Morson, president of the Deschutes Land Company, decided to have an expert engineer examine his project during the Summer for the purpose of ascertaining just how much water s needed for its irrigation Professor Powers, of the State Agricultural College at Corvallis, will probably be the man selected. Morson, while here, also conferred with Attorney-General Crawford relative to the suit "Progressive Republican Candidate for which the State Desert Land Board has instructed the Attorney General to bring against the company, to restrain it from selling what it terms options on the land, but which Morson declares to be assignments of liens. Morson invited the board to bring the suit and the officials acted upon his suggestion. He expressed himself as anxious to have the question involved determined by a court as soon as possible, and as being sanguine that the court would uphold his contention, that the company is acting within its rights in selling the liens.
