsteps, that evidence was enough, said the court, to convict.

Central Oregon Is Good Hog Country

That central Oregon will soon become as famous for its hog raising as it has been in the past for its cattle and sheep, is the opinion of F. A. Freeman, cashier of the Lumbermen's National bank, who has returned from a trip to that section. Mr. Freeman was one of the Portland party who assisted in the organization of the central Oregon development league last week. He returned to Portland enthusiastic over the resources of the central Oregon empire, predicting rapid development of the country.

"While the opening and sale of the central Oregon wagon road grant lands is taking money out of the banks at present and is working to their temporary disadvantage, the central Oregon bankers realize that the effect will be to their great future advantage," said Mr. Freeman. "These lands have been withheld from settlement, thereby retarding the development in a great many ways. It has proved a bar to irrigation projects as well as to general settlement and cultivation.

"There is a tendency towards revolution of the livestock industry; instead of conducting it in the old way by using wide open ranges and driving the stock many miles to market, the business is being put on a modern and entirely different basis. Railroad shipping facilities now provided will make the industry even more substantial, and every influence is in favor of a greater livestock development. It means better livestock and greater development. It means better livestock and greater profit.

"The great wealth of water available for irrigation as it is applied to the land increases the production of crops in a remarkable way. Much land which can not be irrigated is being made highly profitable by dry farming methods and large areas are being broken to the plow. Alfalfa and wheat raised on irrigated lands and field peas and wheat on dry farming sections afford a great profit in hog raising.

"This industry is now being developed commercially and its possibilities are enormous. Hogs raised on alfalfa or field peas and hardened on wheat make a quality of pork second to none.

"One of the impressive things about the trip to central Oregon was the evidence of the cordial relations between the people and the transportation companies.

That the people appreciate the magnitude of the railroad projects which have involved the expenditure of over $23,000,000 is evidenced. A 'pull together' spirit resulted from the organization of the central Oregon development league among the representatives of towns that had hitherto shown evidences of jealousy. It was made evident that all central Oregon towns in the future will work for a common subject, and that whatever rivalry exists will be of a friendly sort.

"Central Oregon scenery will become famous the world over when the country is better known. It embraces all the beauties of mountains and plains with canyons, gorges, valleys and forests. Ten snow capped peaks are visible from the train on the trip into central Oregon."—Portland Journal.

"Dipping" Cattle Is Now the Thing

Lakeview, Or.—The unusual sight of thousands of head of cattle being dipped in the large vats erected at Silver Lake for the purpose, was the attraction that called many people hundreds of miles last week. The cattle had been mildly infected with the mange and the dipping was intended to eliminate this pest before it had reached all the stock in the county.

As a precautionary measure the cattle will again be dipped in the fall when they come off the summer range in the Fremont forest, after which it is believed that there will be no more mange in this section of the state.

Some of the thoroughbred bulls belonging to the 'ZX' cattle company presented the appearance of not caring to take the necessary bath in the vats and remonstrated strongly. With much labor, considerable danger and some strategy the animals were finally compelled to take to the 'immunity' bath.
