

THE PANNIER SKIRT NOW HERE, BUT IS WORN ON PROBATION

ONE hears a good deal about the introduction of panniers, but those that have made their appearance may be said to be here only on probation. They are seen only on high priced model gowns, and their introduction is being aimed at rather than generally accomplished. Panniers on gowns were invented to hide the defects in the figure of a French court beauty of the eighteenth century and were so named because of their fancied resemblance to the panniers which in countries where the donkey is a beast of burden the little animal bears upon its back. The twentieth century pannier is a very much modified affair, as may be seen by glancing at the two gowns shown here. The darker dress is of blue taffeta trimmed with lace and tiny buttons. The other is of finely striped taffeta combined with plain material.

When Hanging Pictures.

Where a wall is so soft and loose that a nail driven into it for a picture or any other thing will not bear a weight it may easily be remedied by mixing a little plaster of paris with a little water or buttermilk in a tawcup. Buttermilk is best, as it keeps the plaster from cracking. Scoop out a small hole in the wall with a penknife, fill it with the plaster and then insert the nail gently. It will be hard in a minute, and the nail will then be safe.

When to Exercise.

The golden time for exercise is when the system is neither fatigued nor depressed. A robust person may take a moderate amount of exercise before breakfast. Those inclined to be frail and apt to feel faint before breakfast and languid in the early part of the day should not exercise until three hours after breakfast. An evening walk will often induce sleep. All exercise must be taken in moderation to bring about good results.

SMART DESIGNS IN FURNITURE FOR BOUDOIR AND DRAWING ROOM

FURNITURE is of interest to the housewife at all seasons, but innovations in that line make their appeal particularly at the housecleaning period, when changes in schemes of furnishing are to be considered and old and undesirable pieces are retired in favor of new ones. The illustration shows a handsome new escritoire which follows the precedents set by the furniture of the first empire. Very up to date touches are added in the electric lights set into the ends of the desk. The escritoire is of mahogany with gold trimmings. The chair is upholstered in white and gold tapestry and has panels of cane set into the back and sides. The panel in the rear comes just where the head rests. On upholstered chairs this is generally the part that is first worn and soiled. The cane panel may be cleaned and reglazed whenever it needs it.

CABBAGE "YELLOW." Disease That is Likely to Cause Great Loss to Vegetable Growers.

So far as known, cabbage is the only crop affected by the form of wilt known as "yellow" or "yellow sides," says a bulletin of the United States department of agriculture. The plants usually show the characteristic symptoms in about two to four weeks after they are set in the field, but often the disease appears early in their growth in the seed bed. The outer and lower leaves are the first to show the signs of the disease. The whole leaf may first turn yellow between the veins and around the margins and then later brown, as if scorched, and finally drop off, or only one side of the leaf may dry up, while the other half remains normal. This latter symptom is the more usual and is a distinguishing characteristic of the disease. Little or no wilting of the plant is then apparent, and for this reason "yellow" is a better descriptive term than wilt. The lowest leaf is always the first to drop off, and this is followed by the next above until only a few stalks are left, supporting a small imperfect head or none at all, depending upon the size of the plant when it became diseased.

Subsequent to the dropping of the leaves short sprouts from one-half inch to one and one-half inches long sometimes grow out between the leaf scars. Browning of the woody portion of the stem is another characteristic of wilt. The seed should be disinfected with formaldehyde one-quarter pint to seven gallons of water, leaving the seed in the solution about fifteen minutes, then washing and drying. Wilt has been found to occur in many seed beds, and for that reason manure and soil known to be free from the disease should be used. Sterilization of the seed bed should be practiced whenever possible. It has been found that crop though the seed bed has been sterilized and noninfected plants obtained they may become diseased later if planted out in infected soil.

The plants evidently become diseased when quite young, and many can be detected before planting. Such should be pulled out and destroyed. Do not allow stock to roam at will over the fields. When water is used for setting it should be taken from wells instead of from drainage ditches.

Crop rotation should be practiced. The rotation should cover a period of four to eight years.

Keep Flies From Sheep.

The fly will make its appearance in midsummer. The fly aims to deposit its eggs within or close to the nostrils of the sheep. This is accompanied by no pain to the sheep. The eggs hatch in a few weeks, and the little worm ascends the nostrils, making the poor animal almost wild with nervous distress. The best remedy is a little pine tar smeared on the nose. It should be frequently applied. By pouring a little tar in the feed troughs and sprinkling it over with fine salt and wheat bran the sheep will coat their own noses. There is a good way where the flock is large.

Turnips For Next Winter.

Turnips for winter storing may be sown in July and August. Two to three pounds of seed per acre are required. In field culture the rows are often thirty inches apart, to facilitate horse cultivation. The seed is sown broadcast from July 20 to Aug. 1, when the crop is grown for stock.

Cheap Silage.

Twenty-three acres of corn after rye, planted June 1, with cow peas drilled between rows at the first cultivation, produced at the New Jersey experiment station 214.8 tons of silage. The total cost was $3.51 per ton in the silo.

Whitewash the trunks of the shade trees if this has not already been done. This will give the farmstead a neat and attractive appearance, showing the refinement of those who own it.
