Everybody Boost Crook County Fair

From present indications the First Central Oregon District Agricultural Fair this fall will be the best ever held at Prineville. The board of directors have broadened the scope of the society in every direction.

The school exhibits have received every encouragement. Teachers and pupils are working together as never before. Complimentary season tickets to both, combined with the cash premiums, is spurring the little folks to make the effort of their lives.

Many improvements are being made at the grounds. The new grandstand, the judges' stand, the new stalls for the accommodation of track and exhibition horses, the additions to the pavilion that will double its capacity, the new poultry buildings and the new entrance to the grounds, will give patrons the much needed accommodations for physical comfort and the care of stock that have long been felt as absolutely necessary.

The splendid premiums that are offered for Crook county agricultural products cannot fail to arouse great interest in our farmers. The premium list will soon be ready for distribution and a line to Secretary Jack Cadle will secure one.

The amusement side of the fair has not been neglected. Negotiations have been completed for the attendance of a bird man. He will make two flights every day from the fair grounds.

One of the best bands of Los Angeles, reputed to be the finest on the Pacific coast, has been engaged to play during the entire fair.

These attractions cost money but the fair management feels that the increased expenditures will be appreciated by the general public.

Professors from both the Oregon and Idaho agricultural colleges will be here to lecture on subjects of vital importance to the farmer and stockman each evening. The M. E. church has been kindly loaned for the purpose of holding the meetings.

The breeders' exhibit of fat stock is attracting the attention of the managers of the stock yards and packing plants at Portland.

Last but not least, a good clean camp ground is being fitted up for the use of those who come from a distance. Feed and stabling will be furnished at actual cost. There is wood and water in abundance.

Everybody boost the fair. That's the only way to make it a big success.
