"Dummies Can Act"

It would be impossible to believe the foregoing did we not modify the statement by adding that the acting was done before the moving picture camera. With the exception of the opening and closing scenes of the pictures, "A Tragedy in Toyland," all the characters shown are real toys. A battle, a love scene, a duel, and many other interesting events follow each other. To bring these toys to life required 123,000 separate movements and 18,000 distinct and separate exposures of the camera, and nearly three months' time of a photographer devoting himself exclusively to this work, yet you can see the picture in about fifteen minutes. Friday and Saturday evenings at the Lyric.

Struck Water at Powell Butte

John Woller of Powell Butte was in town the last of the week. He has located a good flow of water on his Powell Butte ranch. He located the spring by the use of a water witch, he says. Water was struck at six feet. He and his brothers were able to get down to nine feet by the use of a pump, but at that point the flow of water was greater than they could take care of with the means at their disposal. A shaft will be sunk and the water used for irrigation.
