

William Glisan

Kills Mother.

A butcher knife in his hand, William Glisan stole quietly behind his aged mother while she was bending over a washtub at their ranch home, one mile east of Antelope, at ten o'clock Tuesday and jabbed the long blade into her back. The steel penetrated her lungs to the hilt, and was the cause of her death a few minutes later. The murderer is said to be crazy, caused by a prolonged spell of heavy drinking. He returned three weeks ago from the Cascade Mountains, where he herded sheep all summer. He visited his home on two occasions, but spent practically all his time since his return at Antelope, drinking, it is said.

He went home Tuesday and lay down on a couch. His relatives feared violence at his hand, and his brother, Alfred, remained in the same room to watch him. After he had been on the couch a half an hour he appeared to be asleep, but later developments showed he feigned slumbering cleverly. Believing him asleep, Alfred began reading a newspaper, which acted as a sort of screen between the two men.

The slayer slipped off his shoes while his brother was interested in the paper, and stole out of the room to where his mother was toiling with her work. Alfred did not hear a sound from the man as he left the couch and did not know William had gone from the room until he heard Mrs. Glisan scream.

He rushed outside and was attacked by his brother, who jerked the knife from the woman's body. The father, Edward T. Glisan, who was in the yard at the time of the murder, hurried to the son's assistance and William was bound with ropes and held until Deputy Sheriff Burns arrived from Antelope and made Glisan his prisoner.

Every indication points to an intention to kill his father and brother also. The horrible crime was made more pitiable because the husband and son were unable to comfort the dying woman, being compelled to subdue the crazy son. Mrs. Glisan died before William was securely roped.

William Glisan, who is 45 years old, has been known as a "bad man" for several years, it is said. He stabbed Edward Jones during a card game at Antelope four years ago. Jones recovered from his wounds, and Glisan, when tried on a charge of assault with intent to kill, was acquitted. He was considered particularly dangerous when he had been drinking heavily.

Mrs. Glisan was 63 years old and was the mother of 10 children.

The Glisans moved to Antelope 28 years ago, being former residents of Marion County.

Cattle Prices Soaring

Pendleton, Or.—With cattle buyers offering $30 a head for "yearlings" and with stockmen refusing to sell even at this record price, the predicted beef famine seems to be in a fair way to become a reality.

"It looks like I will be compelled to go to Portland to buy my feeders," declared B. D. Sherry, a local grower today. "I can buy that class of cattle cheaper at the Portland stockyards than I can on the ranges of Eastern Oregon. Stock cattle actually are higher here now than are beeves."

While admitting he had never received $30 for a yearling, Mr.

Sherry said he refused that price yesterday. He explained that the few yearlings he possessed were not for sale at any price for the reason that they could not be replaced.

Pendleton butchers are offering 10 cents a pound for dressed veal, but are unable to half supply the local demand.

Modern Clothes

"The Kind Gentlemen Wear."

WITH the opening of our Fall and Winter Season, we wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our many customers and friends who have shown us their patronage during the past year. We hope that our methods of doing business have been satisfactory to one and all and once a customer always a customer. Our methods will be the same for this coming year: Everything Marked in Plain Figures and One Price to One and All. We don't sell you an $10.00 suit for $15.00; our $18.00 suits are marked $18.00, that's our price; no other. But we are not talking prices. Quality First and Last. We are today carrying the Best Clothes to be found in Prineville. Modern Clothes designed and laid out by

Brandegge, Kincaid & Company, Utica, New York

Clothes well selected and worn cannot be overlooked by people of discrimination. Exclamations of great joy are certain to be called forth by our display of "College Chap" Clothes, because of their particularly brisk style, and because they fit so perfectly that they cannot but be well worn. The fabrics are totally different from those ordinarily seen. The many graceful and characteristic features which distinguish the well-dressed man from the multitude of careless dressers will be found in these splendid garments. Knowing how to design and how to develop has made "College Chap" Clothes what they are, "the clothes you want."
