

Dr. Dunsmore

Writes Letter.

Dr. H. Chas. Dunsmore writes a second letter recounting more of his travels. The letter, bearing date of August 16 and on board SS. Salisbury in Ionian sea, was mailed at Trieste, and follows:

We are now on our "home stretch," having reached our farthest and most easterly point when we turned back from the banks of the Jordan and spent the night at a native hotel in Jericho. Leaving Jerusalem on August 3, we traveled by train to Jaffa, through a country memorable in New Testament history. Around us were the hills and caves where Daniel had been hunted by the insane and jealous Saul. There was the pool where in Phillip baptized the Eunuch. Then for some miles we sped through the Plain of Sharon, rich in vineyards and orange groves.

Staying overnight at Jaffa, we again visited the house of Simon the Farmer, where Peter had his famous vision; also the tomb of Dorcas, and other places of interest. Embarking on the steamer we sailed southwest to Port Said, at the entrance of the Suez canal, thence by train to Alexandria, where we remained two days.

From Alexandria we sailed north across the Mediterranean to Piræus, Greece, sailing for hours along the coast of the island of Crete. At Piræus we were kept aboard in quarantine for 24 hours, then, going ashore, took carriage for Athens, only three miles distant.

Both time and space fail me to give any account of the many places of interest visited in this classic, historic city. The ruins of old temples, dating back long before the Christian era, were on every hand. Of course, the ruins of the Parthenon, the Acropolis, and Mars Hill, where Paul preached to the Athenians, were of especial interest to me.

Leaving Athens by train, we reached Patras, our last stopping place in Greece. At 8 last evening we embarked on this steamer, and last night and today we have been sailing through the narrow channels of the Ionian sea, with Corfu and other islands of the Grecian archipelago on one side and the Turkish coast of Albania on the other.

We will arrive at Brindisi, Italy, early tomorrow morning, when I hope to mail this letter, and at once take train for Naples where we hope to be tomorrow night. As some of the party must sail for home at an early date we must hasten on to London, spending first a few days at Rome, Venice, Milan, Vienna, Paris, and other cities. I have my homeward passage London to Montreal engaged on the SS. Sicilian, sailing September 7.

Our party are all well. No mishaps have occurred, and in all our five or six thousand miles of travel by water we have had remarkable absence of storm or fog.

H. CHAS. DUNSMORE.

Silas E. Adams.

Silas E. Adams, son of William Adams, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. S. W. Yancey, in this city Sunday morning, September 10th, at the age of 31 years, 7 months and 26 days. The funeral services, simple and appropriate, were held at the home of his sister Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Gregg of the Christian church of Culver. Effective music was rendered by a quartet and Mr. E. N. Strong.

The deceased was of a retiring disposition and those who were privileged to know him best, were best able to judge of his sterling qualities and his marvelous patience shown under the greatest of suffering. Some time ago serious stomach trouble developed and two years ago he submitted to an operation in the hopes of regaining his health but his hopes were not fully realized. The past summer he spent in the Cascades helping with the care of a band of sheep and about a week ago was thrown while mounting his horse and the stock of his gun striking him in the stomach, serious complications at once developed. He was hurried to town in hopes of getting relief, arriving here Saturday evening. Everything possible was done but from the first it was a hopeless task and he died Sunday morning of gangrene of the stomach and bowels. He leaves a father, three sisters and five brothers with a host of friends to mourn his loss.
