

Governor West Visits Prineville

Governor West passed through Prineville Saturday, astride his famous black mare, bound for Boise, Idaho, where he will attend the conference of Northwestern governors, of which organization he is secretary.

The governor was just a week out from Salem, Saturday. The first part of his journey, he is taking by easy stages. He went from Salem to Lebanon, and then to Sweethome and Foster. He spent Friday night at the Hub city and then rode to Prineville, where he took dinner and then struck out for J. E. Roberts' place, 20 miles from here, where he will spend the night.

The Governor was urged to prolong his stay here but was afraid he could not afford the time. He must cover the distance to Boise by August 1st. He expects to visit several irrigation projects while en route to the capital of Idaho. The Governor is standing the trip in fine shape.

Tillman Reuter Wants Exhibits

Tillman Reuter came up from Portland Monday. He has just one thing on his mind and that is that Crook county must be represented at the land shows this fall. He is devoting all his energy to the accomplishment of that purpose. He is collecting samples all the time and that is what he is here for. Samples of sheaf grain should be four or five inches in diameter, with heads of uniform length. This is very important, he says. The straw should be full length, but the roots are not necessary. All leaves should be removed.

Do not tie the bundle too tightly as it mashes the straw. These samples will be used at Alberta, Canada; St. Paul, Chicago and Portland, so be careful and write your name plainly on each package, as well as the variety, stating what method grown, irrigation, or dry farming, etc. This will help wonderfully in the work of classification.

The first prize offered by the company is $20, second $10, and third $5, to be taken in choice products from their nursery.

Hampton Valley Has Good Crops

"The Hampton Valley, in the southeastern part of Crook County, will have record breaking crops this year," said Sherman Montgomery, United States Commissioner at Imperial, Or. Mr. Montgomery is in Portland on a short business trip, says the Oregonian.

"The farmers who are cultivating their lands according to approved dry farming methods have excellent crops, and while the amount of acreage in cultivation is small on account of lack of adequate transportation facilities for shipping products, they are greatly encouraged by the building of the joint railroads down the Malheur Canyon into Harney County and down through the Hampton Valley. They believe that this road will be completed before the harvesting of another crop and, hence, are preparing to put in a large amount of acreage next year.

"Wheat, barley, rye and oats do exceptionally well. With railroad transportation there is no doubt that this valley will become one of the most prosperous wheat belts in Central Oregon.

"Many homeseekers are taking advantage of the offer made by the Hampton Valley Development Association to locate desirable families free of any charge whatever. In spite of opposition from persons engaged in the homestead locating business for profit, the association will continue to give the poor man a chance by locating him free of charge. No part of Central Oregon offers the homeseeker so many advantages as does the territory tributary to Imperial. To the south and west, within ten miles of Imperial, lies 150,000 acres as good sagebrush and bunchgrass land as can be found in the state. This land is open to entry in 320-acre homesteads and is free from rock and is easily cleared. Water is found at a shallow depth.

"While homesteading is usually accompanied by many hardships and privations, this is not the case with those who settle in Hampton Valley. Here we have the little town of Imperial where all supplies can be secured at reasonable prices and where most of the advantages of a thickly settled community are to be enjoyed. The free library is well supplied with up-to-date reading matter. Many settlers come 25 miles for books.

LOCAL MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Lewark of Indianapolis, Ind., arrived in Prineville Monday, having made the entire trip by auto. They stated that of all the literature they had studied concerning Oregon that from Prineville interested them most, hence they made this their objective point. Mr. and Mrs. Lewark are teachers and expect to identify themselves with the schools of Crook county.

"The Hampton Valley is in daily touch with the rest of the world. Auto stage and truck lines carry passengers and freight passes through the valley every day. The automobile and auto truck have taken the place of the old-time stage coach and freight teams, and now we are looking forward with interest to the building of the railroads, which are sure to come soon.

"Some of the more progressive settlers are making a pronounced success in the growing of vegetables and root products, which heretofore had been considered too delicate for the high altitude. This section is particularly adapted to the raising of chickens and turkeys."

Mr. Montgomery has traveled extensively over Central Oregon. He is convinced that the country surrounding Imperial, Pringle Flats and the Dry Lake district has a great future. An attempt will be made this summer by Mr. Montgomery to find artesian water on his farm.

Save Your Samples.

Jack Summers has been commissioned to gather exhibits for the Oregon & Western Colonization Co. While in Portland recently Mr. Summers saw exhibits from a number of counties. The showing made was all right, he says, but thinks that Crook county could beat it in everything but fish and fruits. Jack wants everyone who has anything worth while to notify Mr. Stinson or leave word at the telephone office or either of the newspaper offices. He wants samples.

Sale of Red Cross Stamps at the Lyric

A film with a mission is "The Awakening of John Bond." It will be shown at the Lyric Friday and Saturday evening. The principal object is to disseminate information as to what becomes of the money that is received from the sale of Red Cross stamps at holiday time. Incidentally it teaches a lesson to selfish property-owners who neglect everything about their tenement properties except the collection of rents. John Bond was such a man. He didn't care how many unfortunate souls lived and died of dread consumption; all he wanted was rent, until one day his selfishness was brought directly home to him and he began to see things in a different light.

As fairy tales always please the children two reels of them will complete the program. "Goldilocks and the Three Bears" picture this well-known tale, while "Princess Charming," a hand-colored subject by the Pathe Co., is the other. Children will surely appreciate seeing these idols of fairyland live and act right before their eyes, so let them remember the date—Friday and Saturday, July 26 and 27.

Dairymen—Please Remember This Notice.
