

Prineville Boosters at Klamath Falls

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stinson and Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Rosenberg of Prineville were in the city Monday by automobile enroute to Lakeview where they will attend the Central Oregon Development League convention.

Mr. Stinson is a booster for his "heels up" for the Northwest and is greatly pleased with what he has seen of this county. Mr. Stinson has charge of all the land of the Oregon-Washington Colonization Co. in Crook and Harney counties. On the way here they stopped at Crater Lake.

"That was the grandest sight I ever laid eyes on," said Mr. Stinson at the White Pelican hotel last night. "As we drove up to the rim where we could see the lake, Dr. Rosenberg was so struck with the magnificence of the view that he stood up in the car and just simply yelled.

"We had a good view of your valley as we came into your city this afternoon, and I was greatly impressed with it. You have a fine city here and I must say that I have looked forward to a visit here for a long time. Now that I am here I think that this place has a great future before it."

The party will leave this morning for Lakeview. — Klamath Falls Northwestern.

Fire at Terrebonne.

Fire broke out in the warehouse beside L. A. Heathman's store last Thursday, consuming his entire stock of general merchandise, destroying the stone building belonging to George O'Neil, in which the store was located, and burning down the Nelson building on the north. The cause of the fire is not known. The total loss is about $12,000, with $4,000 insurance. Heathman has ordered a new stock of goods and will resume business at once.

Rev. B. W. Bass and J. F. Dopplmaier of Portland were in Prineville the last of the week. Rev. Bass was formerly pastor of the Christian church in Prineville. He is now pastor of a church corner of Knott and Rodney avenues, Portland.

A wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Mertsching on Dry Creek, when their only daughter, Martha Margatha Anna, was married to William B. C. Horsesell by Rev. Gibson last Wednesday evening. A sumptuous supper was served after the ceremony. The rooms were tastefully decorated with flowers and evergreens.

Portland, Oregon to Portland, Maine

W. C. Bristol, a prominent mason, shiner and attorney, accompanied by E. D. Jorgensen, owner and proprietor of the Lenox hotel, Portland, were in Prineville the last of the week on a trip from Portland, Oregon, to Portland, Maine.

These gentlemen instead of shipping their car to The Dalles, as is customary when traveling in this direction, crossed the mountains by way of the McKenzie pass.

The Pierce-Arrow in which they travel was made expressly for Mr. Bristol. Its equipment embraces ever need for every emergency—a thermometer, barometer, compass, level system, canvass sheets to aid in crossing the sands, block and tackle, rubber clothing, carry enough oil to reach from here to Denver, and have three cameras, two revolvers and a rifle. The machine has been on two very long trips with the same crew, the first trip being to Mexico two years ago, and the second last year, when they covered the entire state of Oregon.

This trip will be about 7800 miles in length. Their entire equipment is a special one direct from the Fisk factory and at the conclusion of the trip they will drive the car to the Pierce-Arrow factory at Buffalo and leave it there.

Starting from Portland they went to Eugene and then to Prineville. Their next stops will be Burns and Vail, etc. They expect to cover the trip in 26 days.

Prineville Should Be Represented

There will be a Pacific Highway meeting at Portland September 3 to take definite action on road matters. It is important that Prineville be represented, as we are, or should be, on the direct line of travel for trans-continental autoists. It means dollars to this town to be on the auto map.

The Lewarks are both teachers and come to Oregon from Indianapolis, Ind., with the very best credentials. Metolius was fortunate in securing the services of a first-class man to start the new high school.

A Queer Character Drifts Into Town

A queer character drifted into Prineville Tuesday. He said his name was John Hughes; that he started from nowhere and was going nowhere, but that he must keep moving. When questioned closely he acknowledged he was from New Mexico. Hughes, who is tall and gaunt but as straight as an arrow, had an old rattle-trap of a buggy that seemed ready to fall to pieces. It was drawn by a burro that seemed to be as antiquated as its master. The old man looked to be 75 or 80 years old, under a thick coating of dust. He was several yards in advance of his donkey and would shout directions to the little animal that could be heard for several blocks. Both man and beast understood each other. It was seldom necessary to emphasize his commands with a long stick that he carried, which was used principally as a walking stick.

In the old buggy was a bundle of wheat hay and some blankets. When Hughes wanted to ride he sat on the blankets and let his legs hang over the front end where the dashboard was supposed to be.

He had an abiding contempt for state officials and those in authority. At that moment Marshall Coon joined the crowd that had been attracted by the strange outfit, and with a flourish of his stick John Hughes bade them goodbye and started up Main street.

It takes five different aged whiskies to make Cyrus Noble—each one good in itself. But it takes blending and re-ageing to bring out the best in each—to "round out" the flavor.

Why punish yourself with rough, high-proof, strong whiskey when you can get Cyrus Noble everywhere?
